PRESIDENT WILL MAKE NEW DRIVE FOR WAR DEBTS

Congress to Be Told of Plan.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 7.—[Special.]—With June 15, the next instalment day, only five weeks away, congress aroused today to new talk of the European war debts and to the issuance of new demands for settlement.

In his expected debt message, President Roosevelt intends to show that the United States is willing to be lenient to nations who have kept their payments up to date, Speaker Henry T. Rainey of Illinois predicted.

Nations who do not keep up to date, but who seek to maintain the semblance of doing so by making token payments, are going to feel the bite of the new Johnson act, Senators Hiram Johnson [Rep., Cal.] and J. Hamilton Lewis [Dem., Ill.] prophesied.

Finland to be Good Example.

Speaker Rainey explained that in his opinion the administration would use Finland as a means of pointing out to the defaulters the error of their ways. Finland has been the only debtor nation to pay up on time.

As a reward, the President is understood to be ready to propose a generous revision of the Finnish debt. The conclusion expected to follow is that countries now in default will seek to make payment and so come within the favored category.

Meanwhile, on the senate floor, Senator Johnson and Senator Lewis were asserting that token payments would no longer preserve nations from the default category.

Token Payments in Doubt.

Notwithstanding the President's pronouncement of last November, when he said he would not consider nations making token payments as being in default, and notwithstanding Attorney General Cummings' official affirmation last Saturday of the President's position, said Senator Johnson, nations makin gtoken payments would clearly come within the scope of the recently approved act of which he was author.

The Johnson act prohibits, under penalty, the sale or purchase of securities of defaulting governments or their political subdivisions. It defines as a default a failure to make a payment when due or "any part thereof."

"There is an end to token payments," said Senator Johnson. "The question of token payments cannot and will not arise. Any one who would be bold enough, after a payment of seven or seven and a half million dollars in silver upon a very large indebtedness, to sell securities or the obligations of that particular government in this country would be guilty under the plain provisions of the law.

Hits at Great Britain.

"We need not assail the opinion that has been rendered by the attorney general, nor comment upon what the President said last November. Next month we have the determining factor when this statute will be in effect."

He hit particularly at Great Britain. "What an absurdity it is to suggest that a token payment be made by a government which boasts to the world," he said, "that its financial condition and position is better than that of any other country on the face of the earth, that it has not only balanced its budget but has a very large surplus as well. A token payment of seven or ten million dollars under the circumstances would be a fraud, a farce or a delusion."

Senator Lewis told his colleagues that while at least two foreign nations were preparing to put the United States off with token payments banking interests in those countries were proposing to come to America for new loans.

Time to Serve Notice.

"It is time we served notice," said the Illinois senator, "that we intend to make no loan to any country that discloses a spirit of unwillingness to pay its debt to us. It is time we announced that any debtor nation indulging in such detestable conduct shall not come here and be sent back, its hands swelling with our money.

"We are behind the President in his effort in every way to maintain peace and friendship," Senator Lewis concluded. "We want the concord of every kindly relation that may aid in the growth of foreign trade and domestic kindliness. But America's first consideration must be the savi of her citizenship and honor."

DELAY PRIVATE FLYING OF MAIL FROM CHICAGO

An unexpected hitch developed early this morning in the scheduled resumption of air mail flying by commercial lines out of Chicago—and the end of army mail flying—when mysterious orders were received by the postoffice force at the Chicago airport "not to give out any mail to commercial flyers until further orders."

The delay came a little better than an hour before Jack Knight, pioneer pilot for the United Air Lines, was to hop off at 3:30 with 600 pounds of mail for the west coast. This unexpected development upset the preparations and also created wonder among air line attachés. Representatives of the United Air Lines were in the dark, they said, as to the reasons. Postal aids said they were also ignorant of the reasons.

It was believed, however, the hitch would be only temporary. It was pointed out that the difficulty apparently was local, since a commercial plane had left Newark for Chicago with 1,209 pounds of mail at 1:15 o'clock, Chicago daylight time. This ship was due at the airport at 6 o'clock. Other planes are expected in from the west and the east today.

Only Line Out of Chicago.

The United Air Lines, flying the transcontinental route and carrying 50 per cent of all the air mail flown, will be the only private company operating out of Chicago for a week or more. American Air Lines, awarded a contract to carry mail from Chicago to Newark, N. J., via Detroit and Boston, is arranging schedules with postal authorities now and probably will begin mail flights next.

Two new air transport companies, Eastern Airlines Inc., and Pacific Seaboard Lines, awarded contracts to carry mail respectively to Jacksonville, Fla. and to New Orleans, out of Chicago, have not yet sent representatives to this city. Although both companies were carrying passengers prior to cancelation of the old contracts, neither has operated out of Chicago.

No Equipment Here.

Consequently neither has hangar facilities, equipment, or personnel in this city. Ground arrangements, so essential to maintenance of scheduled air operations, are lacking for the present. Both lines will be allowed until June 2 to begin operations.

The army's final flights on the transcontinental route were made at 9:15 and at 11 o'clock last evening. At the earlier hour Lieut. D. K. Robbins, flying an A-12 Curtiss attack plane left for Cheyenne. Arriving there at 4:30 this morning his mail was to be transferred for the remainder of the journey to the west coast in a United Air Lines ship.

Last Army Load Goes East.

The later flight was made by Lieut. R. Scroggins who piloted a B-10 Martin bomber with a heavy load of mail to Newark. This load was carried all the way to the eastern destination although the pilot did not arrive until 5 o'clock this morning.

In the army's headquarters from Newark to Oakland, Cal., yesterday 1,000 officers and three times as many men, who will return to their home fields beginning today, were packing duffle bags last evening. From Chicago 75 officers and 300 men will return to Galveston and San Antonio, Tex.; to Shreveport, La., and to Dayton, O., their permanent stations.

The army, however, will continue to fly the Chicago-St. Paul and the Chicago-Dallas, Tex., airlines until they are taken over by private operators at a later date. The Chicago-Dallas route has been awarded to Braniff Air Lines, but the St. Paul run is not yet under contract.

ARMY CLAIMS RECORD

Newark, N. J., May 7.—(AP)—The army air corps, completing its job of carrying the mail, carried out a flight from Oakland, Cal., to Newark airport late today in what it claimed to be record time for service over the northern transcontinental route, 14 hours and 2 minutes.

It was a gesture much like the one the private air lines made eleven weeks ago when the army took over the assignment. Then a Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., ship traversed the southern route from Los Angeles to Newark in the elapsed time of 13 hours and 5 minutes. It was piloted by Eddie Rickenbacker.

Out for a Record.

The army set out today to make a record for the 2,732 miles and apparently made it. The route by way of Salt Lake City, Cheyenne, Omaha, Des Moines, Chicago, and Cleveland is 279

DANCING TO THE SPRING SONG

TWO U. S. SOLDIERS ALMOST DROWN IN A SEA OF RED TAPE

Washington, D. C., May 7.—Privates Callahan and Churchill, U. S. A., went for a sail on Sept. 10, 1933. They were almost drowned in southern oceans and were going down for the third time in a sea of red tape when rescued today.

The two men, stationed at Fort Randolph, Canal Zone, were caught in a storm and carried out to sea. After drifting helplessly for seven days they were picked up by the steamship Franz Klasen. Churchill was unconscious and Callahan in a delirious condition.

The steamer, bound for Germany, deviated from its course at the request of the commanding officer at Fort Randolph and landed the men at St. Thomas, Virgin Islands. The steamship company presented a bill to the government for $123.33 to cover actual landing expenses, making no charges for food, transportation, medical care, or other expenses.

There was nothing in army regulations to cover the unusual case and Callahan and Churchill were on the verge of losing $123.33 each of their $30 a month until the judge advocate general's office classified the incident as "an act of God" and holding the government itself liable. Assistant Secretary of War Harry H. Woodring today approved the opinion.

24 Day Drouth Holds; Crops Burning in Soil

BY PAUL POTTER.

Chicago moved into its 24th rainless day this morning and official government forecasters were unable to promise showers of any sort here. Unusually high temperatures were forecast, which would prolong the most severe spring drouth on record. Gardens, lawns and millions of acres of farm crops were burning up as the subsoil moisture, already nearly ten inches shy of normal rainfall since last fall, began to give out.

Precipitation since Jan. 1 has been but 3.89 inches here, whereas the normal to date should be 10.16 inches. Scattered showers over the week-end and yesterday brought temporary relief to grain farmers in some southeastern and northwestern areas and to a few points in the corn belt.

Heat Wave Continues.

While Chicago enjoyed cooler weather yesterday, with a maximum of 58 degrees recorded at the government station, most of southern Illinois was still in the grip of the heat wave. At Carbondale the temperature was the highest of the year when the mercury rose to 92 degrees. At Springfield 88 degrees was recorded and at Peoria 86 degrees was reached. At Evansville, Ind., the temperature was 88 degrees.

The high temperatures continued yesterday throughout the corn and grain belts. At Omaha, Neb., and North Platte, Neb., the mercury reached 94 degrees. Other high readings were at Bismarck, N. D., and Dodge City, Ia., 92 degrees, and at Des Moines, Ia.; Rapid City, Ia., and Sioux City, Ia., 90 degrees.

No Rain Forecast Today.

While no relief from the drouth is in sight in these areas for today, scattered showers were forecast for the area tomorrow.

Farmers over wide areas of the grain producing areas were becoming alarmed yesterday by the severity of the drouth. On the Chicago Board of Trade wheat prices soared upward 3 cents a bushel, added to improved prices of last week. Corn, oats and rye also were increased in value in the day's trading as reports from western Canada, the Dakotas and the corn belt recounted the adverse conditions for producing normal crops this season.

Dust and sand storms were so severe in some localities as to partially hide the sun. In western Canada, in Wisconsin, and in several other localities the dry earth was piled up over fences and highways, drifting like snow and in some cases impeding traffic. Farmers are hauling water in many sections, while in parts of North and South Dakota not enough forage crops will be grown to maintain live stock during the summer, it was reported.

Milk Supply Periled.

In the countryside about Chicago the dairy herds are beginning to show the effects of restricted pasture and feed supplies. In a season where milk production normally increases the herds are giving less milk than in March, in most cases. At the same time warm weather in the city has increased the demand for milk and farmers are beginning to seek some means of increasing milk prices.

Farmers in the middle west, faced with short hay and pasture crops, are arranging to sow sudan grass and other crops which produce forage under drouth conditions. In Wisconsin, farmers in 44 counties have joined in an appeal for state or federal aid in purchasing hay for their stock. It is the sixth year of deficient rainfall in southern Wisconsin, and the fourth year of severe drouth in some parts of the state.

Lakes at Low Level.

T. J. Edmonds, regional federal relief representative in Des Moines, said last night that Lawrence Westbrook, assistant to Relief Administrator Hopkins, will visit the drouth stricken north central area soon. Following Westbrook's report to Washington, a decision will be made on whether expensive hay and grains shall continue to be fed to live stock in the drouth areas, Edmonds said.

LIGHT PHENOMENON MAKES MICHIGAN VISIBLE FROM LOOP

The clearest superior mirage, or looming, in the memory of employés of the Chicago weather bureau, was observed over Lake Michigan yesterday afternoon.

By this phenomenon of light refraction factories of Gary, sand dunes in Indiana at the foot of the lake, and even the Michigan shore line—60 miles directly east of Chicago—were visible from the loop.

"It's the best one I've ever seen," declared Weather Forecaster J. R. Lloyd. "We've occasionally seen them at the foot of the lake, but, as far as I know, this is the first time such a looming has made the shore visible directly east across the lake."

The looming, Mr. Lloyd explained, is caused by a "temperature inversion," under the proper meteorological conditions, coupled with a fresh north or northeast wind, which clears the sky of smoke. The "inversion," he said, is that condition where a cool layer of air is over the lake with warmer air above it.

BULLETIN.

Aboard the Fort Dearborn Special, May 8, 3 a. m. (Tuesday).—(AP)—Insull was sound asleep as the Fort Dearborn Special rushed his party's car, the Bethevan, through Ohio and Indiana early today on the closing stage of the former magnate's trip home from Turkey.

BY EUGENE SPECK.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Aboard Insull train en route to Chicago, May 7.—[Special.]—Samuel Insull retired to his compartment at 10 o'clock tonight expecting to sleep during the last hours of his journey. He will awake as the train nears Chicago tomorrow morning to face his ordeal in the federal courts.

All through the day and the evening Insull remained calm. He gave no sign of being afraid of what awaits him in Chicago. He made observations on the passing landscape as the train sped across New Jersey and Pennsylvania and held quiet conversations with his son, Samuel Jr. He says he feels fit and he is thinking hard. He professes to regard his homecoming to the city which was scene of his mastery and his downfall as a long awaited opportunity for vindication.

Enjoys Talk with Son.

Insull and his son retired after dining on the train. The two were engrossed in conversation and it appeared that they would continue to talk for a short time before actually dropping off to sleep. It is the first time they have been together since the summer of 1932 in Paris.

In a berth near the Insull compartment Burton Y. Berry, third secretary of the American embassy in Turkey, who brought Insull from Istanbul, also went to bed at 10 o'clock. Agents of the state department, which has formal custody of Insull, were on guard throughout the night in the same Pullman car.

The party is traveling in a special car, the Bethevan, attached to The Fort Dearborn train of the Pennsylvania lines. This car, provided by the federal authorities, was first attached to the Metropolitan Limited at Princeton Junction, N. J., this morning, but was switched to The Fort Dearborn at East Liberty, Pa., near Pittsburgh, at 9:45 tonight.

Insull in Good Spirits.

It was apparent throughout the train journey that Insull's good spirits were in part due to his reunion with his son. From the moment of their greeting aboard the steamer Exilona, off New York City early this morning, the former utilities magnate and his son fell into a complete concord.

After that first greeting all traces of emotion between the two disappeared and they talked quietly and pleasantly. Even when there were lulls in their conversation they seemed to understand each other completely. They glanced at each other at intervals and then both would smile.

Insull, when he introduced his son to reporters on the Exilona this morning, had said: "Gentlemen, my brother—I mean my son." They seemed brothers, for their conversation was on the plane of men of equal ages.

Young Insull Discusses Bail.

Young Insull, when informed that the government might ask a bond of $200,000 for his father's freedom at arraignment in a Chicago federal court tomorrow morning, said he did not know whether that amount could be raised.

"My father's friends have arranged to furnish a bond as high as $150,000, if necessary," the son said, "but I do not know where we could get any more."

Samuel Jr. also disclosed that he would like to take his father away for a rest if the bond is arranged, although he has an apartment at the Seneca hotel in Chicago in readiness for the older man. He has arranged for a private bodyguard of one man to protect his father, he said.

Later, young Insull said, he plans

U. S. Will Ask Bond of $200,000.

After nearly two years as a fugitive, Samuel Insull today will again see Chicago, the city of his former triumphs. He is 74 years old and is returning a prisoner, but dispatches from the eastern seaboard, where he was landed yesterday, and from the train that last night was speeding him westward, pictured him in jovial humor—a far different person from the broken, dispirited man who was captured five weeks ago in Istanbul, Turkey, and turned over to the United States.

Riding in a Pullman car chartered for his party by the government, Insull will arrive at 8 o'clock this morning in the Union station. His car is attached to The Fort Dearborn train of the Pennsylvania lines.

Accompanied by His Son.

Its occupants, besides himself, include his son, Samuel Insull Jr., who met the former utility executive yesterday morning on the deck of the steamer Exilona which had brought him from Turkey. Others in the party are Burton Y. Berry, a secretary of the American embassy at Istanbul, who accompanied Insull across the Atlantic; a physician, and a group of federal agents acting as guards.

Immediately upon the train's arrival in Chicago Insull will be taken to the United States courthouse, where he is to be formally surrendered to United States Marshal H. C. W. Laubenheimer. At 10 o'clock he will be arraigned before Judge Philip L. Sullivan of the United States District court and will be given an opportunity to provide bond for his release.

State Department Prisoner.

Marshal Laubenheimer said yesterday that neither he nor his men would be at the station to meet Insull. This is because Insull is still the prisoner of the state department, which seized him on a presidential warant. He will be in the state department's custody until his surrender at the courthouse.

Marshal Laubenheimer and his deputies will be in their office at 8 o'clock this morning waiting for the prisoner. As soon as Insull arrives he will be fingerprinted. This is possible before his arraignment under a recent United States Supreme court ruling, the marshal explained.

"I don't know if I will have any special guards around," Laubenheimer said, "but most of the boys will be on hand to guard Insull from newspaper men."

Judge Issues Two Warants.

Judge Sullivan, before whom Insull will be arraigned, yesterday issued two bench warants for his arrest. The warants charge use of the mails in a scheme to defraud and violation of the federal bankruptcy laws by assigning assets to preferred creditors. Both charges grew out of the collapse of Insull's utility empire in the spring of 1932.

Judge Sullivan usually convenes court at 10 o'clock in the morning and there was no indication last night that his court would open earlier. This means that Insull will have ample time to breakfast and read the papers before his arraignment.

U. S. to Ask $200,000 Bond.

Attorney Floyd Thompson, representing Samuel Insull Jr., who also is charged in the federal courts with mail frauds and violation of the bankruptcy statutes, announced plans for freeing the elder Insull on bond after he has been arraigned. Assistant United States Attorney General Joseph B. Keenan, who is in Chicago awaiting Insull's return, said the government would ask a $200,000 bond.

"The matter of setting the bond is, of course, a judicial function," Mr. Keenan said, "but if the government is asked for a recommendation I believe that a $200,000 bond is not unreasonable.

"The government has gone to great expense to return Insull and he has always manifested a desire to avoid facing the bar of justice. He seemed to have ample funds to retain an oceangoing liner [the Greek steamer Maiotis on which Insull fled from Athens], and the bond the government will recommend is not too high."

Thompson Makes Arrangements.

Attorney Thompson, who explained he did not know whether he would represent the elder Insull, said he was arranging a surety bond, but did not believe he could get one for $200,000. He said he expected to be able to post a $50,000 surety bond in the federal court.

The question arose again yesterday as to whether Insull could be tried on state charges of embezzlement from the Middle West Utilities company as well as on the federal charges. Determination of this will hinge on the technicality of whether Insull was extradited or deported from Turkey. If he was deported, as the government will contend, he can be tried on all charges, state as well as federal.

Attorney Thompson said he planned to schedule a $25,000 surety bond for Insull on the state charges if the government's contention is upheld. Insull is a defendant in the state courts with his brother, Martin Insull, who was extradited from Canada several weeks ago.

State to Wait for U. S.

First Assistant State's Attorney Wilbert F. Crowley said the state would not press its charges against Insull until the federal government has disposed of its case.

The issuance of the warrants by Judge Sullivan gave rise to the belief that he would preside at the trial of Insull on the federal charges. Judge Sullivan, who was recently appointed to the federal bench and is the youngest judge in the division, has never conducted any of the hearings on charges of fraud made since the collapse of the utilities empire.

Immediately after the arraignment this morning, if Insull is set at liberty on bond, his son will take him to an apartment in the Seneca hotel, 200 East Chestnut street.

STORY OF THE LANDING

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

New York, May 7.—[Special.]—There were none of the feared developments accompanying the transfer of Samuel Insull from the freighter Exilona to American soil. No lawyer made an effort to delay his return. No fanatic appeared to threaten his life. And the rumor that Insull was contemplating suicide appeared ridiculous in view of the attitude he displayed.

A somewhat absurd climax featured the great secrecy plot which was drafted by the department of justice and state department attachés who took charge of Insull. He was taken from the Exilona at Ambrose lightship at 5:45 this morning, landed at Fort Hancock, N. J., at 7:15, and driven by automobile to Princeton Junction, N. J., where not more than a score of newspaper men and photographers greeted him.

Gives Out a Statement.

Chewing a cigar and obviously delighted at all the attention that was given him, Insull during the trip to Fort Hancock gave out a statement declaring that any errors in business judgment on his part had been "honest mistakes." The statement, it was later learned, had been prepared by Samuel Insull Jr. and presented to the elder Insull when his son boarded the Exilona with the government men to greet him.

Federal officials on the coast guard cutter Hudson awaited the dawn before taking Insull off the Exilona. They had steamed down the bay the night before and had hovered in the choppy water off Ambrose lightship until daybreak revealed the squat outlines of the ship which brought Insull from Turkey to the United States.

Without any display of emotion Insull tripped down the ship's ladder and into the government cutter. He was accompanied by Burton Y. Berry, the young embassy secretary in whose charge he made the trip from Turkey.

The cutter speeded for the Fort Hancock military reservation. Three limousines chartered by the government men awaited the party there and carried the members to Princeton Junction, forty-seven miles away.

At 10:30 a. m. the prisoner was put in a drawing room on the Pennsylvania lines' Metropolitan Limited for the start of the trip to Chicago. Berry, R. C. Bannerman of the state department, and department of justice agents, one of them a physician who was assigned to watch Insull's health, sat with him.

The only excitement displayed by Insull at any time during his arrival was when he learned that his son was aboard the cutter Hudson to greet him. He waved to Samuel Jr. from the Exilona's rail and yelled in a highly pitched voice:

"O, Junior, Junior!"

"How're you doing, pa?" inquired the son, and the father answered in a voice which broke slightly:

"Fine, fine. Glad to see you, son."

The younger Insull climbed up the ladder to the Exilona. He and his father embraced and then went to the Exilona's dining saloon for a speedy breakfast. A few minutes later they went down the ladder to the cutter.

STATEMENT BY INSULL

New York, May 7.—[Special.]—Samuel Insull's prepared statement, which he handed to newspaper men on the coast guard cutter Hudson as he neared his landing on American soil at Fort Hancock, N. J., reads:

"I am back in America to make the most important fight of my life—not only for freedom, but for a complete vindication. Two years ago, when I left this country there were no charges against me.

"When I left companies which over a period of forty years I had helped build were in the process of reorganization. The terrific stresses of the depression and the mistakes which I made in an honest effort to protect the companies and the investors in them made a reorganization necessary.

Told to Resign.

"Arbitrarily I had been instructed to resign as the head of these companies which I had built and which I had tried to protect.

"I was told that I was no longer needed. Tired from the fruitless struggle to save the investment of thousands of men and women, discouraged in my attempts to defend the investment of my friends and associates, as well as everything I had, I got out.

"I wanted to rest. I knew that the work of reorganization by the new management of the companies from which I had been asked to resign would be hampered if I remained. Policies and administrative plans were being altered to meet conditions I had not foreseen. The new management was entitled to a free hand, unembarrassed by any suggestion from me.

"No charges were brought against me until I had been away for three months. My return at that time would have further complicated the problems of reorganization.

Trial Might Hamper Companies.

"Charges against me grew out of my business operations. My trial, I felt, prior to a reorganization and readjustment of the companies' troubles, would hinder this reconstruction. This, to me, was far more important than my fate, because it affected the investment of thousands of people.

"Then, too, from my own point of view, I was confident that my trial would be simplified if all the facts about the companies were known first and their reconstruction was well under way, before I was forced to face charges which had been placed against me.

"I have erred, but my greatest error was in underestimating the effect of the financial panic on American securities and particularly on the companies I was working so hard to build.

"I worked with all my energy to save those companies. I made mistakes but they were honest mistakes. They were errors in judgment, but no dishonest manipulations.

"The whole story has not yet been told. You only know the charges of the prosecution. Not one word has been uttered in even a feeble defense of me. And it must be obvious that there also is my side of the story.

"When it is told in court, my judgment may be discredited but certainly my honesty will be vindicated."

to employ a young college graduate to act as a "man Friday" for his father. The duties of this helper would be to answer telephones, ward off autograph hunters and others of the curious, and perhaps take dictation.

As Insull boarded the train at Princeton Junction he was approached by a small group of students from nearby Princeton university. One of the students, a reporter on the university daily, tried to interview him. Insull smiled and reminded the student to stress in his story that he [Insull] had once lectured at Princeton.

Car Is Closely Guarded.

The Insull car was closely guarded at every station. Railway policemen stood at the doors whenever the train stopped. Always standing near Insull and his son were Berry, two agents from the state department, and Dr. George B. Corey of New York. Dr. Corey was assigned to the party by the government in the event that Insull required medical attention. The five newspaper men who accompanied Insull from Istanbul were the only unofficial group in the party.

As the train journey began, Insull took off the light gray coat and the gray hat he had been wearing. He was clad in a dark blue suit. His white mustache was neatly trimmed and his white hair clipped close. As he sat at his compartment window he looked like any elderly business executive on a transcontinental trip.

"Glad to Be Back."

As the train passed through the Alleghanies, Insull watched the passing scene with great interest. Once, in the Lancaster valley, he looked up and made his sole public statement beyond the prepared one he gave out in the morning.

"With all my troubles," he said, "I am glad to be back in the country where I spent practically the whole of my business career."

The Metropolitan Limited approached Pittsburgh shortly before 6 o'clock. This train is broken up there and the Fort Dearborn is formed. The Metropolitan halted at suburban East Liberty, five miles from downtown Pittsburgh, and there was a wait of nearly four hours while the Fort Dearborn was made up.

Insull made no comment on the change. He dined during the wait. Before he began his meal a Pittsburgh newspaper photographer approached and invited Insull to dine with him instead.

"My wife told me to tell you that she would like to have you out for dinner tonight, while you are waiting," the photographer said.

Insull smiled. "Well, I'd like to," he said, "but I have a prior date with Uncle Sam in Chicago." He then posed for pictures.

After the car was attached to the Fort Dearborn it was taken to the downtown station in Pittsburgh and from there began the final journey to Chicago.

CHICAGO CEMETERY LOSES TAX CLAIMS IN SUPREME COURT

Washington, D. C., May 7.—(AP)—The Cedar Park Cemetery Association, Inc., of Chicago, was denied a review by the Supreme court today of federal taxes imposed for 1923, 1924 and 1925.

In selling lots the association guaranteed perpetual care and in making out its federal income tax return deducted 10 per cent of the price of each lot from its gross income to create a fund to provide perpetual care. In its 1924 return it deducted from gross income $32,000 as salaries paid three of its officers.

The commissioner of internal revenue refused to allow the deduction of the 10 per cent, and reduced the salary deduction to $15,000, assembling deficiency taxes of $14,845. The board of tax appeals and the Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals sustained the commissioner.

BRITONS LAVISH PRAISE ON NEW ROOSEVELT BOOK

[Copyright: 1934: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, May 7.—The appearance of the British edition of President Roosevelt's book, "On Our Way," today was the signal for a remarkable outpouring of newspaper tributes to the President and his policies.

"One can not lay down this book without a real admiration for a great leader sincerely aiming at things that are worth while," writes Leonard Reid, financial editor of the conservative Daily Telegraph.

Sir Walter Layton's Weekly Economist, a persistent critic of the President's policies, says that many of his messages "will recall some better known addresses of Abraham Lincoln. Though the greatest controversy may rage around the wisdom of this action or that," the Economist says, "his viewpoint and his approach to the problem of social rights and duties is one which will commend itself to millions not only in the United States but all over the world."

Prof. Harold J. Laski, writing in the Manchester Guardian, asserts the first year of President Roosevelt's term "is the most effective example of Democratic leadership the world has seen in post-war years."

Panama Canal to Receive More Funds for Defense

COLON, Panama, May 7.—(AP)—A prediction of increased funds for defense of the Panama canal was made today by Maj. Gen. Harold B. Fiske, commanding officer of the Panama canal department, as he returned from a visit to Washington. Discussion of canal defenses, he said in answer to a question, was "one of several reasons" he was called to Washington.

12 PASSENGERS FIND INSULL IS GOOD SHIPMATE

All Speak Kindly of the Returning Exile.

New York, May 7.—[Special.]—The twelve passengers who, in addition to Samuel Insull, made the trip from Constantinople to New York in the American Export liner Exilona, agreed unanimously that the former utilities magnate was a charming and genial companion, who spent most of his time relaxed in his armchair, smoking almost constantly and refusing to talk of politics or of his financial affairs.

One day out of New York he told Mrs. Louise Dvorak of New York, with marked sadness of manner, that it was the first time he had returned to this port with none of his relatives to greet him. He did not know at that time that his son was aboard the cutter Hudson and was to meet him early today. When he did make this discovery, the passengers said, he appeared greatly cheered.

Captain Has Kind Words.

Capt. Wenzel Habel of the Exilona, preoccupied with the difficult task of docking the liner with a strong ebb tide and a northerly wind with which to contend, left his bridge after the vessel was tied up and stepped before the camera men and reporters.

Insull, said Capt. Habel, was an ideal passenger who appeared averse to talking of himself or his misfortunes, but who was a good sailor and at all times courteous and pleasant. He did not appear to have much money with him, and deposited none at all with the purser. He did not, the captain continued, spend any money on board ship.

His steward, Nils Wilton, bore this out, adding that he had received no tip from his star passenger. It was also reported on the Exilona that Mr. Insull had borrowed $100 from the American legation secretary who escorted him from Turkey to the United States. Despite his failure to tip, Wilton liked the Chicagoan, a fact that testifies strongly to his charm.

Shuns Personal Topics.

Another passenger, Cyrus Newcomb of Grand Rapids, Mich., said that he had talked many times with Mr. Insull, and that he had only once referred to personal matters. On that occasion he said that he was coming home to fight for liberty. He did, however, talk a good deal about his son.

"He thinks the world of that boy," commented Newcomb.

Miss Lillian M. Burk of Toronto, Canada, recalled Mr. Insull as an interested and interesting commentator on current events, who barred but one subject: Samuel Insull. He apparently was regarded aboard ship, after the novelty of having such a distinguished prisoner for company had worn off, as "just an ordinary, casual passenger."

When he left the Exilona at Ambrose he took several bags with him, leaving six others, along with copies of London newspapers on which he had scribbled notes and figures, including one problem in long division that had been solved correctly.

COOL DAY SAVES DITCHED TEN TON CARGO OF BUTTER

Yesterday's moderately cool weather proved to be a boon to August B. Herman and Woodrow Price of Kansas City, Mo. They were driving a truck and trailer carrying 20,000 pounds of butter from Kansas City to Milwaukee when at 4:30 a. m. the truck and trailer left the road at Mannheim road and 31st street, Proviso township, and rolled down a deep embankment. It wasn't until late last night, 18 hours later, that a relief truck appeared and picked up the butter load. Herman, owner of the truck, breathed freely after that. He said that if the temperature had been like on Sunday—92 degrees—the butter would have spoiled.

Strike in Cleveland Closes Every Gas Station in City

Cleveland, O., May 8, 1 a. m.—[Special.]—Lights in gasoline stations were dimmed, pumps locked, and employés sent home at midnight as the zero hour of the ultimatum sent to independent dealers by striking station attendants was reached. It is estimated more than 200,000 automobile owners in the Cleveland area will be affected by the closing.

When clocks chimed off the hour of midnight not a single gasoline station in the city was open and striking attendants and major oil companies were locked in a bitter struggle that may last for days or weeks unless the federal government steps in to bring about peace.

For hours last night long lines of motorists waited at stations to fill the tanks of their cars. Many had cans and jars which they filled to add to their fuel supplies.

Plan Emergency Service.

Plans were being made by Mayor Harry L. Davis to open five emergency stations to be operated by police. These stations would serve doctors and nurses and provide fuel for essential services such as food deliveries, ambulances and funeral cars.

City officials conferred with union leaders but failed to get the union's promise not to molest these stations.

"We've got to stop the gasoline supply in Cleveland to get anywhere," Phil Hannah, secretary of the union, said. "We regret the inconvenience the public must undergo now, but we feel that the public understands that the responsibility does not rest on our shoulders, and will bear with us in this fight for industrial freedom."

Fail to Reach Agreement.

The decision to close independent stations was reached by the Gasoline Station Attendants' union when all efforts to reach an agreement with major concerns failed. Stations operated by the national chains were closed three weeks ago and pickets have prevented any of them from reopening.

A large number of the independent dealers were permitted to operate after signing agreements with the union, but the strikers later decided to force all stations to close and thus cut off the city's gasoline supply in an effort to win recognition from the large companies.

A few of the national concerns stated that they would operate a few stations today, but the majority announced that they are prepared to keep their stations closed indefinitly unless the strikers voluntarily return to work.

Threat of Violence.

Officials of the union, advised that several companies would attempt to operate today, vowed they would jam automobiles around the pumps of any station attempting to open and try to make it impossible to sell any gasoline.

U. S. AND MEXICAN POSSES HUNT FOR KIDNAPED CHILD

Nogales, Ariz., May 7.—(AP)—A hunt by American and Mexican posses through the wild country of northern Sonora, Mexico, today for 6-year-old June Robles, kidnaped Tucson school girl, ended without result.

Squads of officers straggled back across the international border after the greatest armed advance into Mexican territory in recent times.

The invasion brought a series of rumors which grew wilder by the hour as voluble residents of Nogales, Sonora, conjectured what was going on, to the south of them.

One widespread rumor was that the little girl's kidnapers had been arrested, had confessed, and had led searchers to a shack in which she was found safe. There was no basis for it.

J. J. Lowe, Nogales chief of police, said he and investigators who accompanied him had searched a large portion of northern Sonora without finding a trace of the chield. He added that he found no confirmation of reports the girl was being held in Mexico.

Deputy Sherif White returned from a mysterious trip into Sonora early today with the statement:

"I can say with a clear conscience June Robles is still alive and may be returned within 24 hours."

White left later on another mission into the neighboring Mexican state.

LIQUOR IS LEGAL IN LAKE FOREST AFTER 73 YEARS

For the first time in 73 years, Lake Forest last night became legally wet. The city council adopted a liquor control ordinance embodying various restrictions.

The ordinance provides that retail stores may be licensed to sell bottled liquors and beers, but not for consumption on the premises. Stores may also be licensed to sell beer only for consumption on the premises, but these places can not handle hard liquors in any form. These two classes of licenses are $25 a year. Bona fide clubs may sell drinks of any kind to members on a no-profit basis only. The license is $50.

An effort to restrict the drinking of beer on the premises to restaurants only was successfully opposed by Ald. Kent Chandler, who argued that such restrictions might develop blind pigs.

The adoption of the liquor ordinance, which becomes effective Thursday, was the last official act of the old council under Mayor A. D. Farwell. That over, Mayor Farwell ended his third term of office, and Francis E. Manierre became mayor. Another veteran office holder retiring was Ald. James Griffis, succeeded by Ald. Randolph Owsley. Farwell and Griffis were given gold stars by Mayor Manierre for their services. Police Chief Frank Tiffany and Fire Chief George Larson were reappointed.

"Threat" to Town's Council by NRA Official Revealed

Beaver Dam, Wis., May 7.—[Special.]—A half hundred pickets still patrol the idle plant of the Bear Brand Hosiery company which citizens hope will be ordered opened by Henry Pope Jr., its president, following a vote of the city council assuring protection to its employés.

MISS MARY SPELLMAN.

No action has yet come from the warning of R. C. Jacobson, Chicago regional labor board secretary, that Pope was to be summoned to Washington to answer charges of violation of the NRA and to face the loss of his Blue Eagle.

The threat is a vain one, President Pope stated here, because he says he never subscribed to the NRA and never had a blue eagle. The company always paid higher wages than the code prescribed, dealt happily with its workmen and saw no need of joining any code, he declared.

Told It's Their Business.

There has been no action subsequent to the exchange of communications between Jacobson and the city council, in which Jacobson advised the council it was its patriotic duty not to interefere with picketing of the plant. Jacobson's communication was answered by the City Taxpayers' league advising him the city was able to run its own affairs and needed no interference nor direction as to its patriotic duty.

The Jacobson message as read at the May session of the council is as follows:

"Am informed attempt is being made to persuade to appropriate funds for special police protection for reopening Bear Brand hosiery factory, your city. Believe this both wasteful and unpatriotic. Are you aware that officials of this company will be summoned soon to Washington by national labor board to show cause why their Blue Eagle should not be removed and why they should not be cited to department of justice for violating Section 7-A?

"Respectfully urge you that you take no action until national labor board has held this hearing and rendered its decision. Roosevelt program, now succeeding so generally, deserves your coöperation and your patient forbearance until arbitration of this is done. Did you know Blue Eagle had been taken away from Harriman Hosiery Mills, Harriman, Tenn., by Gen. Johnson on recommendation of national labor board for violation of Section 7-A?"

Taxpayers' Answer.

The Taxpayers' league answered as follows:

"Beaver Dam Taxpayers' league believe your telegram to mayor and common council criticizing proposed resolution offering protection to people willing to work is unwarranted intrusion into our civic affairs. Believe you unqualified to pass judgment on our patriotism. Strong resentment in this city against outside interference. Beaver Dam Taxpayers' league, L. A. Briese, president."

The mayor, Miss Mary Spellman, under whose leadership the council voted protection to the employés, is a retired school teacher. Her former pupils were largely responsible for her election to the post. She was inaugurated April 17.

15 RUN FOR SHERIF IN LAKE CO.; 14 CRY 'DILLINGER'

Outlaw's Indiana Break Is Primary Issue Today.

Fifteen Democrats are seeking the nomination for sherif of Lake county, Ind., in the primaries to be held there today, and John Dillinger, who departed, bag, baggage and machine guns, from Lake county's jail without a farewell to the present sherif, Mrs. Lillian Holley, is the issue. Caroll Holley, now chief deputy sherif and nephew of Sherif Holley, is one of the candidates and the other fourteen are raising the cry of "Dillinger."

The same situation applies in the contest for prosecutor between the incumbent, Robert G. Estill, who was photographed in the Crown Point jail with his arm thrown in friendly fashion over Dillinger's shoulder, and State Senator Fred Egan. The contest for the sherif nomination, however, is the center of interest because all candidates are promising to keep Dillinger safely if he is ever again given into the custody of the Lake county authorities.

An Anti-Estill Slate.

County Commissioner Charles Baran of Gary, who is not a candidate for renomination, as backing an anti-Estill and anti-Holley slate with Egan for prosecutor, and Claude Bielefeld of Crown Point for sherif. Mrs. Holley was chosen by the present county board to fill out the unexpired term of her husband, who was killed a few days after he began his second term as sherif.

The Democrats expect success in the elections and therefore their primary fights are hotter than those among the Republicans. In all there are 1,490 candidates for public office in the county, from constable to congressman, and there are 105,000 persons eligible to vote today. The regular country and township elections of last year were postponed until this year, to save money, and therefore the county is a hotbed of politics.

Congressman William T. Schulte, Democrat, of Hammond, who was sent to Washington in the landslide of 1932, is opposed by County Commissioner Andrew Hoffman of Hammond. Four candidates are seeking the Republican congressional nomination.

Mayoralty Race in Gary.

Gary will nominate candidates for mayor, with R. C. Johnson, now serving his fourth term, opposed in the Republican primaries by John N. Holloway, "cleanup candidate," and others. Four business men, Isaac Bloom, L. B. Clayton, J. J. Kelly, and William Schroeder, are conceded equal chances for the Democratic nomination.

In Hammond the Republican mayor, Charles O. Schonert, has a strong opponent in City Treasurer Henry Heckler. Frank Martin, now township assessor, has the Democratic organization support. In East Chicago Frank Callahan, former mayor, is the leading Democratic contender and the Republican fight is between Mayor George Lewis and Treasurer Andrew Rooney. Mayor Thomas S. Boyle is a Democratic candidate to succeed himself in Whiting.

BLAST WRECKS POWER LINE, 5 TOWNS ARE DARK

Birmingham, Ala., May 7.—(AP)—Five towns in the coal mining section of Walker county were plunged into darkness tonight by an explosion that wrecked a high tension line of the Alabama Power company. A second heavy explosion was believed to have wrecked a Southern railway trestle between the coal valley mine of the Debardeleben Coal corporation and Oakman. Sherif A. N. Barrentine said he was unable to make a complete investigation until daylight.

Meanwhile Sherif Barrentine had appealed to Gen. J. C. Persons, commanding officer of the Alabama National Guard, for troop protection.

The damage to the transmission line left the towns of Parish, Coal Valley, Berry, Fayette, Bankstown, and the mines at Coal Valley and Townley without electric service.

The Debardeleben Coal corporation is one of the two major companies of the district that has not signed an agreement with the United Mine Workers of America.

ERNEST BLUNK.

DILLINGER TIPOFF MAN IN EAST TO VISIT ROOSEVELT

Washington, D. C., May 7.—(AP)—Emil Wannatka, proprietor of the Little Bohemia lodge at Spider lake, Wis., where John Dillinger fought it out with federal agents, is in town to see President Roosevelt.

"I was the chairman of the committee which gave the ball for the Warm Springs foundation back home," he said in explaining that chairmen of the committees which assisted in obtaining funds for the foundation had been invited to call at the White House.

Although he stopped at a hotel across the street from the department of justice the innkeeper said he did not plan to call there.

RECOVERS PURSE AND VALUABLES MINUS $120 CASH

Professor Andrew M. Bosman of Johannesburg, South Africa, who with his wife is spending a few days here to see the World's Fair city, while shopping last Saturday lost his purse containing $120 in currency, a letter of credit for $5,000, steamship and railroad tickets and other valuable papers. Yesterday his purse was returned to him with only the currency missing. His rifled pocketbook was found by Mack Ladin, 1644 Pratt boulevard, a salesman, who read a want ad placed in THE TRIBUNE, and thus was able to locate the owner.

Blunk Waives Jury; Toy Gun Episode Retold.

The story of John Dillinger's "toy pistol" escape from the Lake county jail at Crown Point on last March 3 was related again from the witness stand yesterday as the trial of Ernest Blunk, finger print expert and deputy sherif, got under way before Judge Maurice Crites of East Chicago.

Blunk is accused of aiding in the escape of the notorious desperado, who is still eluding police and federal agents.

Waives Jury Trial.

Both defense and prosecution waived a jury. Judge William J. Murray, who normally sits in the Lake county court at Crown Point, disqualified himself for the trial, since Blunk is a county employé whom he sponsored for the position.

Lewis Baker, deputy sherif and warden of the jail, was the day's principal witness. He told how he himself had been locked in a cell by Dillinger in the course of the "toy gun" episode. The first indication that anything was wrong, Baker testified, came at about 9 o'clock in the morning when he heard his name being called from the corridor in the cell block.

Seized from Behind.

"A turnkey let me into the cell block corridor," Baker testified, "and I saw Blunk standing there alone. No one was near him. I walked toward him and said, 'What's the matter.' He didn't answer, but walked down the corridor just ahead of me."

Baker said he walked up to Blunk and at that moment was seized from behind.

"Some one thrust something against my side—it felt like the muzzle of a pistol. Then some one began feeling my pockets for weapons. I turned my head and saw it was Dillinger."

Some One Locks Cells.

Dillinger then led him to a cell and thrust him inside with seven trusties and two jail employés, Baker said. The lock of the cell is operated by a lever controling all the cells from the other end of the corridor.

"Dillinger couldn't have done that," Baker asserted, "because he was standing just in front of the cell all the time. It was some one else."

Under direct questions, Baker was unable to say whether Blunk had operated the locking lever, although he indicated that the defendant had every opportunity to do so.

There will be no session of court today due to the primary elections. The trial will be resumed on Wednesday.

Hal Smith, Ex-Mayor of Springfield, Dies

HARLOW BEREFT BUT BRAVE; EVEN CHAUFFEUR GONE

No Husband, Car, or Cameraman.

Hollywood, Cal., May 7.—[Special.]—Jean Harlow, platinum star of the movies, today was a woman bereft but brave. Her pet cameraman was gone, her most recent husband was living at his club, her negro chauffeur was in jail, and her automobile impounded.

The husband and the camerman are just one man. The jailing of the chauffeur and the impounding of the car were circumstances with which the blonde Jean had nothing to do, except suffer the consequences.

Jean announced yesterday that she and her husband, Hal G. Rosson, would be divorced. It has been only eight months since they flew to Yuma, Ariz., to be married, though they had met more than two years ago while Jean was acting in a picture which Rosson was filming. At that time she was the wife of Paul Bern, a director, who killed himself less than three months after he and Jean had been married. Hollywood always has wondered why.

Always Films Her Flickers.

Ever since their first picture, Rosson has filmed Miss Harlow's productions. They had been considered just good friends until the surprise wedding, after which Miss Harlow announced that she was "superbly happy."

Today Jean began work on a new picture at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios, but Rosson was nowhere in sight. It was learned that he was filming another elsewhere. Gossip said this had been arranged long ago, so that Jean would not be embarrassed by the presence of the man soon to be her ex-husband, but studio officials insisted today that it was just a coincidence. One of the many coincidences that keep bobbing up, apparently.

Jean's first husband was Charles F. McGrew II. of Chicago, to whom she was married under her real name of Harlean Carpenter at the age of 16. They were divorced four years later in 1929, on allegations by Jean of cruelty.

Rosson Married Before.

Rosson is 41, and also has been previously married and divorced.

Then today came the loss of her automobile and chauffeur. Clifford Davis, the chauffeur, was arrested and charged with an assortment of crimes enough to hang him, if they all be proved. He was called kidnaper, bandit, robber, beater of women, and assaulter of policemen.

The luxurious Harlow car driven by Davis was said to have crashed into Arthur Bain, a Beverly Hills motorcycle officer. The policeman was said to be have been hurled into a ditch by the collision, after which they said the Negro took Bain's revolver, put the injured man into the Harlow automobile, brandished the gun at Eli Goldson, and took from him a special deputy sherif's badge, a chain, and a locket.

Say He Struck Woman.

Besides all this, the police charge, Davis struck Mrs. Bruce Barnes, who had been attracted to the scene of the accident and robbery, and finally forced Mr. and Mrs. Al Jones into the actress' car and drove away with the Jones as prisoners.

Wilmington police, who stopped and arrested Davis, said they had to throw him to the roadway to subdue him.

Davis says that Bain's motorcycle struck a bump in the highway and the officer was thrown clear. He says he could get no one to help him put Bain into the Harlow car, so he used Bain's gun to compel assistance.

DIES OF OWN WOUND.

Joseph Nickovar, 35 years old, 1443 South Springfield avenue, died at the county hospital yesterday after he had shot himself in the right temple.

Dear Miss Hayes:—

There isn't any mystery about the exceptional smoothness of Old Golds. The whole credit belongs to Mother Nature, Father Time and his ally, Experience.

Old Gold tobacco is picked from the heart of the stalk, where Nature stores her richest tobacco fragrance and flavor. Then it is aged and mellowed at least thirty months. Then it is blended, for delightful mildness and taste appeal, by America's most experienced tobacconists (Est. 1760).

Such tobacco needs no artificial flavoring. And that's the FINAL reason why Old Golds are so easy on the throat; so cool and biteless.

Sincerely,

P. LORILLARD COMPANY, INC.
ESTABLISHED 1760

P. S.—The net of it is this, Miss Hayes: No better tobacco grows than is used in Old Gold. And it's pure. That's why Old Golds are easy on the THROAT and NERVES.

BREMER SECRETS TOLD AT HEARING FOR McLAUGHLIN

Kidnaping Details Related in Indictment.

The hearing on the government's effort to remove John J. [Boss] McLaughlin, his son, John Jr., and two alleged co-conspirators to St. Paul, where they are under indictment for complicity in the kidnaping of Edward G. Bremer, St. Paul banker, was continued until tomorrow afternoon by United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker yesterday after a day spent in legal wrangling.

At the same time hitherto undisclosed details of the kidnaping were revealed when the nine page indictment returned by a federal grand jury in St. Paul on May 4 and suppressed at that time was made public here.

Clashes Mark Hearing.

The others held on the removal proceedings with the McLaughlins here are Philip Delaney, former bartender, and William Vidler, ex-convict. All are charged with having in their possession part of the $200,000 ransom paid for Bremer's release.

Heated clashes occurred at the hearing between the federal government, represented by First Assistant United States District Attorney Leo J. Hassenaue, and Assistant Attorney General Joseph B. Keenan, in charge of criminal prosecutions for the attorney general's office, and the defense, represented by Attorney William C. Parrillo.

"There will be no removal to St. Paul if I can help it," Parrillo declared at the opening of the morning session. "The government asked a week's continuance at the first hearing and we didn't object. Now you bring an indictment and give us a chance to read it but no chance to plan a defense.

"Here my client has been pushed around by a lot of Keystone coppers masquerading as federal agents and I think I should be given a chance to defend him."

"The issue is a simple one," Keenan interjected.

Moves for Dismissal.

The defense moved for a dismissal of the proceedings on the grounds that insufficient evidence existed and that the defendants were not properly identified before the grand jury. Federal agents testified for the government that they had presented the evidence before the grand jury. Delaney was represented by Attorney John A. Pakenham and Vidler by Attorney George Bieber, who followed similar tactics.

Seven others in addition to those involved in the removal hearing are named in connection with the abduction, the indictment revealed. They are Alvin Karpavics, alias Karpis, and Arthur R. [Doc] Baker, ex-convicts from Oklahoma and members of the John Dillinger gang; Frankie Wright, Ray [Slim] Gray, alias "Mr. Smith," and one "Izzy," alias "Mr. Jones."

"Izzy," whose real name is unknown, was described as being 5 feet 9 inches in height, weighing between 165 and 170 pounds, between 45 and 50 years old and distinguishable by a pock marked face and a large nose.

Two "Doe" Names.

The other two are identified merely as "John Doe," described as 30 to 35 years old, 5 feet 8 inches in height, heavy build, and a light complexion; and one "Richard Roe," 40 years old, about 5 feet 10 inches in height, weighing about 165 pounds and having sandy hair.

It was the unknown men designated as John Doe and Richard Roe, the indictment revealed, who actually kidnaped Bremer as he halted his car for a stoplight on a St. Paul street on Jan. 17. They drove him to 1910 Edgecombe road, where he was placed in another car and taken to an unknown place in Wisconsin.

There, the indictment stated, he was forced to sign a dictated letter to Walter Magee of St. Paul directing that $200,000 ransom be paid. Karpavics entered the picture at this juncture, the indictment continued, when he purchased several flashlights and arranged them in the highway near Zumbrota, Minn., as a signal in accordance with instructions in the ransom letter.

Barker's Part in Crime.

Barker and several others whose identities were not revealed are named as the ones who returned Bremer from Wisconsin to Minnesota on Feb. 7 after the ransom had been paid. The indictment then skipped to April 26, when Vidler was arrested in Chicago with $2,265 of the alleged ransom money in his possession.

The following day young McLaughlin was taken into custody with $85 of the alleged ransom fund. Delaney, Wright, Gray, and the unknown "Izzy" are all charged with handling the ransom money.

Discrepancy Is Seen.

A discrepancy in the announcement made by Melvin Purvis, chief of the department of justice agents in Chicago that McLaughlin had confessed his alleged part in the transaction was seen in the fact that the indictment failed to state what amount the elder McLaughlin was alleged to have had when he was arrested April 17.

McLaughlin, ex-legislator and former Democratic leader, discussed his case while awaiting arraignment before the commissioner while his wife sat weeping on the other side of the detention cell bars. He again denied that he had made any confession.

"It looks like I'm in for a railroading. Delaney told lies to the investigators in the hope of protecting me. I'm more concerned about Jack [McLaughlin's son]. I'm willing to take it."

Give City a Whirl

Connie Le Gard of Muskegon, Michigan's newly elected blossom queen and her court of 28 of the state's fairest young women, took two days off from presiding over the annual Blossom week festival in Benton Harbor and St. Joseph yesterday to take a whirl about Chicago. Tonight the party will return to be in readiness for the annual coronation ball tomorrow night.

The Michigan beauties, with four chaperones and a secretary, arrived by bus at 10 a. m. and immediately were taken to the House on the Roof at Hotel Sherman. After luncheon they boarded the bus again and visited the Michigan booth at the Boat and Sports show at Navy pier. Later they called on Mayor Kelly, returned to the hotel for dinner, attended the early show at the Palace theater, and ended the day's crowded program by broadcasting at the NBC studios.

Among the many events planned for today will be a trip to the Tribune Tower this afternoon to get a glimpse of the city towers from THE TRIBUNE pinnacle.

WILLETTS REACH FINANCE PACT; DIVORCE TODAY

$17,500 Income a Year Fixed.

Mrs. Grace Williamson Willett, 2130 Lincoln Park West, and her estranged husband, Howard L. Willett, head of a trucking company, have signed an agreement which will give her $17,500 a year, and she is expected to receive her divorce this morning, Judge Rudolph Desort of the Superior court indicated late yesterday.

Judge Desort explained that attorneys for the Willetts, whom he had ordered to reach an immediate agreement on their financial difficulties or proceed with Mrs. Willett's separate maintenance suit, had informed him the settlement, except for a separate contract regarding insurance, had been signed by the couple.

Provides $17,500 a Year.

The agreement, which provides Mrs. Willett with the guaranteed income of $17,500 a year for five years and sets up a trust fund which will yield her approximately that income for the rest of her life, was outlined in the original marital troubles of the Willetts last March 10.

She testified at that time at length concerning the hardships of living on $918 a month, which had been allowed her by her husband since January, 1933.

Other terms of the agreement specified that Mrs. Willett would amend her separate maintenance suit to one for divorce, which is expected to be done this morning, after which Mrs. Willett will give routine testimony to substantiate her charge of desertion, Judge Desort indicated.

Insurance Contract Unsigned.

Attorney Benjamin B. Davis of the law firm of Socrates, Davis & Cohen represents Mrs. Willett. Attorney Jay Fred Reeve of the firm of Kirkland, Fleming, Green & Martin represents Willett.

Although the agreement has been signed, according to Judge Desort, a separate contract regarding the proposed insurance trust of $100,000 which will provide part of Mrs. Willett's income, remains to be signed. That probably will be effected this morning, although it may delay the final steps in the case another day, Attorney Davis said.

WOUNDS WOMAN AND KILLS SELF AS WIFE LIES ILL

While his wife, Jeanette, a French war bride, lay ill in another room of their home at 6352 Cottage Grove avenue, Charles Rix, 34, an electrician, put an end last night to an alleged affair with another woman. He shot and seriously wounded the woman—Mrs. Margaret [Peggy] Worthy, 24, of 6346 Stewart avenue, a divorcée—and then shot and killed himself.

Mrs. Rix had been brought home from a hospital yesterday, following an operation. She was in her room last night when Mrs. Worthy arrived in response to Rix's summons. They began quarreling, acording to reports to police, and Mrs. Worthy told Rix she was through with him. The shooting followed. Mrs. Worthy was taken to the Billings hospital.

Boris Rapoport, 127 East Marquette road, a collector for the National Petroleum corporation, was held up yesterday at Chicago and North Central avenues by two men who forced his car to the curb and robbed him of $541.

ARABIAN RULER RALLIES ARMY TO DEFEND CAPITAL

Ready to Stem Advance of King Ibn Saud.

ADEN, Arabia, May 7.—(AP)—The army of the Imam of Yemen, rallying for the defense of Sana, the capitol city, converged on it from two directions today, indicating that the advancing King Ibn Saud has not yet won a decisive victory in that district although the Port City of Hodeida has fallen.

The Yemeni northern army is reported as still active and concentrating in large numbers on Sana while the other Yemeni force is moving in following its defeat at Hodeida.

Battle Between Sons.

CAIRO, Egypt, May 7.—(AP)—A battle between the fighting sons of two fierce Arabian fathers — with the throne of Yemen as the prize—may bring a dramatic end to the war between Yemen and Saudi Arabia.

This climax was forecast today as the 29 year old Emir Feisal, leading the conquering army of his father, King Ibn Saud of Saudi Arabia, forged through mountain passes toward Sana, ancient walled capital of Yemen.

Reports said King Ibn Saud intends to place the prince, also known as Ibn-Abdoul-Aziz-Ibn-Saud, upon the throne of Yemen if he wins Sana.

But, around the old city Yemini forces under the command of Seif Al Islam, heir of the Iman Yahya, ruler of Yemen, are ready for a desperate defense.

Civilians Take Up Arms.

Civilians were drafted for duty from the frightened population of some 25,000 persons in the historic Yemen capital situated in a valley 7,200 feet above the sea and enclosed by brick walls five and one-half miles in circumference.

Sana, without the throne of all Yemen, would be prize enough for the Saudians, with its richly decorated mosques, caravan series, public baths and industries comprising manufactures of arms, jewelry, mantels and silks.

The Emir Seif Al Islam rushed to Sana from Migran to lead the city's defenders. He had retreated to Migran from Hodeida, Yemen's principal Red sea port, after its collapse.

It was reported from the war zone today that dissension had developed among the Iman of Yemen's government advisers. The Imam Yahya, it was said, was crying for peace, while his warlike son favored fighting to the bitter end. The son was believed to have the larger following.

County Employes to Get Two Weeks' Pay Today

Payment of salaries for the first half of February to county employés will be started today, it was announced by County Treasurer Thomas D. Nash. In addition, the county will pay $118,000 in blind pensions, $70,000 in mothers' pensions, and $70,000 in jurors' fees for last August, making a total, with the salaries, of $608,000 to be paid out.

New Hope for Teachers's Pay Is Found in N. Y. Financing

BY WILLIAM FULTON.

Representatives of New York financial interests stepped into Chicago's municipal financing problems yesterday. It was said that with the growing improvement in Chicago's credit investment houses in the east have become interested in a purchase of the school board's $40,000,000 bond issue and of $10,000,000 worth of bonds held in the city's aggregate of funds.

The easterners were expert accountants from Blyth & Co. and Pressprich & Co. of New York City, houses dealing in municipal securities and maintaining branches in the large cities of the country. Assisted by municipal auditors, the accountants pored over the books of the city and the board of education throughout the day.

City Controler Upham said he had not been consulted as to the purpose of the information requested by the New Yorkers. He pointed out, however, several developments that might impel investment houses to enter Chicago's municipal securities market.

City's Credit Improved.

The city's credit has been materially strengthened, Mr. Upham said, through the economies effected by Mayor Kelly and his appointee, James B. McCahey, president of the school board. He pointed out that the floating and bonded debt of the city and Cook county municipalities had been reduced by 44 million dollars. In addition the bonds offered by the city and school board are tax exempt securities.

If either the city's or school board's bonds could be sold the cash receipts could immediately be turned into pay checks for employés. If all the bonds were sold the two governments could clean up all back pay rolls and be ahead in funds. Mr. Upham will meet with Chicago bankers today to discuss the bond situation.

As an indication of the improved municipal credit situation, Mr. Upham pointed to yesterday's quotations on tax warrants of the school board's educational fund. On 1933 warants of $100 these quotations were 96½ bid and 98 asked, according to Enyart, Van Camp & Feil, brokerage house doing business in municipal securities. With 1932 taxes in collection, the quotations on 1932 warants were 99½ bid and 100 asked.

Another development in the effort to pay the teachers was an announcement that Richard S. Folsom, school board attorney, would leave for Washington today in the interest of the plan to sell the school bond issue to the federal government.

The plan, devised by Mayor Kelly, contemplates pledging to the government $30,000,000 worth of school property that is not used for educational purposes as additional security. A bill authorizing the Reconstruction Finance corporation to make the bond purchase on this basis is pending before congress.

Mr. Folsom expressed optimism over the plan. He declared that the mayor's proposal had been steadily gaining ground in congress and that Jesse H. Jones, head of the RFC, is in favor of lending the money to the Chicago schools if the proper authority is granted.

Hope to Sell Warants.

More immediate prospects of a pay day for teachers and other employés in the school system depend on the sale of 1934 tax warants. The 1934 educational fund tax levy is $43,000,000 and warants up to the statutory limit of 75 per cent, or $32,250,000, can be issued by the board. Of this amount warants to a total of $2,750,000 have been issued for pay days, leaving a borrowing power of $29,500,000 for this year.

Chicago bankers have objected to a purchase of the full amount of the warants remaining on the ground that interest charges would make an 87 per cent collection of taxes necessary for redemption of the obligations. The school trustees have replied that no one knows what the 1934 collection of taxes will be and that the board, through recent legislation, is empowered to exchange bonds for warants that are delinquent for more than a year.

While school trustees and officials wrestled with the pay problem. the teachers and their half million pupils went back to school yesterday after a week's spring vacation. The children returned for a windup of their studies. The school year ends June 15. Summer schools will start June 18.

GERMANY TRIES EX-CABINET MAN ON GRAFT CHARGE

BERLIN, May 7.—(AP)—Criminal proceedings were started today against Andreas Hermes, former federal minister of economy, on charges of diverting public funds to the so-called German Christian Farmers' league of which he was president.

Hermes, a member of the Catholic Centrist party, was once the director of the German section of the International Institute of Agriculture in Rome.

He was arrested when the Nazis came into power and, after spending five months in jail, was released pending a further investigation that resulted in his arraignment.

DIES IN FALL AT HOME.

John Ryan, 48 years old, 4120 North Parkside avenue, an electrician employed by the city, was fatally injured late Sunday night when he fell on the basement steps at his home and fractured his skull.

Poses as Rental Prospect, Robs Manager of Her $500

Posing as a prospective tenant, a bandit secured entrance to the apartment of Mrs. Joseph Leingruber, 42 years old, manager of the apartment building at 1800 Juneway terrace, yesterday, and robbed her of $500. Holding a gun against her head, the intruder forced Mrs. Leingruber to reveal the hiding place of her money. He bound and gagged her before he fled.

GERMAN POLICE HELP FOIL PLAN TO KILL DOLLFUSS

Austria Arrests 17 Year Old Assassin.

VIENNA, May 7.—(AP)—A plan to assassinate Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss of Austria was frustrated by the combined forces of German and Austrian police, it was revealed tonight.

The Germant government, through the Austrian legation in Berlin and the German legation here, notified the Austrian authorities to watch out for 17-year-old Hans Guenther Patzig, who allegedly left Dresden May 5 with a plan to cross the Austrian border and assassinate the chancellor.

Fires at Officials.

The Austrian gendarmerie arrested the youth near Lenz last midnight after he had escaped from armed police earlier by firing two shots at officials.

He was said by police to have confessed crossing the border with the intention of "fighting for the Austrian people."

The whole Vienna fire department was called out tonight to extinguish a huge flaming Nazi swastika emblem ignited atop a building housing the Fascist heimwehr headquarters. The incident created great excitement.

Earlier in the day, the Rossauer military barracks and a café were damaged in the fifth bomb explosion in this capital since Saturday.

Two Hurt in Blast.

Two persons in the café, which is near police headquarters, were injured by the explosion which blew out 14 large windows. The damage to the barracks was greater but there was no report of casualties. Two suspects were arrested.

Hermann Foppa, Pan-German leader, who outspokenly objected to the last session of parliament—at which the new constitution was approved—for want of a quorum, will be sent to a concentration camp at Woellersdorf, it was learned today.

Meanwhile, a motorcycle squadron of Italian facists, returning to Italy after visiting Vienna and Budapest, encountered hostile highways.

Austrian roads were so thickly strewn with tacks that the squadron was 12 hours late in arriving at Graz after repairing hundreds of punctures.

Reports circulated in Graz, that the Italians had to shoot their way through several towns, could not be verfied.

FIGHT PROPOSED REDUCTIONS OF TAX PENALTIES

TAX COLLECTIONS.

Real estate tax collections yesterday, including those for 1932, were $322,252, making a total of $168,971,500 collected since enforcement of the Kerner-Skarda act began April 28, 1932. The day's collections of real estate taxes and the uncollected taxes for the four years follow:

May 7..........$	9,804	$ 23,957
Uncollected ...	14,418,056	36,936,973

	1930	1931
May 7..........$	45,045	$ 90,966
Uncollected ...	62,257,423	55,860,277

The day's collection of 1932 real estate taxes totaled $152,560 and of 1932 personal property taxes $3,743.

Strong opposition was voiced by county board members yesterday to the proposed legislation sponsored by the Chicago Recovery administration, which would cut the penalty on delinquent real estate taxes for 1931 and prior years, from one per cent a month, to one-half of one per cent.

A total of some $200,000,000 in back taxes is affected.

Newton C. Farr, chairman of the recovery group, appeared before the board, asking its endorsement of the bill which is now being drafted for submission to the legislature, by his organization.

"To endorse this bill would mean that the county board is voting to reduce its own source of income," said Deputy Controler Michael J. O'Connor.

"Such a bill would work a great injustice on those persons who have already paid their back taxes and penalties in full," added Commissioner Grace Fleming.

Mr. Farr defended the measure on the grounds that it would prove a benefit to income producing properties which were hard pressed to meet expenses during the depression years. After some discussion, he agreed to present a completed copy of the proposed measure to the board as soon as the draft is finished.

JAPANESE NAVAL LEADER PRAISES HITLER REGIME

BERLIN, May 7.—(AP)—Japanese sympathy with Nazi Germany was voiced by Admiral Matusita, commander of the Japanese training squadron now in the Mediterranean, when he and his staf reached Berlin today enroute to London.

"We Japanese follow the developments in Germany with great interest and pleasure," said the admiral. "In Japan we have movements very similar to national socialism. We are very close to Germany in spirit. Not only the Japanese navy but also the Japanese people would all like to visit here I am sure."

The Japanese officers are being fêted by naval authorities and were received by President Von Hindenburg today. Chancellor Hitler will receive them tomorrow.

BLAMES FOULOIS, CLEARS WOODRING IN AIRPLANE ROW

Report to Congress Urges Corps Cleanup.

Washington, D. C., May 7.—(AP)—Thorough reorganization in the administration of the army air corps was proposed by house members today.

A subcommittee reported that Maj. Gen. Benjamin Foulois, chief of that corps, had violated the law governing contract letting.

Representative Rogers [Dem., N. H.], who presented the report, told reporters later in suggesting the reorganization:

"From the evidence already submitted it is readily seen that a proper cleanup may result in some requests for court martial and a definite change in the policy which has been followed by the chief of the air corps in conjunction with Wright field.

"Evasion of the true intent of the 1926 law is so apparent that both in the interests of the taxpayers and efficient aviation it is obvious that a radical change must be made at an early date."

The committee report dealt with $7,500,000 of public works funds set aside for the purchase of army airplanes.

Committee Clears Woodring.

It concluded with these words:

"Your subcommittee finds unanimously that every action taken in connection with this $7,500,000 allotment by Assistant Secretary of War Woodring was deemed by him required and fully justified, while the actions of the chief of the air corps, Maj. Gen. Benjamin D. Foulois, are in our opinion and in the opinions of the judge advocate general of the army and the controler general of the United States in clear violation of existing law."

The committee report held, and quoted the judge advocate general of the army and the controler general in substantiation, that the 1926 aircraft act required that army airplanes be purchased in quantities only after competitive bidding.

The report said after the $7,500,000 allotment was obtained Gen. Foulois arranged to buy, without competition, 35 attack planes from the Northrup corporation, 30 pursuit planes from the Boeing Airplane company, and 55 bombers from the Glenn L. Martin company.

Says Woodring Demanded Bids.

At this point, the committee said, Harry H. Woodring stepped in, insisting he would not approve purchases without competitive bids first.

Consequently, specifications were drawn and submitted to the industry for bids, but these were held by the judge advocate general to be noncompetitive and illegal, because they gave bidders no indication of what factors would be considered in selecting the successful bidder.

The committee quoted at length from an advisory report by J. R. McCarl, the controller general criticizing the specifications because they made it possible to purchase only planes of a type previously tested by the army or navy. That stipulation, he said, might prevent rapid aviation development and could have been inserted only for the purpose of seeing that the planes were purchased from certain concerns.

CRIMINAL COURT SETS RECORD FOR SPEED IN APRIL

The number of indictments undisposed of at the end of the April term of the Criminal court was the lowest within the past decade, John Manis, call clerk, reported yesterday to Chief Justice Philip J. Finnegan.

A total of 581 indictments were pending on May 1 as against 710 pending on April 1. During the month 451 indictments were disposed of, while only 304 were returned.

Judge Finnegan said that approximately 18 indictments are disposed of daily. He expressed satisfaction with the progress made by the Criminal court judges in catching up with the court call.

miles more than the southern track, which goes by way of Albuquerque, Kansas City, and Columbus.

The flight began at 12:20 a. m., Pacific time, and was completed at 5:28 p. m., eastern standard time. As far as Cheyenne a Martin B-10 bomber, piloted by Lieut. Robert L. Schoenlein, was used, and the average speed was 198 miles an hour, including time out for the stop at Salt Lake.

On the next leg of the flight, from Cheyenne to Omaha, Lieut. C. C. Rodgers used a 1-12 pursuit ship and averaged 161 miles an hour against head winds. At Omaha Capt. John D. Corkille took the controls to Chicago.

Switch at Chicago.

At Chicago Second Lieut. Murl Estes turned to a Martin bomber again, and at Cleveland Lieut. Elwood R. Quesada, one of the veterans of the corps and chief pilot of the Newark-Cleveland run, took the stick. For Quesada it was by way of being a personal triumph. It was Quesada who sat at the controls of the army's first mail plane out of Newark for the west on Feb. 20.

Quesada today, favored by fine weather, brought his ship in from Cleveland in 1 hour and 38 minutes, the army claiming a new record, three minutes under the one hung up last fall by Sid Nelson of the United Air Lines.

PRINTED LIQUOR RULES SURPRISE EVEN AUTHORS!

Members of the Illinois liquor control commission expressed surprise yesterday when they received printed copies of the rules set up jointly by the commission and the state department of finance to guide the liquor industry of the state. Changes had been made, they said, apparently by some one in the finance department, in the text that had been agreed upon by the commission.

Angostura and other types of bitters are placed in the class of nonbeverage alcoholic preparations on which no tax need be paid. This was contrary to the commission's recommendation, which had called for a tax on bitters, the commission intending to prohibit any persons, who were unable to obtain a liquor license, from engaging illegally in the liquor business under the guise of operating a "bitters" store.

CANVASS MILK ROUTE FOR CLEW IN DRIVER'S DEATH

In an effort to learn the motive for the slaying of Samuel Cornfield, 30 years old, 1949 East 78th street, driver for the Bowman Dairy company, who was shot and killed early yesterday morning in the alley in the rear of 6223 Woodlawn avenue, Capt. Daniel Lynch of the Woodlawn station last night ordered a canvass made of Cornfield's route.

Cornfield is the father of two children, Marlowe, 6 years old, and Isabel, 3 years old. Mrs. Fannie Cornfield, his wife, told the police that during the eight years of their married life he had been a devoted husband. She discounted a police theory that an affair with another woman was responsible for the slaying.

Morris Hoffman, the slain man's father-in-law, told the police that Cornfield mentioned that he was in trouble because he had taken several customers from an independent milk company.

With More LIVE POWER per gallon

. . . you keep on getting the performance which was carefully built into your car!

Those five simple words—"more live power per gallon"—accurately describe what Standard's refining engineers have accomplished. The new responsiveness in Standard Red Crown Superfuel is brought about in the refining: heavy, slower parts of this gasoline, which most motorists considered just about perfect already, are now transformed into lighter, faster-acting units—in other words, into more Live Power.

By regulation in the control rooms at Standard Oil refineries, heavy parts of already excellent gasoline are converted into fast-acting units—in other words, into responsive live power!

Naturally, this means that you will find it easier to get a jump ahead at the light and to reach the higher speed brackets on your speedometer when you hit a clear stretch of concrete. It also means adequate reserve power to take tough hills in stride.

But increased engine response and speed is far from being the only advantage. The added live power in this gasoline definitely means lower operating cost for those who like to take it easy—who enjoy long, leisurely drives at minimum cost.

Nothing is quite so convincing as action. Hence we ask only one thing for Standard Red Crown Superfuel—a trial! It's ready to show you what it can do for your motor. Try it!

FOR SWIFTER PICKUP: Just as the African Impala hits amazing top-speed in a flash, this responsive live power in Standard's new Superfuel gets you away ahead of the pack.

FOR HIGHER TOP SPEED: Like the Koodoo Antelope which fairly splits the air when he decides to go places, Superfuel's new live power makes it easy to reach the top-speed built into your car.

FOR HARD CLIMBING: Extra live power enables the Rocky Mountain Goat to fight his way up seemingly impossible slopes... precisely as Superfuel delivers its reserve of live power to meet stiff grades.

FOR LONGER MILEAGE: With Bison-like stamina, Superfuel keeps the miles rolling beneath in day-long driving—with real fuel economy.

FLAMES AND GAS KILL 87 MEN IN GERMAN MINE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MUELLHEIM, Baden, Germany, May 7.—Eighty-seven miners were killed today when fire and gases swept the potash mine at Buggingen. The victims were trapped at their work.

The fire was caused by a falling timber, which cut an electric cable, causing a short circuit in a gallery 2,500 feet below ground. A 20 foot flame set the wood on fire and the air current drove the smoke and flames down the gallery where the men were working.

One Miner Brought Out; Dies.

One hundred and fifty miners started in the morning shift. The eighty-seven victims were gathered in the affected gallery. One miner was carried out, but was so badly burned and poisoned with carbonic gas that he died shortly after being brought to the surface.

Six rescue squad workers were overcome by smoke and gas and are now in the Buggingen hospital. Authorities sealed the mine tonight in an attempt to halt the blaze.

An attempt to pump oxygen to the imprisoned workmen inadvertently added to the certainty of their doom when the oxygen caused the generated gas to ignite.

Relatives at Mine Head.

In horror, the residents of this village rushed to the mine head when billowing white smoke emerged from the shaft, indicating that the diggings had become a place of torture.

Tonight relatives of the trapped workers kept silent vigil at the mine. The officials said the miners possibly retreated from the flames and were suffocated.

Doctors and ambulances also are waiting at the shaft, although the certainty of death for all below was conceded early, thereby relieving the usual suspense of a mine disaster.

Police Guard Shaft.

Roads to Muellheim, located in the hills near the French border, were jammed with curious persons who came to join the saddened families of the miners. They came in many kinds of vehicles. Police have thrown a strong guard about the shaft.

Gov. Robert Wagner of Baden and Premier Walter Koehler flew from Karlsruhe to Freiburg. From there they motored to the pit. The officials started the first relief measure for relatives of the victims.

5 BUILDINGS BURN IN HALF MILLION FIRE AT FACTORY

Lyndhurst, N. J., May 7.—[AP.]—A spectacular fire which started in a warehouse of the United Cork company's plant caused damage today estimated at $500,000.

Charles Gardee, an official of the cork company, said the United's loss probably had reached $300,000 and E. E. Mussell, secretary-treasurer of the J. H. Lehmann Machine company, estimated his concern's loss at $200,000.

Firemen from 13 neighboring municipalities gained the upper hand shortly after 2 P. M. and were confident of preventing the blaze from spreading to other nearby factories and residences.

The Lehmann plant was destroyed, along with three of the seven cork company buildings. Another United structure was badly damaged and some 20 piles of cork, each over 25 feet high, were burning furiously late this afternoon.

87 KILLED IN MINE.

Arrow on map points to Muellheim, in Baden, Germany, near which is Buggingen, where 87 miners were killed by fire and gases yesterday. The fire was caused by a falling timber which cut an electric cable, causing a short circuit 2,500 feet below ground.

CONGRESS REVOLT SIMMERS OVER CASH FOR ICKES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 7.—[Special.]—A hint of congressional rebellion against the administration public works program was heard on the floor of the house today during a colloquy between influential members of the appropriations committee.

Last year congress voted Secretary of Interior Harold Ickes carte blanche over the 3 billion dollar public works fund. But since then there has developed a strong sentiment against granting him such powers. Indications are that congress intends to reserve to itself its constitutional right to scrutinize all expenditures.

Chairman James P. Buchanan, [Dem., Tex.], of the appropriations committee put the sentiment into words during an exchange with Representative Ed W. Gross, [Rep., Conn.], today just before the house voted 230 to 0 to abolish all so-called "permanent appropriations from the treasury."

Did not Mr. Gross think, asked Representative Buchanan, that it would be a good thing to earmark every appropriation so that not a dollar could be spent unless it was sanctioned by congress? Mr. Gross replied most heartily that he thought it was.

PRESIDENT WILL MAKE NEW DRIVE FOR WAR DEBTS

Congress Soon to Hear of Plan.

United States viewpoint was indicated today by high governmental officials.

In a private conversation they said no recent negotiations, "direct or indirect," had been undertaken in the matter, that the fourth French default seemed certain, and that the "situation is more confused than ever."

They added, however, that a message is expected from the American executive and that Foreign Minister Louis Barthou expressed the latest French attitude in an address Saturday when he declared, "It is the mission of our statesmen . . . to apply all of their resources, devotion, intelligence, reason, and heart to sweep away all obstacles and misunderstandings."

To all appearances, it was said, the viewpoint of the chamber of deputies remains unchanged from the one prevailing more than a year ago, when Edouard Herriot, champion of debts payments, was overthrown as premier.

The French war debt to the United States totals $3,960,772,238. The instalment due June 15 is $59,000,218.

Any American clarification is not expected in time to affect the June instalment, the officials said, adding that if token payments are no longer acceptable nothing can be done until a new and final settlement is reached, probably after long conversations.

France expects to negotiate for a settlement of the American war debt problem after other countries, especially Great Britain, come to terms with the United States, it was indicated tonight in high French circles.

This country, they said, awaits a downward revision of the British debt so France can claim like treatment. The French want the obligation scaled down 90 per cent because German reparations were cut to 10 cents on the dollar.

"The French positions on debts and reparations are inseparably linked and remain unchanged," it was said.

Britain Plans Token Payment.

LONDON, May 7.—(AP)—Great Britain plans to make another token payment in June on her war debts to the United States, but is hopeful that President Roosevelt will submit a new plan for a final settlement of the question before then.

It was officially and emphatically denied today that there have been to the present any British proposals or any sort of diplomatic negotiations in reference to the matter.

Interest Stirred in Italy.

ROME, May 7.—(AP)—Interest in the war debt question was revived in government circles today, with the hope uppermost that Italy will have the first opportunity for discussion of payments after the expected settlement of the United States with Finland.

The extent to which Italy is ready to go if opportunity for a new form of settlement is presented was not clear. It is not believed the government at present would be able to offer much in the way of cash.

Premier Mussolini, it is known, still holds personally to the view that debts and reparations should be forgotten and that the world should start with a "clean slate" to improve conditions generally.

British Jobless Show New Drop of 53,382 for April

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 7.—The total of British unemployed continues to decrease. The ministry of labor statistics issued tonight show that on April 23 the jobless totaled 2,148,195, representing a decrease of 53,382 compared with the previous month and 549,439 less than a year ago.

They Hit It With Everything But a BUZZ SAW!

Fast new cars, on smooth straight roads, put a new strain on tire treads —and the "G-3" meets it by keeping its safe, sure grip 43% longer

"Battle Royal" Knocks Out Brakes on Test Cars, But Proves New Tread a Winner—43% Longer Non-Skid Mileage

IT was a great fight. First, the engineers put new tread designs up against sandpaper made from sharp-cutting granite grit mounted on high-speed "grindstones". Then followed grinding road tests. When the new "G-3" Goodyear Tread showed it could take it better than any tread the engineers had ever seen, they equipped the Goodyear test cars.

And how they mauled "G-3"! Brakes "went out" in 8 hours, had to be relined every 72. Day and night the "G-3" test tires were scuffed, dragged, and mauled. They wracked the cars, but "G-3" kept right on rolling.

When the tests were over, we knew we had the answer to a puzzling problem that had to be faced by the tire industry. Treads were wearing out too fast—all well-known makes, even ours. The new, modern automobiles with flashy starts, snap stops, and high speeds were giving tires harder wear than ever before.

"G-3" proved to be exactly what we wanted—a tire retaining all the advantages of the famous All-Weather Tread for safe, quick stops on smooth highways—but improved to modern needs.

See "G-3" at your Goodyear Dealer's. The tread may appear familiar. But look closer and check every one of these facts:

It is wider — 5½% more road contact

THE NEW GOODYEAR "G-3"

"... 'G-3' showed it could take it better than any tread the engineers had ever seen"

It is firmer — the non-skid blocks are nested closer; ribs are 11½% wider; grooves are narrower; there's more rubber in the tread
It is stronger — the tread "squirms" less under pressure; "heel-and-toe" wear and "cupping" are reduced 50%

The Result—43% Longer Non-Skid Mileage!

Frankly, such a marvelous improvement in an already-famous tire would have been impossible without Supertwist. This is the patented Goodyear cord fabric, you know, the fabric that has extra strength, extra elasticity, extra durability. For, with a wider tread, there is increased sidewall strain, and Supertwist takes this without the slightest trouble.

When you can get a tread like this "G-3" All-Weather and know that it has under it the matchless strength of Supertwist, will you be satisfied with anything less?

See the "G-3" All-Weather. Keep yourself up-to-date on how good tires are being made these days. It costs more to build—but nothing extra to buy.

WOMAN KILLED AS AUTO LEAVES ROAD, HITS TREE

Bicycle Rider Fatally Hurt in Another Crash.

Mrs. Anna Smith, 65 years old, 7828 Loomis street, was fatally injured yesterday when an automobile in which she was riding left the Fox River road, two miles north of St. Charles, and crashed against a tree. Her nephew, John Burke, 26, of 6228 South Honoré street, who was driving, received minor bruises and scratches.

Sherif Harry Crawford of Kane county held Burke for the inquest last night. A verdict that the crash was accidental resulted in Burke's release.

Bicycle Rider Killed.

William Bloom, 55 years old, 2924 North Kilbourn avenue, was fatally injured yesterday when he rode his bicycle into the side of an automobile at East 26th street and South Parkway. Herbert Wilson, 6020 Drexel avenue, was the driver of the car. In Bloom's cap was found $281. Police began a search for his relatives.

After a coroner's jury at an inquest yesterday had exonerated Bernard Dziakdzic, 22 years old, 1720 West Erie street, of the death of Mrs. Mary Borrisch, 45 years old, 2347 Walton street, who was struck and killed last Saturday night when Dziakdzic's automobile skidded over the sidewalk at Augusta boulevard and North Leavitt street, the police of the West North avenue station rearrested him and charged him with manslaughter. He will be arraigned in the Felony court today. Two companions who were with him were freed.

Orders Driver Held.

A coroner's jury investigating the death of Arthur Durkin, 19 years old, 3028 Arthington street, who was fatally injured in an automobile accident last month, yesterday recommended that George Ryland, 24 years old, be held to the grand jury. Durkin was a passenger in Ryland's automobile when the latter crashed into another automobile. Ryland is a member of the Civilian Conservation corps at Fort Sheridan. The jury found that Ryland had been speeding and disregarding traffic signals at the time of the collision.

The death of Bloom and three others brought the Cook county motor toll yesterday to 410. The other deaths were:

Joseph Basica, 57 years old, living in a relief shelter at 1310 South Ashland avenue. Died in the county hospital yesterday of injuries received Saturday when he was struck by an automobile at Loomis and West Adams street. Charles Miller, 3418 5th avenue, driver of the car, was not held.

Leslie Gorman, 21 years old, 4629 Armitage avenue, an ice cream vendor. Killed yesterday when he was struck by an automobile while crossing the street at Peterson and Lincoln avenues. Gustave Knoblick, 30 years old, 956 North Kildare avenue, driver of the car, was held by Summerdale police.

August Hansen, 53 years old, 3335 Palmer street. Died early today in the Lutheran Memorial hospital of injuries suffered last night when he was struck at Humboldt boulevard and Bloomingdale road by an automobile driven by John Shubeck, 46, of 2727 Monticello avenue.

CCC CAMP UNDER QUARANTINE AT WILLOW SPRINGS

The Civilian Conservation Corps camp at Keane and Archer avenues in Willow Springs was placed under quarantine yesterday, following the appearance of five cases of scarlet fever and thirteen cases of measles among the workers.

One of the barracks buildings at the camp has been turned into a hospital for the isolation of the cases, and the remainder of the 194 men in the camp are confined to the grounds. All work on the Forest Preserve projects has been halted.

D. F. KELLY HEADS FUND CAMPAIGN TO PUBLICIZE FAIR

Mayor Kelly, general chairman of the Keep Chicago Ahead committee, yesterday appointed D. F. Kelly chairman of the finance committee which will be in charge of the campaign to raise $500,000 to stimulate interest in the 1934 A Century of Progress Exposition.

Other members of the committee are D. A. Crawford, E. G. Seubert, Fred W. Sargent and Stuyvesant Peabody. The committee already has raised a considerable portion of the fund, and efforts to further the publicity campaign have been under way for several weeks.

In addition to the advertising of the Fair the general committee will publicize the attractions of Chicago itself as a vacationland. Among the features stressed in newspaper, radio, and billboard advertising are the parks, miles of fine boulevards, a summer theatrical season, and a summer resort weather with the shores of Lake Michigan adding the final resort touch.

Thousands Buy

Thousands of Chicagoans exchanged coins for shield shaped lavender tags yesterday and thus benefited the dependent aged people in thirty-eight charitable institutions. Five thousand women stationed at all busy street corners in the city sold the tags for the Chicago Federation of Aged and Adult Charities, one of the four official tag day organizations allowed in the city code to hold a city-wide tag day.

Although counting the day's receipts had not been completed at the First National bank at a late hour, Mrs. A. H. Brumback, president of the federation, expressed her appreciation for the generous response to the tag day appeal.

COLLECT LILACS HERE THIS WEEK TO CHEER LONELY

Suburban Railways, State Clubs Co-operate.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Spurred into early blooming by recent hot weather, hundreds of lilac bushes are expected to burst into full blossom in Chicago and suburbs in the next few days. Home owners and gardeners will be asked to clip spare lilacs early Thursday and Friday and send them to the terminal railroad stations of the city, where they are to be collected and sent to rooms of the sick, poor and lonely of the city.

An Annual Custom

Thursday and Friday of this week have been officially designated as Lilac days in Chicagoland. This annual custom of "share your flowers" is being sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE in coöperation with the Chicago Plant, Flower and Fruit guild. Suburban railroads of the city and the Garden Club of Illinois are coöperating.

The guild sees that the flowers are distributed in the sick wards, in the rooms for charity patients and in settlement houses, where flowers are rarely seen.

Mrs. Euclid Snow of Hinsdale, president of the Garden Club of Illinois, yesterday wrote presidents of 140 garden clubs of the state, asking for aid.

Details Completed

According to T. V. Purcell, president, members of the guild, early Thursday and Friday will be at booths in the railroad stations to water and sort the in coming blossoms, which will then be hastened in trucks and cars to their destinations.

CUSTOMS WAIVER ON FAIR EXHIBITS PASSED IN HOUSE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 7.—[Special.]—The World's Fair import bill, lifting customs restrictions on foreign articles brought into this country for exhibition at A Century of Progress, passed the house today by unanimous consent.

Sponsored by Congressman Adolph J. Sabath, Chicago Democrat, the measure opens the tariff door for exhibits which countries throughout the world are sending to the Chicago exposition at the invitation of the United States government.

Many of these exhibits, Mr. Sabath stated, have been held in bond in warehouses here awaiting congressional action on his bill. Senate approval, which is expected within the next few days, will free these articles for removal to Chicago, he said.

Opposition to Appropriation.

Meanwhile, Speaker of the House Henry Rainey announced today that the World's Fair appropriation bill, authorizing $405,000 to pay for the United States government's participation in the Fair this summer, will be called up tomorrow under a special rule already granted by the rules committee.

Considerable opposition to the appropriations measure appears to have developed in the house on the ground that it calls for more money than is necessary to defray the expenses of the government's part in the exposition.

Influential members of the Illinois delegation, headed by Representative Sabath on the Democratic side and Representative Fred A. Britten on the Republican side, are confident, however, that all objections can be met and that the authorizing resolution will go through. It has already passed the senate.

Will Cite President's Approval.

Mr. Sabath intends to point out, when the measure is called up, that President Roosevelt has expressed a desire for the federal government to continue its part in the Chicago exposition and has urged the approval of funds necessary to defray expenses of that participation.

The $405,000 called for in the Keller resolution, Mr. Sabath will explain, is needed to pay for the maintenance and repair of last year's government exhibits, the erection of new exhibits, and the dismantling and removal of the exhibits after the Fair closes.

Passage of the authorizing resolution will be followed by the presentation of an actual supply bill by the appropriations committee, but this will be a mere formality if the house authorizes the expenditure of the proposed funds.

SEEK PARK DISTRICT O. K. ON BUS-ELEVATED HOOKUP FOR THE FAIR

Formal application was made to the new consolidated Chicago park district yesterday by the Chicago Rapid Transit company for the right to establish connecting motor coach lines from the Roosevelt road and Cermak road "L" stations to the main entrances of the World's Fair grounds.

Officials of the elevated lines said that it was planned to issue free transfers from motor coaches to the elevated lines if the consent of the park commissioners was granted.

The new park board will hold a meeting today in the Lincoln park administration building. Robert J. Dunham, president of the board, said that the commissioners are scheduled to approve bonds of the officials of the new corporation.

FETES DEDICATE TWO OF FOREIGN FAIR EXHIBITS

Streets of Shanghai and Old Mexico Open.

BY EARL MULLIN.

Preparation for the opening of A Century of Progress exposition May 26, proceeded apace yesterday when two officials dedications were held on the grounds. Both dedications were of foreign element enterprises designed to give Fair visitors an insight into the romance and allure of other lands.

The places dedicated, both to the accompaniment of native music, dancing and entertainment, were the Streets of Shanghai and Old Mexico. During the summer both enterprises will present music, entertainers and food and drink typical of the area they represent.

Officials Are Present.

An unexpected innovation was a part of the Shanghai dedication when Lee Yik Chen, a Chinese religious worker from Shanghai, who is in Chicago on private business, attended the ceremonies. Col. R. I. Randolph, works manager of the Fair, represented the Exposition at the ceremonies, and H. Bernard Kim, president of the village, officiated.

The highlight of the event was the raising of an American flag and a Chinese naval flag to the top of one of the pagodas. Two American-Chinese girls pulled the flags to the top of the standards. The concluding part of the dedication was the sending of a vase of soil from the village to the chamber of commerce in Shanghai. The village is at 18th street and the lagoon.

Old Mexico, which this year is situated in the center of the new Beach Midway, is one of the few structures on the grounds to have been bodily moved before renovation. The building which was located at the 39th street gate last year was loaded on barges and moved up the lake shore to its new location.

Native Girls Dance.

Abe Raynor, manager of the concession, yesterday dedicated the rehabilitated village by breaking a bottle of tequilla on the lake side of the approach, following the appearance of Mexican dancing girls and a musical program by Tia Juana entertainers. More than thirty native Mexicans in costume took part in the ceremony. At the conclusion American and Mexican flags were flown from the ramparts.

The Exposition is now reaching the stage of completion where visitors are barred. The management yesterday issued an order barring all automobiles, other than trucks and vehicles bringing supplies and equipment.

Exhibitors Pledge Help.

Full coöperation with the Fair was promised yesterday by the newly formed Exhibitors' association at the conclusion of the organization's first meeting. E. H. Sniffin, vice president of the Westinghouse Electric company, was elected president of the group; C. M. Matson of the Chicago and Northwestern railway was named vice president, and F. R. Cowells, representing the International Business Machine corporation, was named as secretary.

"It is our purpose," Sniffin said, "to coöperate with the Fair management and thus insure the success of the 1934 Fair. All of the exhibiting companies have shown their enthusiasm for the Fair by exhibiting the second season, and believe that the Fair will be of benefit to all concerned."

Planetarium to Be Closed on May 10 Till Fair Opens

The Adler planetarium will be closed from May 10 until the opening of A Century of Progress Exposition on May 26, Dr. Philip Fox, director, announced yesterday. The shutdown is for the purpose of making necessary repairs prior to the opening of the summer season, and so as to avoid conflicting with Fair workmen who are now putting the finishing touches to the Exposition.

'BACK ROOM BOYS' RELATE EVENTS IN BAULER SHOOTING

BY WALTER TROHAN.

The "boys from the back room" had their say yesterday at the trial of Ald. Mathias [Paddy] Bauler of the 43d ward for the shooting of Policeman John J. Ahearn last Dec. 19. Their testimony closed the case of the state, after which the defense of the rotund member of the city council, who was known as the court jester for the late Mayor Cermak, was opened.

On that crisp December morning, among the boys in the back room of Paddy's pretentious café at 343 West North avenue, the former home of the defunct Immigrant State bank, were Sherif William D. Meyering; his assistant, Frank A. Wright, who received a bullet wound in his chest during the mêlée; the sherif's chauffeur, Frank L. Faragoi; Deputy Joseph Marian, and Deputy Sherif William Eich.

State Witnesses Help.

Although the latter was the only defense witness of the group, court attachés considered his testimony less important for the chubby alderman than that of the reputed prosecution witnesses. This fact also was conceded by the trial judge, Donald S. McKinlay, out of the presence of the jury, who stated in overruling a motion for a directed verdict for the defense that "the state's witnesses were not what one might call strong witnesses."

The first state's witness of the day was Dr. Frederick A. Rettig, who treated Policeman Ahearn in the Alexian Brothers hospital, where he was taken after the shooting in the café. The doctor described the wound, stating that the bullet entered the lower right hand corner of the abdomen and was extricated from the left of the fourth lumbar vertabrae.

Wright Takes Stand.

As Ald. Bauler moved nervously in his seat behind his attorneys, Ben Short and George H. Guenther, who have been reunited in this case after several years of separation, Assistant Sherif Wright was called to the stand. Bauler attempted to comb with his fingers a few strands of hair over the tonsure on his head as the oath was administered to Wright.

With but a few introductory questions Assistant State's Attorney Leslie B. Curtis asked Wright to tell his story of the shooting. Wright said he and his party had entered the café about 1:45 a. m., Dec. 19, and were disturbed by a pounding at the door about 3:30.

"There was a man kicking at the door," Wright said. "Paddy waved to him that the place was closed and the fellow went away, to return soon afterward and began kicking again. We prepared to leave. The sherif went first, Marian followed, and I came next, with Bauler behind me.

"On the sidewalk as we came out the Sedgwick entrance there was a commotion. A man, who I later learned was Ahearn, took a pass at Paddy. I didn't see Paddy strike back, but as he dropped I saw the outline of a gun in his pocket. Ahearn was leaning against the car with a gun in his hand.

Says Both Opened Fire.

"Then they opened fire at each other and I got in the line of fire and was hit in the right chest. I leaned against the wall of Paddy's place and was taken to a hospital."

Wright was questioned no further by the state and was turned over to Guenther for cross-examination. On cross-examination he was asked whether Ahearn had been abusive in his language. He said Ahearn had called Bauler "A fat Dutch pig, who ought to be back driving a garbage wagon."

Sherif Myering, Deputy Farogoi and Deputy Marian supported Wright's testimony with the exception that none of them said they saw a gun in Bauler's hand or about his person. The sherif said he was pulled back suddenly as the shooting started and saw none of it. Deputy Faragoi revealed himself as the hero who pulled the sherif out of the line of fire.

Sherif Meyering's Version.

"I heard a disturbance at the entrance of the tavern as someone tried to leave I was suddenly jerked "Paddy waved them away with his hand and said, 'The place is closed.' Then we decided to leave.

"On the outside I saw Ahearn whom I knew, but not by name. I told him to mind his business and go on home. As he started into his car to leave and I was suddenly jerked away and heard four or five shots in rapid succession. I didn't see any shots fired, but saw Ahearn had a gun and that Wright was wounded."

State Rests in Surprise.

With Marian's testimony the state rested its case in a surprise move, engineered by Assistant State's Attorney Emmet Moynihan. None of the "backroom boys" was cross-examined by the state. They were not asked whether they or Bauler had been drinking, although all said Ahearn had been drinking. Court attachés considered the case unusual in that there was a minimum of cross and redirect examination on the part of counsel.

Defense Attorney Guenther then moved for a directed verdict, contending that the state had failed to prove its case.

Judge McKinlay ruled that although a higher court might sustain such a motion he felt that the jury should be given an opportunity to determine whether Bauler fired after Ahearn had quit the battle and what was in Bauler's mind at the time of the shooting.

On the overruling of the motion the case was adjourned until the afternoon. At the afternoon session a half dozen citizens of Bauler's ward testified that he had borne the reputation of a law-abiding citizen for the last 25 years.

Rival Tells of Scene.

The next witness was Peter Schenk, a rival entrepreneur of the worried alderman, who operates a tavern 175 feet south of Paddy's former resort. Schenk said he was taking his dog out for an airing when he saw the shooting scrape at the corner of Sedgwick street and North avenue.

He also testified that he went to the Alexian brothers hospital believing Bauler was wounded. There he saw Ahearn on an operating table, he said. Ahearn appeared to be drunk as he was being attended, he testified.

On redirect examination by Attorney Guenther, Schenk was asked if he had supported Bauler in the April 10 primary campaign for Democratic committeeman, which Bauler won by 1,400 votes.

"He won by 1,440 votes," the witness snapped.

Tells of Attack.

Eich was the next witness. He said he was the first one to get outside of the café, leading the sherif, although he was not a member of the sherif's party.

"As I stepped out I got a smack on the jaw from Ahearn," Eich said. "I didn't know what it was all about. The blow smashed a cigar I had in my teeth. After that I went around the corner. I heard the shots but didn't see them. One smack on the jaw was enough for me."

Bauler will take the stand this morning as the last witness in his own defense.

DEFENSE FILES WRIT ASKING SUSPENSION OF TNT RACKET TRIAL

A plea in abatement, asking a suspension of proceedings because of a technical error, was entered before Judge Walter P. Steffen on an indictment which had charged seventeen defendants with racketeering in connection with the Trucking and Transportation Exchange.

The plea, entered by Defense Attorneys Everett Jennings and Rocco DeStefano, was considered the first step toward an eventual motion to quash the indictment on the grounds that the grand jury which returned it was illegally drawn, and that the criminal court building was outside of the county seat of Cook County. A hearing was set for May 14.

The indictment was the result of State's Attorney Courtney's investigation of the activities of the trucking company, commonly called the "T.N.T.", and the charge that the defendants entered into a conspiracy estimated to have exacted $500,000 in tribute yearly from Chicago business men.

One of the men indicted, William [Three-fingered Jack] White, has since been slain, and two are missing. They are Samuel Alex, former business agent of Local 731 of the Chicago Teamsters' union; and Daniel Cain, former president of Local 704 of the same union.

THOMAS J. MOONEY BEGINS NEW BATTLE TO OBTAIN FREEDOM

San Francisco, Cal., May 7.—(AP)—Thomas J. Mooney carried to the federal courts today his 17 year fight for exoneration of the slaying of 10 persons in the preparedness day parade bombing here in 1916.

He filed application for his release from San Quentin prison on a writ of habeas corpus, alleging he was convicted on perjured testimony. Mooney is serving a life sentence.

Federal Judge A. F. St. Sure said he would make no decision immediately on whether he would order state authorities to show cause why the petition should not be granted.

HIGH COURT GIVES HUEY CHANCE TO PROVE IMMUNITY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 7.—[Special.]—The United States Supreme court today announced that it will determine whether Senator Huey Long [Dem., La.], can claim congressional immunity for an acidulous attack which he made on former Brig. Gen. Samuel T. Ansell while the latter was investigating Long's political machinations in Louisiana.

Sued for libel by Ansell, Long tried to hide behind his congressional immunity despite a boast from the floor of the senate that he would not do so. Both the United States District court and the federal Court of Appeals have ruled that Huey's belated flight to immunity is illegal, but now the Supreme court has agreed to open the matter once more.

Debate Overton Fate.

At the same time that the Supreme court handed down its order the senate committee on privileges and elections was debating whether it should continue its inquiry into the election of Senator John H. Overton [Dem., La.], Long's political henchman. The committee reached no decision at its executive session today.

The Long-Ansell case will not be taken up by the Supreme court at its present session. It will go over to the fall term, when the court will hear oral arguments and hand down a decision. The case began when Ansell, who was then attorney for the senate elections committee, was conducting the first inquiry into Senator Overton's election and Huey's arrangements for bringing it about. Long, on the floor of the senate, denounced Ansell as "a wolf and the son of a wolf."

Tirade Interrupted.

Long's tirade, one of the bitterest ever heard in the senate, was interrupted by Senator Walter F. George [Dem., Ga.], who called attention to the fact that Long, speaking in the senate, was protected by the rule holding a congressman immune from prosecution for any statement made on the floor.

Defiant, Long offered to waive his immunity and challenged Ansell to sue him in any court in the land. Ansell immediately started suit in the District of Columbia District court. Long crawfished and claimed immunity.

The District court overruled Long's claim.

JOHNSON PUTS TELEGRAPH NEXT IN CODE SERIES

Rates, Labor, Trade Practice Involved.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 7.—[Special.]—Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson prepared today to force an NRA code on the country's huge telegraphic communications industry.

Gen. Johnson's move was a thrust at the American Telephone and Telegraph company and the Western Union company, both of which, according to an official NRA statement, had defied him.

After two hearings during the last two months had failed to bring agreement among the communication companies on a code satisfactory to Johnson, he made public today a strongly worded code written by his own staf. Hearings will be held on the Johnson code May 16. According to present plans, it then will be imposed on the companies by President Roosevelt.

The NRA's official transcript of the May 2 hearing quotes Col. A. W. Griswold, executive vice president of the Postal Telegraph company, as saying: "A code is necessary to protect the industry from the invasion of the Bell system and to save it from its own follies and abuses." He is quoted also as "pointing out that the Bell system and the Western Union are the only objectors to the proposed code."

Would Affect Wire.

Drastic in its requirements, the Johnson code would hand over to the proposed NRA code authority power to review and suggest changes in telegraph rates. It also strikes at the labor conditions of the industry and at a long list of so-called unfair trade practices.

Both the labor and trade practice sections are rebuffs to the A. T. & T. and the Western Union. Those companies have insisted that the NRA can not impose trade practice rules under a code. They have held out against the labor provisions written by Johnson. The trade practice section of the Johnson code aims particularly to block further "invasion" by the A. T. & T. of the telegraph industry.

The Johnson code prescribes a 40-hour week compared with the 48-hour week now in force. Minimum wage rates laid down by Johnson range from $15 a week in cities over 500,000 to $14 in cities under 250,000. Southern cities are allowed a $1 differential. A special minimum for messengers of $10 a week in the north and $9 a week in the south is laid down.

Child Labor Provision.

To eliminate child labor, the Johnson code provides that no children under 16 years of age may be employed. Persons between 16 and 18 years old may be employed as messengers in cities with a population of more than 7,500 provided that they are not required to use bicycles or other vehicles in their deliveries.

Johnson attached the labor conditions prevailing in the industry in a preamble to the code. He charged that present conditions "permit the continuance of unemployment within the industry which decreases purchasing power and undermines living standards."

Inclusion of the A. T. & T. in the code came as something of a surprise. Johnson explained that it was to be included insofar as any of its "by-product" services, such as leased wires and teletypewriter service partook of a telegraphic nature. The Postal Telegraph company had protested at code hearings that the A. T. & T. competition was forcing telegraph companies to offer services for less than cost.

Would Control Contracts.

Briefly the major provisions of the fair trade practice section of the code would require an equitable division of rates on inter-company business; would prohibit telegraph companies from furnishing free facilities such as call boxes and teletypewriters; and would ban exclusive features in existing and future contracts.

One of the most drastic provisions declares "the code authority is hereby authorized to make suitable rules and regulations, subject to the approval of the administrator, for the simplification of schedules for rates, charges and classifications." Companies are required to post all their rates with the NRA, the code authority, and in all their offices.

BOY HIDING FROM PET CAT IN REFRIGERATOR, TRAPPED, SMOTHERS

Indianapolis, Ind., May 7.—[Special.]—Edward Miles, 6, played hide and seek with his pet cat today. He would conceal himself behind draperies, in closets, almost anywhere, and then wait until the little creature found him and nuzzled against him to signal the start of another game.

Edward saw an empty refrigerator in the kitchen. Always a careful youngster, Edward removed his shoes so he would not scratch the interior of the box, placed them side by side in front of it and stepped inside. He tugged the door shut and then sat and waited to see if the cat could find him there.

The air became close and the cat did not come. The lad shouted. His mother was taking a nap and her hearing is impaired.

He beat on the inside of the door with his hands, beat until his knuckles were bleeding. He kicked with his stocking feet, bruising them in many places.

Outside the cat pawed the porcelain. Finally the mother awoke. She searched the apartment and found the shoes. As she opened the door of the ice box she saw the boy's body. He had suffocated.

NRA'S LEADERS LOSE INTEREST IN ILLINOIS BILL

Report Upsets Delegates Facing Horner Lash.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Definite reports reached Chicago yesterday that the national administration forces have cooled off in their desire to see Illinois pass a state NRA bill.

These reports came as legislators were leaving for Springfield to support or oppose the third week of Gov. Horner's whiplashing effort to accumulate a majority for the measure in the house of representatives and his second attempt to have a twin bill introduced in the senate, a try that failed last week because of the lack of a quorum in the upper chamber.

Election Reprisals Threatened.

In addition to the reports from Washington the irritated and fatigued law makers carried with them to the capital tales that over the week-end the governor's forces have gone so far as to threaten the defeat of any Democratic member who has a contest for reëlection in November unless he lines up in favor of the bill.

There already had been charges that the Horner plan includes the rewarding of Republicans who vote with him by gifts of patronage and the punishment of opposition by the firing of employés sponsored by now unfriendly members. Some of these charges came from Democrats. Other Democrats have admitted and have defended this sort of tactics. But this was the first instance in which there have been statements that the Springfield administration is willing to go so far as to jeopardize the Democratic majority in the next session for the sake of immediate victory in a single battle.

Cook Delegates Waver.

Combined, the two sets of reports were said to have caused some wavering, particularly among Cook county Democrats who have gone along with the bill strictly on party grounds alone. They saw in the stories a willingness to sacrifice the party, although the national leaders had lost interest in the issue.

The growing chilliness at Washington is said to have resulted from the satisfactory operation of the state NRA idea in several states, such as New Jersey, where a clothes pressing tailor was locked up for cutting prices a few cents.

Washington Gets Laugh.

"They're laughing at Gov. Horner in Washington," said a Chicagoan who returned from the national capital. "They have lost interest in the state NRA idea, and, in fact, don't want the bill passed as they fear its enforcement would injure the national NRA. Yet they see Gov. Horner sacrificing everything else for the enactment of a law they say would not be put into use if it were passed."

The Horner threats to defeat Democrats who have November contests unless they are in Springfield this week and vote for his latest pet measure applies to more than a score of districts in which more than three nominees were put up by the two parties on April 10, but it has its most important effect in a lesser number of districts where, in response to the mandate of the state committee, the Democrats nominated two with prospects of electing only one.

15th and 6th Districts Examples.

As examples, the Fifth and Sixth districts in Cook county were mentioned. Both are considered Republican and usually elect only one Democrat out of three. In the former, the Horner forces now are said to be backing Louis G. Berman, a newcomer, against an incumbent, Bernard J. Kerwin.

Similarly, in the Sixth, Representative Joseph H. Donahue, is in a four way race with County Commissioner Charles H. Weber, a former representative, and two Republicans. Analysts doubt that Donahue and Weber can win. If Donahue does not stand by the NRA bill this week, the Horner strength thrown to Weber might spell the defeat of the incumbent.

Many Downstate Races.

Downstate there are believed to be a dozen districts where there are two Democrats seeking reëlection and nees, with either one or both of the Democrats seeking reelection and amenable to threats of use of the state pay roll strength against them. Some of them are said to have heard the same whispers of punishment unless they remain "regular."

Republican leaders are confident of holding last week's lines without a break. Three representatives of the Cook county central committee left last night for Springfield. They were Chairman William H. Weber, Secretary Edward F. Moore and John Leonard East, lieutenant of George F. Harding.

NRA DIRECTORS OF 6 STATES CONFER HERE WITH U. S. FIELD CHIEFS

NRA directors for six middle western states met in executive session at the Lake Shore Athletic club to discuss administrative and enforcement problems of the administration. They conferred throughout the day with John Swope, son of Gerard Swope of the General Electric company, and chief of the field section of the compliance division of the NRA in the Washington headquarters.

Swope, who is making a tour of the country in order to hold similar conferences with NRA state directors, is accompanied by Donald Renshaw and Prentiss M. Terry, two special assistants to Gen. Hugh Johnson, national NRA director. The state directors were consulted as to whether the policies of the administration were being applied uniformly and compliance maintained equally in all states.

John E. Cassidy, state director for Illinois, presided at the meeting. The following directors, Matt Werner, Wisconsin; Robert K. Ryland, Missouri; Fred Hoke, Indiana; Judge J. R. Layman, Kentucky; Benedict Crowell, Ohio, attended. Edmund C. Shields of Michigan, who was not present yesterday, will attend the conference which will be continued today.

NRA RULING HITS CHAIN THEATERS FILM CONTROL

Hollywood, Cal., May 7.—(AP)—Independent motion picture theater owners were reported today to regard as significant and far reaching an order from the Hollywood NRA Film Grievance board requiring a chain of theaters to make so-called motion pictures available to an independent exhibitor.

The issue was between S. M. Lazarus, owner of the Garfield theater of Alhambra, and the Alhambra and El Rey theaters, the latter two being part of a chain operated by Fox West Coast theaters and principal theaters.

The board found the code of fair practices was violated by the Chair theaters in booking all the first run and a selection of second run pictures from major studios "with the intent and effect of depriving, without just cause, the complainant of a sufficient number of quality motion pictures."

SINCLAIR BLASTS DARROW; CALLS REPORTS UNFAIR

Explains Why He Quit NRA Board.

Minneapolis, May 7.—(AP)—John F. Sinclair, vice chairman of the National Recovery Review board, tonight charged the board, under Clarence Darrow, chairman, with "utter disregard for fair play or the basic facts," in compiling its majority report to the President on monopolistic practices under the NRA. He has resigned from the board.

The Minneapolis man and Darrow differed sharply during hearings conducted by the board and Sinclair's resignation was pointedly suggested to the President by Darrow. President Roosevelt, Mr. Sinclair said, once attempted to prevail upon the two men to work harmoniously, but the breach was never closed and Sinclair has submitted a minority report to the chief executive.

"Utter Disregard" for Fairness.

"Not in my 25 years of business and research experience during which time I have been a member of many boards and committees of investigation," said Sinclair tonight, "have I witnessed such utter disregard for fair play or the basic facts as the National Recovery Review board under Clarence Darrow has shown, even in its open hearings.

"I have opposed from the beginning," said Sinclair, "the kind of sloppy, one-sided, half information that is the foundation upon which the Darrow-Russell report has been written.

"The barrage of newspaper talk emanating from certain quarters in Washington seems to infer that it is because of my friendship for Gen. Johnson that I have opposed Mr. Darrow. There is not a word of truth in that.

"I think Mr. Darrow himself would say that it was due to my insistence that the review board was divorced entirely from the NRA and appointed directly by the President. I am not either for or against Gen. Johnson. He has had no influence whatsoever in my decision to not sign such a report as comes from Mr. Darrow's pen or that of his close collaborator-author, special pleader, Charles Edward Russell, the former Socialist candidate for President of the United States."

Sees Dangers in Business.

Mr. Sinclair said his minority report would say there are dangers that big business might swallow smaller business and some changes would be needed. He also reported, said Sinclair, that a small board of three, outside and independent of the NRA, be set up to exist as long as the NRA functions.

This board would be designed to handle complaints based on the fundamental laws of the land, said Sinclair. He also pointed out in his report, he said, that the board has not studied any one code sufficiently to draw conclusions.

"A special pleader is all right in his place," continued the statement, "but not on a research board of this kind. His aim is to bring out only one side of a situation. This he is skilful at doing, and this is exactly what had been done in connection with the hearings up to April 14 when I sent to the board my report, which is now in the hands of the President."

Lowell Mason, Chicago, was chief counsel for the board.

BEN N. DUKE'S ESTATE DEPRECIATES IN FOUR YEARS BY $1,222,000

New York, May 7.—(AP)—An accounting filed today by the executors disclosed losses on sales of securities by the estate of Benjamin N. Duke totaled $1,222,048 between Jan. 8, 1929, the date of his death, and Dec. 1, 1933, date of the accounting.

Total disbursements against the $7,698,203 estate to Dec. 1 were $3,720,359 which included the securities' losses and $1,539,000 paid to legatees. The estate's value on the accounting date was shown as $3,977,844.

The estate has received income totaling $960,857 since Duke's death to Dec. 1.

The accounting showed that more than $650,000 has been paid by the estate to federal and state governments for income, estate, gift, and transfer taxes.

The residuary estate, of which a daughter, Mary Duke Biddle, is the sole legatee, is valued at more than $2,500,000.

Charge Discrimination Against City in Code.

A petition for an injunction to prevent National Recovery Act officials and mine operators from enforcing the latest coal code prices which discriminate against Chicago consumers will be filed in the United States District court here today. The complainants are a group of Chicago coal dockers who assert that residents here should be able to buy coal at the same favorable prices quoted to other great lakes ports.

To this group of complainants there may be added several others. Ald. John S. Clark, chairman of the city council finance committee, asserted last evening that he will ask the city council today to intervene as a co-complainant. And a group of hotel owners and building managers are considering similar support for the move.

File Petition Today.

The petition which will be filed this morning has been prepared by the law firm of Musgrave, Oppenheim, Price, and Ewins. It recites that the NRA coal code authorities for the West Virginia and eastern Kentucky fields and also the Illinois operators with sanction of this state's NRA officials, have fixed a price of $1.60 a ton for all industrial coal sold in Chicago.

The uniform price abolished for Chicago the differential of 25 cents a ton between the price of coal shipped from the mines by railroad and the price of the tonnage transported in lake boats which has been customary for 40 years. The new uniform rates apply only to the "middle lakes discount area"—the industrial district enbracing Chicago and Gary and the territory between—but not to other lake cities which can still buy the same coal for $1.35 a ton.

Ask Restraining Order.

Illinois mine owners, the petition will charge, have recently announced an identical price scale which has the approval of the NRA authorities of this state. The Illinois operators also, the petition will assert, have joined in a boycott of all the coal dockers in an attempt to drive them out of business by refusing to sell them Illinois coal.

The complainants ask for an order restraining both the eastern and the Illinois mine operators from maintaining the new price schedules which discriminate against Chicago. They also demand that the operators from this state be directed to end the boycott of the dockers, asserting that this is a violation of trade rights.

BOWMAN'S VITAMIN D MILK
prevents rickets, helps build sound teeth

ONE QUART A DAY of Bowman's Vitamin D Milk is a simple but sure safeguard against rickets, a nutritional disease of the bones that threatens all children.

A high percentage of our little children actually have rickets in some form, authorities say.

Your child probably shows none of the well-known symptoms of advanced rickets (bow legs, knock knees, etc.). Yet his bodily reserve of Vitamin D, calcium and phosphorus may actually be depleted to the danger point!

You can completely make up that deficiency with Bowman's Vitamin D Milk. It is Bowman's Milk of Superior Flavor, as fine-tasting as ever, irradiated by the Steenbock process. It is rich in the "sunshine vitamin".

Get it for the whole family

Expectant and nursing mothers need Bowman's Vitamin D Milk. It's protection for their own teeth, an aid in warding off rickets and dental troubles in the child. For the adolescent, Irradiated Milk fosters growth. And it supplies the important food factor, Vitamin D, the rarest of vitamins in the general adult diet.

Safeguard your whole family by giving them this milk to drink. Cook with it, too. It is an easy and most economical way of providing an effective amount of Vitamin D in the diet, for this milk costs only one cent a quart more than regular Bowman's Milk.

Tell the Bowman route salesman you want Irradiated Vitamin D Milk from now on. Or call Superior 6800 or your local Bowman Dairy Company office.

Current News

Find a people who love a home . . . who are eager to add to the comfort and convenience of home living, and you have a great market for vacuum cleaners, electric refrigerators, washers, wringers, ironers, mixers and the long list of electrical appliances used in the home.

Philadelphians have more interest in a private home than any other people. The proof of this lies in the fact that they have built the greatest City of Homes in all America . . . A City where nine out of every ten dwellings are single-family homes; a City which has 70,000 more single-family dwellings than New York City, 155,000 more than Chicago, 9,677 more than the combined total of Detroit, Cleveland and Boston.

Ninety-five per cent. of all Philadelphia homes are wired for electric service. Through the four adverse years (1930-1933) Philadelphia homes steadily increased their use of electric current.

If you have an electrical appliance, or any home product—a better home heating plant, a new convenience for the kitchen, a bathroom accessory, curtains, draperies, rugs, furniture for interior or porch, necessities for lawn or garden—bring it to Philadelphia, the greatest home market of all.

U. S. JURY HEARS CHARGE MELLON IS TAX EVADER

5 Laborers, 2 Mechanics Members of Panel.

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 7.—[Special.]—A federal grand jury, including among its members five laborers and a half score others who depend on wages or modest salary checks for their livelihood, today considered government charges that Andrew W. Mellon, many times a millionaire, has evaded income tax payments and owes the government some $2,000,000.

The jury heard five witnesses and then adjourned to resume its deliberations tomorrow. There was no action to indicate when a report might be expected.

Three government tax experts and accountants and two officials of Mellon banks were the witnesses examined.

Three Federal Men Heard.

They were Donald Banks and Robert M. Maguire of the income tax division of the internal revenue office in Pittsburgh; Lee R. Pennington, department of justice, Washington; Carl R. Korb, vice president of the Union Trust company, and H. A. Phillips of the Mellon National bank and a real estate expert.

H. W. Johnson, Mr. Mellon's private secretary, and R. E. Lightbaum of the Union Trust company, are expected to be heard tomorrow. It is understood the government expects to call only about a dozen witnesses.

The government charges that the 79 year old former secretary of the treasury and later ambassador to the court of St. James's, failed to pay income taxes amounting to $1,319,080 for 1931 and contends an additional $659,540 is due in penalties.

Mellon Denies Charge.

In reply recently to statements by Attorney General Homer S. Cummings, who announced the action, the internationally known banker declared that he had overpaid the government rather than evaded any of his taxes. He charged "political animus" was back of the inquiry and declared he would fight the charges against him. During 1931, the financier asserted, he had donated more than $3,800,000 for charitable, religious, and educational purposes.

Judge Robert M. Gibson made no mention of income tax matters in naming William B. Beeson, a Uniontown bank teller, foreman and in charging the jury. He said:

"It is your duty to protect the accused from unjust or unfounded charges on the one hand and to protect the nation on the other. You shall present only those persons who have, in your judgment, committed an offense against the United States government."

Long Investigation Made.

The grand jury action here follows months of investigation by the treasury department and the department of justice.

Among the 20 members of the grand jury are five laborers, two mechanics, two farmers, two clerks, two engineers, a carpenter, a plumber, a writer, a lumber dealer, and a banker.

Under grand jury rules at least 16 of the panel must hear all testimony and at least 12 of that number concur in a decision to indict.

Scotty Obeys the Cop, but Draws Fine Just the Same

Rockford, Ill., May 7.—[Special.]—William "Scotty" Campbell, 50, was fined $29.15 in police court today because he obeyed a policeman's order. Told by a patrolman to get off the street, he began climbing a telephone pole.

ROBBERY VICTIM

MRS. OLLIE BEEBE.

Three bandits, captured early yesterday morning as they were robbing Mrs. Ollie Beebe, 8409 Crandon avenue, and her chauffeur in a garage at the rear of her home, were being held by South Chicago police yesterday to be viewed by victims of other robberies. They were captured by Policemen Cyrus Brush and Murl Mathewson who had noticed the Beebe car parked in the middle of the alley.

The bandits gave their names as Ralph McGrew, 31 years old, 817 East 78th street; William Jacobi, 29, 7939 Ellis avenue; and Jack Harris, 48, 7933 Dobson avenue. They had taken $206 from Mrs. Beebe, which was the nights' receipts from the Steamship Ollie cafe, 1810 ast 71st street, owned by her husband.

OLD IRONSIDES ANCHORS; TO GO TO SEA NO MORE

Boston, Mass., May 7.—(AP)—Old Ironsides, listed upon the navy's rolls as U. S. S. Constitution, came home today from three years of wandering, back to the old Boston navy yard, where she was built 137 years ago.

In her meanderings she had visited every harbor and river in the country with water enough to accommodate her 23 foot draft. Eight million feet, many of them very small, trod her decks.

Welcoming craft raced far to the seaward to salute her today and to ride proudly back beside her through the long corridor of the harbor ilands. Overhead, the youngest of navy craft, airplanes, circled and zoomed a noisy greeting to this oldest veteran of the naval service.

No more is she to wander. In graceful ceremonial the homeward bound pennant was hauled down and cut up—a piece given to each member of her crew.

President Devotes Day to Study of Issue.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 7.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt puzzled deeply all day today in an effort to strike a harmless harmony with the silver advocates of congress.

Tonight he was still short of a solution, and the White House indicated that congress, the silver states, and the rest of the country must wait at least until tomorrow before learning his views.

Mr. Roosevelt had told the congressional silver bloc that he would give his word on some sort of silver legislation today, but although he spent most of the week-end studying the problem, he was forced to notify the senators today that he was not yet ready for action.

Postponed for Day.

Newspaper men who waited through the day for the President to summon the silver men were informed that a conference might be held during the day, but at nightfall they were given word that the meeting had been postponed until tomorrow morning.

Stephen Early, assistant secretary to the President, indicated that the President had asked for additional figures and data from the treasury department, relative to the possible causes and effects of various types of silver legislation.

But Treasury Secretary Morgenthau, seen afterward, cast doubt on this cause being at the root of the delay. It seemed clear that the President is still struggling to make up his mind on what type of legislation he can approve without endangering his monetary and recovery programs.

See Little Chance of Help.

It was learned that both Mr. Roosevelt and Secretary Morgenthau, after discussing the problem yesterday during a day's sojourn down the Potomac, and again today at luncheon on the President's desk, were still firmly convinced that the remonetization of silver at this time would do little good, and that it might do great harm.

For one thing, the President is said to be of the opinion that banking and credit conditions in the country might be impaired in stability by silver legislation of almost any kind.

If it is mandatory legislation it will disturb the operations of the present modified gold standard under which the treasury is operating, and which business men have been given to understand is a permanent policy upon which they might bank with safety.

Fear Business Doubts.

If permissive legislation is approved—and this is said to be the only kind that the President is considering—it will set up a factor of doubt in the business situation. Mr. Roosevelt is averse, it was stated to placate the silver advocates of congress by agreeing to permissive legislation now, and later to double deal them by an announcement to business that he has no intention of using such powers as may be given him with respect to silver.

The best information tonight is that the President may endorse silver legislation, but that he will insist that it be permissive in character, and that it be stated in specific limits so that there can be no doubt in the minds of business men as to possible changes in the monetary structure.

The anxiety of the President in the situation, and his unwillingness to tell the silver senators flatly that he desires no silver legislation, is due to the fact that the silver men have shown a disposition to obstruct other legislation needed by the President, or at least a determination to prevent adjournment of congress until their wishes with respect to silver are served.

If Mr. Roosevelt can effect a solution agreeable to all sides, the silver senators will hew at once to the line, give their support to a speedy windup of all needed legislation, and achieve for the President the early adjournment of congress. The President is extremely anxious that the congressmen go home as soon as possible, because he feels that business will go forward with more certainty of ground when the fears of harmful legislation have disappeared.

2 U. S. SCIENTISTS RETURN WITH 3 LIVE "DRAGONS"

Prehistoric Monster's Kin Taken in East Indies.

VICTORIA, B. C., May 7.—(AP)—With three rare komodo "dragons," believed descendants of the prehistoric monster, Tyrannosaurus Rex, two young American amateur scientists arrived here today from the Orient aboard the liner Empress of Asia. A fourth "dragon" died en route.

Long, Forked Tongues.

Griswold said the "dragons" are carnivorous and terrestrial with long, forked tongues and hides different in type from the lizard. The skin is lumpy with dome shaped protuberances about a quarter of an inch high. They have long curved teeth and live in caves in the mountains on the Island of Komodo in the Dutch East Indies. Their normal full growth is 16 feet but the specimens captured are nine feet long.

The scientists experimented with their diet, feeding them on meat and eggs. One, which took sick en route, was given a dose of castor oil after which it recuperated rapidly. Six husky sailors held the "dragon" while the medicine was poured down its throat by means of a funnel and tube.

Few in Captivity.

Two of the animals will go to Bronx Zoo, New York, and the third to the national zoo at Washington, D. C. Except for four of the creatures presented by the scientists to the Sourabaya zoo in the Dutch East Indies, the three are the only ones in captivity.

One captured in 1931 by King Leopold of Belgium, then duke of Brabant, died while being taken to Europe. They require a mild climate.

While fighting, the "dragons" rise up on their hind legs, Griswold said. They also run on their hind legs. They feed on meat, principally deer and pigs, tearing the throats of their victims and dragging them into the caves. They are not poisonous.

Pick Two Prize School Safety Posters Today

A committee of judges will meet today to select the two prize winners from among the many posters that have been submitted in the Chicago Safety council's public safety poster contest for pupils of Chicago and county public and parochial schools. The posters, submitted in connection with the Midwest Safety conference which opens tomorrow in the Hotel Sherman, will be judged in room 102 of the hotel.

TWO MEN ROBBED OF $90.

Frank Korslewski, owner of a saloon at 2559 West 38th street, was robbed of $50 and Steve Rynkewski, 305 North Central Park avenue, lost $40 to a bandit early yesterday.

SOCIALIZING THE COMMUNICATIONS.

The President's desire for an adjournment of congress as early as possible may defeat in this session the administration's hope that all communications will be brought under federal control. Adjournment is the best thing the country can expect of congress and many citizens who do not follow President Roosevelt all along the road will be with him in the wish that the congressmen soon go home and there take stock in view of the approaching election.

In the communications bills there are signs of the most determined socialistic advance. The financial condition of several of the communications companies is so different from that of the partially socialized railway communications that the picture is distressing to collectivism. Private enterprise in wire communications has survived the depression, whereas the railroads were not surviving even the boom times. In doing something about this the socialists naturally would desire to run the wires as ragged as the rails and wipe out the illuminating contrast between private and socialistic control.

Among the many dangers in the communications bills are possibilities of censorship established by rate making or statute. Attention may be drawn to one in particular.

The Dill bill contains a provision directing the radio commission to report to congress upon the practicality and desirability of allocating percentages of broadcasting facilities to types of nonprofit programs with a view to promoting educational and religious broadcasting. That such a proposal should be even considered will seem strange if the consequences of such a law are even superficially examined.

It would put the federal government in the position to dictate what shall be given the people in the way of instruction and in religious doctrine. It wouldn't establish a state church, but it would come within the shadow of such an institution and also within the shadow of the federal pedagog. It would require donation of private facilities to what was advanced as a public good, being to that extent confiscation. Luckily it would expose the administrators to such pressure of conflicting religious beliefs of infinite variety and of such contentious educational theory that the people undertaking to allocate the percentages would soon flee from their job in a panic. That prospect, although evident, has not been sufficient to stop the proposal in its tracks, and the failure of the proponents of it to contemplate the muddle they would be bound to create as well as the injustice they would be equally bound to do may in itself be proof of how little consideration is giv.n any of the consequences involved in the socialistic trend towards dictatorship and control.

Instances multiply to convince any prudent person that security is found only as time runs against congress and forces the reckless members to go home and mind their own political business.

REED OF PENNSYLVANIA.

One of the outstanding members of the United States senate, Senator David A. Reed of Pennsylvania, is up for renomination May 15 and we trust for reëlection in November. The decision of the voters of that great commonwealth concerns not only Pennsylvania but the nation. It is not only that each senator as well as each representative has his part in the passage of laws which bear upon us all, but Senator Reed has an influence in the counsels of the nation and of his party which citizens throughout the country will hope those of Pennsylvania will not fail to retain. Especially at this time there is need for his seasoned experience, wide knowledge of public affairs, sound judgment in public policy and loyalty to the best in American traditions and principles.

Senator Reed has shown courage and good faith in asserting his faith. He has been no narrow partisan, but while he has supported measures which he could honestly approve, though offered by party opponents, he has not hesitated through temporary expediency to dissent and oppose measures contrary, in his opinion, to the public weal. This is certainly no time for opportunism in leadership, and Senator Reed's character and abilities are greatly needed to defend our institutions and help formulate constructive measures for a renewed prosperity and progress.

WHAT IS A PARTY PLATFORM?

"Believing that a party platform is a covenant with the people to be faithfully kept by the party when intrusted with power, and that the people are entitled to know in plain words the terms of the contract to which they are asked to subscribe, we hereby declare this to be the platform of the Democratic party: The Democratic party solemnly promises by appropriate action to put into effect the principles, policies, and reforms herein advocated, and to eradicate the policies, methods, and practices herein condemned. We advocate: One—an immediate and drastic reduction of government expenditures by abolishing useless commissions and offices, consolidating departments and bureaus, and eliminating extravagance, to accomplish a saving of not less than 25 per cent in the cost of federal government, and we call upon the Democratic party in the states to make a zealous effort to achieve a proportionate result."

"That admirable document, the platform which you have adopted, is clear. I accept it 100 per cent." Acceptance speech of Franklin Roosevelt.

THE WAR ON CRIMINAL BUSINESS.

Undismayed by the verdict in the racket trial, State's Attorney Courtney will press the prosecution in the trucking racket cases and the community will appreciate his determination. Results of the effort to punish racketeering in the cleaning and dyeing industry were discouraging, but if verdicts of guilty were not reached, as Mr. Courtney points out, "the records reveal since this investigation and prosecution started there have been no bombings, acid throwings, window smashings, burnings, sluggings, or any other acts of violence in the industries involved."

That is an interesting fact which the public has noticed, if the jury could not, and the community will be grateful that Mr. Courtney is not to be stopped by the failure of one jury to convict, but will keep up investigation and active prosecution of racketeering. It is understood that his task has been and is one of the most difficult the state's attorney's office has had to deal with in many years and immediate success was not to be expected. But the underworld of crime, politics and business has had notice that it has a foe to be feared. It has already moderated its methods, and the community may expect further results from Mr. Courtney's campaign as it proceeds.

FAIR TRAFIC CONDITIONS.

The executive secretary of the North Central association, Mr. Calvert, calls attention to the excessive congestion at Monroe street and Michigan avenue during the Exposition last summer and makes a suggestion which merits immediate consideration. Mr. Calvert proposes a temporary ramp at Monroe street to carry south bound trafic in Michigan avenue over the north bound lane when it turns east into Grant park.

Whatever expense is involved in this or other temporary alterations to improve access to the Fair and to speed up trafic through the loop during the Exposition would be money well spent. Conditions were difficult last summer and our visitors are not accustomed to such congestion. They were patient last year and will, no doubt, show the same intelligent recognition of difficulties inherent in the concentration of great occasions like the Fair during this summer, but unless we are greatly mistaken there will be more visitors with us this year, and it is up to us to do everything practicable to reduce inconveniences. The engineers did a remarkably good job with the trafic problem of the first Exposition, and we believe they will improve upon it, but we think they will have larger crowds to provide for and should be given as ample facilities as possible to solve their problems.

PADDING CHICAGO'S COAL BILL.

The new coal prices fixed by NRA deprive Chicago of the natural advantage which the city's position on Lake Michigan warrants. Formerly West Virginia and eastern Kentucky coal was brought into Chicago by water at a saving of 25 cents a ton under the rail rate. The differential has now been removed and a uniform charge of $1.60 a ton, regardless of the means of transportation employed, has been instituted. It is estimated that the new NRA regulation imposes a tax of 2 million dollars a year upon Chicago.

A protest to Gen. Johnson is to be followed by attempts to enjoin the new rates in the federal courts. It is to be hoped that either NRA or the courts will correct the injustice, but whether they do or not the consuming public in Chicago is not without a remedy of its own.

We can get along with much less coal than we have been using. Many of our buildings are overheated in winter. There is much wastage of coal used in power plants. Coal is not the only fuel on the market and for many purposes by no means the best fuel. The answer to arbitrarily high prices for coal is the determination to use as little of it as possible. If the coal industry and NRA will not listen to a reasoned complaint they must listen to the more forceful argument of the consumers' strike.

Editorial of the Day

[Detroit News.]

Any one capable of taking an unbiased position with regard to the problem of liquor control must be impressed by two sets of statistics recently issued. State and federal reports agree that consumption of alcoholic beverages has greatly increased.

Detroit is doing its full share of drinking. Out of a report issued by Frank A. Picard, chairman of the state liquor control commission, a News correspondent makes the ingenious calculation that since the first of January Detroit drinkers have got away with enough beer to fill a gigantic stein 100 feet in diameter and 170 feet high. This skyscraper receptacle would hold 9,978,187 gallons. During the same period 900,000 bottles of hard liquor were consumed.

The suspicion is warranted that, ample as these amounts appear, they by no means represent all the drinking that Detroit did. In Washington, Joseph H. Choate Jr., head of the federal alcohol control administration, makes the serious charge that not only has illicit drinking increased enormously, but that the illicit liquor trafic continues to flourish and "seizures of illicit distilleries by agents of the department of justice indicate that the illegal stills have a capacity much greater than the legal stills."

As associated factors perhaps should be listed the report of Michigan's secretary of state that drunk driving has greatly increased, and the known fact, which may or may not be related, that the list of dead and wounded in trafic accidents continually lengthens and at an appalling rate. Also it is freely admitted that beer gardens and some other drinking places have been severely criticized for their evil moral influences.

As an offset, reports of large receipts from liquor taxation have been hailed enthusiastically as aids to hard ridden property taxpayers and as influences making for prosperity. The account cannot be cast up accurately because some of the intangible items are hard to put a money value upon.

VICTORY!

["The American army is being rapidly motorized."—News item.]

The insolent and haughty foreign foe [all foreign foes are insolent and haughty; it's a law] has formed a line of battle and is awaiting the charge of the American army. The haughty and insolent foreign foe is well equipped and looks most formidable. The American army is shy on artillery and the congressional committee is still squabbling over what machine gun should be adopted, and the gangsters have cornered all the bombs available in the country, so things look bad. Just at this juncture the major general in command of the American army rides to the front in his new five passenger sedan and seizing a megaphone issues his commands. He says:

"Men, the enemy is before you. He has dared to land within your native country—or at least the native country of quite a large number of you. We must lick 'em! It looks bad for our side at first glance, but cheer up! We will win a glorious victory!

"Our army has now been completely motorized. Most of you were civilians and drove your own autos before this war broke loose. Now you sit, soldiers, in your army automobiles. Pass the word for all the hit-and-run drivers to push forward and mass in the center of our line of battle. Now place all the drivers who go right through red lights, who try to beat every train to the crossing, and never pay any attention to pedestrians, on the left flank.

"Now have all the drivers who brag about having learned to drive a car in an hour, and those who hog the center lane and try to prevent everybody else from passing 'em, on the right flank. Now all the intoxicated, careless, and fool drivers in reserve. Are you all ready? Then step on her, boys, and go right through 'em! Honk! Honk!"

And if any insolent and haughty foreign foe can stop an army like that they're got another guess coming. We'll be picking up the insolent and haughty foreign foe in baskets for the next two weeks.

His friends are inclined to give Zaro the raspberry, but we believe him. That is, if he has any coin. If any gentleman, Turk, American, or Afghanistan, lives to be nine hundred and sixty years old and still had as much as two dollars and thirty-five cents in his pocket, there would be some lady who would want to marry him. Or many.

"HAILSTONES Fall as Big as Peaches."—Headline. Will the class in journalism please come to order? Observe now, dear children, that the world is constantly changing and that you must keep up with the times. In an older day hailstones were invariably as large as goose eggs. A correspondent had to write it that way. Otherwise his stuff wouldn't get in the paper. There was some kind of law about it. Now open your textbooks and find the paragraph which says, "Hailstones big enough to warrant a newspaper paragraph are always as big as goose eggs. This rule is mandatory." Scratch your pencil through that paragraph and write in the margin: "Hailstones are no longer as large as goose eggs. They are as large as peaches." Very good! The class is dismissed.

STRAW ITCH.

One of the most annoying skin diseases is known as grain itch. There are reasons for thinking it a rather prevalent disorder especially among farmers during the harvesting season and for several months thereafter. That it is not more frequently diagnosed is probably because it is mistaken for other eruptions that appear at this season and also because it is self-limited. While it is very unpleasant and causes great discomfort it does not last long and gets well without treatment.

It is caused by a mite which lives in straw. Commonly, the history is about as follows:

A man has used some straw to fill a bed tick or as an improvised bed, or he has worked in a straw stack. Within a few hours he has developed an eruption which is characterized by severe itching. The itching is comparable to that of hives and is worse than that of seven year itch. The hives eruption is a red welt, while that of grain itch is much more like that of seven year itch. The hives eruption may fade as abruptly as it came; the grain itch eruption hangs on for a few days. There should be no difficulty in distinguishing the two, but the fact is they are confused at times.

The eruption of grain itch in appearance is much like that of seven year or common itch, but the latter is very apt to be limited to the space between the fingers. It shows a great tendency to stick to places where the skin is thin. The parasite of this itch does not like to dig through thick skin. On the other hand, the parasite of grain itch has no favored locations. It can dig through any skin that is less thick than elephantine in proportions.

The eruption of grain itch is over the entire legs below the knee or over the back. Wherever on the skin the parasite lands he proceeds to dig in. The eruption starts with an explosive attack, whereas scabies may be invading for several days before the eruption attracts much attention.

In all itching eruptions there is a common injunction not to scratch. Scratching causes a pleasant sensation, but one that, carried as far as it nearly always is, becomes unpleasant. It is like drinking—the more we scratch the more we want to scratch. And, in most itching eruptions, the scratch marks are the worst part of the eruption, the most liable to be infected, the most enduring, and the most likely to leave scars.

The treatment of grain itch is along the same lines as that of scabies. The objective is to kill the parasites, whereupon the itching and the eruption disappear. For this purpose sulphur is the sovereign remedy. Napthalene preparations rank second.

In scabies the parasite digs in so far and runs such a crooked tunnel that the sulphur in the ointment is not easily pushed to the point where the parasite is. The great aim in using sulphur ointment for scabies is to secure penetration. This is less necessary with grain itch. The parasite is nearer the surface and is easily reached and killed. It has a natural tendency to die off in a short time—in which this eruption differs from scabies. Infected persons do not infect others—in which grain itch also differs from scabies.

RINGWORM.

Mrs. M. C. writes: Is it possible to have a ringworm on the head? If so, I would appreciate knowing how to take care of it.

REPLY.

Ringworm of the scalp prevails widely. It is especially troublesome in school children. It can be expected to get well promptly after removal of the hair from the affected area. This is generally done with X-rays. It may be done with thallium, but there are reports of accidents due to the use of this drug.

REDEMPTION AFTER TAX DEFAULT.

Chicago, May 3.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Is there a period of redemption in the state of Wisconsin in which to redeem property after a tax deed has been issued? D. B.

In our opinion the Wisconsin law and procedure as to tax deeds renders it unsafe for a nonresident to own Wisconsin land unless he is prepared to employ a local representative to guard his interest. We base this opinion on the following three respects in which the protection usual here is not extended to the fee owner there. First, there is no uniform practice of mailing notice to the previous taxpayer that the property is being sold for taxes. Second, the fact that the property has been sold for taxes is not noted on his subsequent tax bills during the time allowed for redemption. Third, the courts sustain a tax deed as defeating the fee. As a result it is possible [and sometimes actually happens] that the fee owner's title is taken away from him without notice for no other fault than overlooking one year's tax payment.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON.—A bill to provide for the establishment of special courts, similar to those in some American states, to hear certain matrimonial and domestic cases, has been introduced in the house of lords by the earl of Listowel.

A feature of the proposed procedure is that evidence shall be given unsworn unless the courts decide otherwise, and the laws of evidence shall not apply, but each party shall have the opportunity of stating his or her case, of calling witnesses, and commenting on the case set up by the opposite party.

The parties shall not be entitled to cross-examination, but may invite the court to put any question to the opposite party. The bill proposes that a domestic court shall consist of not more than five justices, at least two of whom shall be women.

When a court is held by a metropolitan police court magistrate or a stipendiary magistrate it shall consist of the magistrate and two lay members, one at least of whom shall be a woman.

The jurisdiction of domestic courts would extend to separation or maintenance applications, guardianship of children, marriage of "infants," and cases af assault between married parties or parties living together. No separation order is to be granted until the court has failed to bring about a reconciliation.

The public would be excluded from the courts, though press representatives would be admitted, and it is specifically provided that published reports of cases should come under the same act which at present limits the particulars which may be published of divorce cases.

BRIDGING THE GAP.

Omaha, Neb., April 25.—[Friend of the Insured.]—I own a farm in the western part of the state and carry fire insurance on all the buildings, but have been told that if the buildings should burn as a result of a tornado I cannot collect unless I have tornado insurance. I can appreciate the need for tornado insurance in this part of the country against destruction of property due to high winds, but cannot see what tornado insurance has to do with covering a fire loss. An explanation from you will be greatly appreciated.—M. M. M.

This question has been the source of considerable difficulty in years past in making loss adjustments when a tornado and fire loss occurred simultaneously. The fire policy provides that coverage shall cease immediately after a building insured [or containing the property insured], or a part thereof, falls, except as a result of fire. A building may fall as a result of a cyclone, earthquake, explosion, or be knocked down by an automobile, or even an airplane, and in each case the fire insurance policy becomes inoperative except in the case of explosion where the fire policy continues to cover the resultant fire following the explosion. To eliminate and clarify the question of whether the fire policy or the tornado policy should pay the loss, a clause called "Bridging the Fire Tornado Gap" is attached to all tornado policies, providing that should the building or any material part thereof fall, as a result of windstorm or tornado, immediately followed by fire as a direct result, the tornado insurance will pay the entire loss. Therefore, should a windstorm cause part of your farm buildings to fall, the fire insurance policy would cease to function, leaving you unprotected for the fire loss. This is the gap between fire and tornado policies. Tornado insurance with the "Bridging the Fire Tornado Gap" attached closes this gap.

When both fire and tornado insurance is carried on the same building or group of buildings, it is advisable to have both forms written in the same company.

THE FORGOTTEN WOMAN.

Chicago, May 3.—The news of a law going to pass to allow municipalities to go into bankruptcy is a climax to all my worries over financial losses in defaulted bonds, closed banks, cut earnings, and loss of jobs.

I worked hard since 1884 and struggled to set aside small amounts for the time when I would be forced to retire from old age.

I invested $5,000 in North Carolina bonds and another $5,000 in Michigan bonds. Now with the stroke of a small pen in the powerful hand of a strong executive I may be doomed to become a charge on the state. Has repeal addled the brains of congress to the extent of destroying all human considerations?

I am only one individual owning worthless bonds, but my distress can be multiplied by millions of others, who should use this column to protest against such lawmakers as we have in congress.

SEEING THE PARADE.

Chicago, May 4.—In a few days another great procession will parade down our Michigan boulevard to celebrate the opening of A Century of Progress. Thousands of people from far and near will come over to the lake front to see the parade, but not over half of them will get much more than a peek in on account of a lot of selfish people who will form a solid wall standing on boxes, high baskets, barrels, etc., which shuts off all the view of people on the sidewalks. These boys and men have been getting bolder and bolder every year until now there are no restrictions. During the Legion parade this human wall extended out to the center of the street and barely left room for the paraders. The bringing of boxes over to Michigan boulevard should not be allowed, which would give every one an even chance to see and enjoy themselves.

THE PRICE OF COAL UNDER NRA.

Chicago, May 3.—In this morning's TRIBUNE you have a news item announcing that a ruling of the NRA, equalizing the prices for lake and all rail eastern coal, will increase Chicago's coal cost $2,000,000 yearly.

This gross misstatement, this wild distortion of facts and childlike acceptance on your part of a prejudiced authority cannot go unnoticed.

Chicago coal dealers handle about ten million tons of coal annually. Of this tonnage less than 5 per cent is handled by the dock companies. Therefore, because of this NRA ruling less than 5 per cent of Chicago's truckload coal will be increased 25 cents a ton. Your pencil will indicate that your distortion amounts to 1,600 per cent.

You state most clearly that railroad carlot buyers are allowed by the mine owners to purchase only relatively small amounts of coal at a time. Tommyrot!

You also state that coal bought and stored at low summer prices can be sold under the market in the winter time. Of course it can; it should be; it's worth less. Freshly mined coal is always more valuable.

When reporting NRA news I suggest you confine yourself to the facts.

BOYS AND GIRLS AT THE BALL PARKS.

Chicago, May 4.—Both the Cubs and Sox managements admit women free on Ladies' day. Why not a break for the boys and girls of school age? The prices now are the same for adults and children, while the movies, A Century of Progress, and other big educational and entertainment enterprises make special provision for children. Wrigley field and Comiskey field have not been filled over 50 per cent so far this season. A special price of 10 cents or 25 cents for children would swell the revenue. Who are the future big league fans and players?

MORE ABOUT TAXI RATES.

Chicago, May 3.—In reply to J. R. Hoffman's comment on the 25 cent taxicab ride in Buffalo, may I ask if the drivers there are making living wages? Also, is the company operating at this rate a responsible one? Can it pay its claims for personal injuries or will it go along for two or three years, like a lot of Chicago companies did, and go out of business when the claims amounted to too much?

In figuring taxi rates you have to consider whether the driver is making a living and whether the company protects the public by paying damage claims.

BRITISH DECLARE OPEN TRADE WAR WITH JAPANESE

Import Quotas on Textile Goods Ordered.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 7.—Great Britain is not going to take trade competition with Japan lying down. From today, in all crown colonies and territories controled from London, Japanese imports in cotton and rayon goods will be strictly limited by quota.

In Britain the import duties board has been ordered to make an immediate report on measures necessary to protect the home market from products of underpaid Japanese labor and the self-governing dominions are expected to take parallel action.

This announcement was made in the house of commons this afternoon by Walter Runciman, president of the Board of Trade. He has been negotiating with the Japanese ambassador, Tsuneo Matsudaira, since the breakdown of the conference between Japanese and Lancashire industrialists and has found it impossible to reach any agreement with Japan for limitation of the textile market.

Urges Colonies to Act.

In the circumstances, it was said, Britain could not sit still and see her markets filched from her. She, therefore, has asked the colonial and imperial government to enact the necessary measures immediately and to put them in effect retrospectively from today in order to prevent any attempt to frustrate protective measures by rushing in goods before the new regulations take effect.

Runciman, while making it clear that Britain is taking the firmest possible stand with Japan also made it equally clear that she is not seeking a quarrel. He said the door is open any time for a friendly agreement with Japan if that nation makes advances.

In pursuance of this policy of a friendly trade war, it has been decided not to denounce the commercial treaty and to continue trading on the usual terms with Japan in other goods in which prices are normal.

Leaves Door Open.

While Britain has not said so in so many words, it is understood that the London government is putting itself in a position to bargain and expects Japan to come around soon to a sensible view.

The only exception to the quota regulations will be the west African colonies, where special treaties with Japan prevent any discrimination. Notice has been given, however, to denounce these treaties. If the quarrel is not settled before their expiration they too will fall in line.

The quotas will be fixed as far as possible to compare with the average of Japanese imports to these countries in the period from 1927 to 1931.

Tokio Calls Loss "Trifling."

TOKIO, May 8.—[Tuesday.]—(AP)—Government officials today professed to be little disturbed over Great Britain's application of restrictions to Japanese exports to crown colonies.

Statistics were cited to show that the total amount of exports affected would amount to only 1 per cent of the nation's 1933 total. Since exports for the first quarter of 1933 have shown an increase of 24.5 per cent over those of the like period of 1933 the prospective loss was termed "trifling."

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farm

By Bob Becker

Plows in Goggles

May 7, 1934.

MANY things have happened on the experimental farm since I went trout fishing in Wisconsin. Among other things field have been plowed and seeded with corn; the boys have had to put on goggles while plowing because the dust is so bad in the dry fields; a watersnake wiggled into the pipe feeding the hydraulic ram and stopped this piece of machinery, and two of the white swans on the farm have been found to be bigamists.

Plowing and corn planting have taken most of the time of everybody here on the farm during the last few days. Johnson and Sleezer tackled a field known as "one of thirties," a thirty acre tract on the south side of the Fox river. Big clouds of dust rolled from this acreage when the machinery turned over the soil.

While this field was being prepared a small 6 acre tract which had been made ready was planted with corn and soy beans. The boys "checked" in the soy beans with the corn. This is a stunt in which soy bean seeds are planted in the corn hills so that the two plants grow up together.

There are two reasons for the checking system. In the first place the soy beans make the corn field less desirable to chinch bugs, which do not like legumes. Secondly, the field has better forage possibilities for fall use.

Jack and Gene, the old reliable work horses here on the farm, had the doubtful honor of putting in the first corn of 1934. They were chosen for the work of tramping across the dry fields where the wind was blowing up big clouds of dust.

Johnson came away from the ram muttering and growling about watersnakes minding their own business, not because of the work involving in fixing up the machinery, but because of the fact that when he opened the door of the little wooden shelter which houses the ram a stream of water from the disabled pump hit him smack in the face. In fact, water was shooting out of the machinery in all directions.

The 31 Hereford steers, which have been fattened up for the market, are leaving the farm tonight for Chicago. Ten of this bunch are going to be shipped by truck. The C., B. & Q. railroad is picking up the balance of them at a little station called Fox which is close to the farm. I am going to go out to the stockyards tomorrow to see how these Herefords check in and how they fare at the hands of the buyers.

The continued drouth has made it hard on both men and horses when they are working in the field. Clarence Thurow, manager of the farm, has provided goggles for the boys so as to give their eyes protection against the choking clouds of dust which are kicked up when either the tractors or the horses haul machinery through the fields.

The curiosity of a watersnake brought about a big surprise yesterday. When the hydraulic ram failed to do any more pumping of spring water to the barns and one of the houses, Johnson went down to check it up. When he examined the machinery and found that a watersnake had slipped into the feed pipe and down into the ram, thus acting as a "monkey wrench" to the machinery, he marked it down as the first time that a snake had interfered with any of the machinery here on the farm.

Of course, once the snake had entered the 3 inch pipe leading from the spring to the ram itself it didn't have a chance to get out because the pipe represents a slippery downhill slide right into the machinery. The reptile had finally lodged in the plunger of the hydraulic ram and kept it from functioning.

BRITON ATTACKS SALE OF ARMS TO 'RIVAL POWERS'

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 7.—A vigorous attack on the international armaments trafic was launched in the house of lords tonight by Lord Ponsonby, leader of the Labor opposition. He offered a resolution urging the government to adopt a more decided policy both in the far east and at the disarmament conference.

Lord Ponsonby referred to Japan's conquest of Manchuria, declaring that neither the British government nor the league of nations intervened. The league lost much prestige and consequently Japan established a kind of Monroe Doctrine in eastern Asia, he pointed out.

Charges Pact Was Violated.

The military occupation of several Chinese provinces by Japan obviously is incompatible with the nine-power treaty, Lord Ponsonby insisted. He deplored Britain's weak submission to Japanese demands.

"I notice," he added, "that a Japanese prince is visiting this country. I have seen pictures of him inspecting British guns. He no doubt is giving orders to British armament firms to furnish guns to Japan which conceivably in the future might be trained against British troops and ships.

"I saw a leaflet sent by a big British armament firm to Germany. It was printed in German, with a large picture of a magnificent tank. I believe it has been withdrawn. We are trying to supply armaments to Germany privately while publicly we are protesting because Germany is rearming. I suppose the same thing is going on with Japan because in the photograph the Japanese prince looked exceedingly pleased with the British guns."

The Japanese royal visitors at present in London are Prince Kaya and his wife. They arrived on April 26 for a three weeks' stay.

Earl Stanhope, undersecretary of foreign affairs, replied to Lord Ponsonby's attack in behalf of the government. "Regarding recent events in the far east," he said, "some people thought Britain should have pulled everybody's chestnuts out of the fire."

He reminded Lord Ponsonby that the Japanese government recently assured the British ambassador at Tokio that she intended to abide by the nine-power treaty and the open door policy in China.

Says Britain Is Satisfied.

"Naturally," replied Earl Stanhope. "We are satisfied with the assurances of a friendly nation."

Continuing, he declared that the Britich government's policy is to stand by the league of nations and attempt to secure Germany's return to the Geneva organization.

The earl said that on the matter of disarmament the government favors some definite system of control, and as long as there is a vestige of hope it will continue to exert every effort to achieve success.

DUELISTS WOUND EACH OTHER IN ROW ON CARTOON

LIMA, Peru, May 7.—(AP)—A cartoon depicting the late President Luis M. Sanchez Cerro as a cannibal feeding off his own country led to a sword duel today in which both combatants were wounded.

For the publication Moore was fined by the emergency court and La Calle was suppressed. He was sent to jail in default of payment of the fine, but was released when friends paid, and he then challenged to fight Cerro.

MASSEN URGES STATE TO BUILD SUPERHIGHWAY

Says Widening of Streets Won't Meet City Need.

BY HAL FOUST.

Ald. John A. Massen [48th], chairman of the city council trafic committee, yesterday cited automobile accident records and construction cost figures as arguments against the substitution of surface street widening for the elevated highways proposed for the west side. Gov. Horner and his engineers at Springfield are debating the route and design for a new west side superhighway.

"The state should hesitate to approve any major street widening program in view of Chicago's experience with Western and Ashland avenues and La Salle street," said Ald Massen, whose committee recently completed a three year study of the street transportation problem. "These three broadened thoroughfares, on my last examination of the record, were accounting for 12 per cent of the city's motor fatalities.

Saving With a Superhighway.

"Each additional 10 foot trafic lane in these three projects cost $384,000 a mile, including the necessary property acquisition and damages. An elevated highway of four lanes, with two additional lanes for accelerating and decelerating at the ramps, can be built for $431,000 a mile. On the basis of trafic capacity, the elevated structure can be built for 15.5 per cent of the cost of the street widening."

Several proposals have been made to construct parkways from the loop westward to furnish this section of the city with new recreational areas and to remove some of the slum on the outskirts of the business district.

"This is a problem facing our new consolidated park board," said Ald. Massen. "It's a worthy enterprise, but it's foreign to my duties as chairman of the council trafic committe.

Highway Taxes Diverted.

"The gasoline taxes and license fees collected from motorists cannot properly be spent for park development or for improvements intended mainly to enhance the value of real estate," said Ald. Massen. "Much of these special taxes have already been diverted from the road fund and it now behooves public officials to make the most of the limited available funds to better trafic facilities."

Chicago motorists annually pay approximately $12,695,000 in state gasoline tax and $8,148,000 in state license fees. Cook county receives $4,500,000 a year of the motor fuel levy, but almost all of this has been diverted to charity. Chicago, beginning Jan. 1, is receiving about $5,400,000 a year of the motor fuel revenue, but $2,247,000 has been pledged for school teachers' back salaries.

Route Up to Governor.

"It's a state obligation to build the main arteries for heavy volumes of through trafic," Ald. Massen said. "The governor should select the route and the design based solely on trafic requirements, uninfluenced by local improvement clubs and local politicians. The Chicago board of local improvements can take care of the minor widening and repaving jobs on secondary routes in the city."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, May 7.—Moise Claude, 81, hanged himself yesterday near the grave of his wife. He had visited the grave weekly for the last seven years, it was revealed today at the inquest into his death.

FACED BY SOBBING MOTHER, HAMMEL DENIES HE'S SON

Spurns Her and Keeps Composure.

Robert Lee Hammel, the "triple identity" prisoner in the county jail, yesterday faced his gray haired mother and, in the face of her tears, denied that he had ever seen her before.

Hammel is charged with the theft of $39,000 on Dec. 17 from the Brinks Express company, by which he was employed. When he was arrested a month ago in the east, he asserted that he was Burt Armstrong, a New York renting agent. He has held to that contention since, in the face of identifications by fellow employés and his wife and five children in Chicago. He denies knowledge of any events prior to last December, and psychiatrists are at variance as to whether he is a genuine victim of a dual personality or is faking in an effort to escape punishment for the theft.

Brother Accompanies Mother.

After his arrest it was learned that Hammel left Columbus, O., in 1918, after he had been dismissed from the police department there for taking bribes. He had a wife and two children in that city, and in Chicago he used the name of a younger brother, Allen R. Hammel. The real Allen Hammel and his wife accompanied the mother, Mrs. Ella McLeon Hammel, in her visit to the county jail yesterday.

Hamel first refused to see them, but they were taken to see him by Assistant State's Attorney Morris G. Meyers, in charge of the prosecution of the Brinks Express theft charge. Allen Hammel extended his hand when they met, saying, "Hello, Bob," and the mother stepped forward with outstretched arms, exclaiming, "My boy!"

"Take these people away," said the prisoner in a supercilious manner. "I don't know them."

Swears He Is Her Son.

"Before God," said the mother, "you're my boy. Don't you remember our home in Circleville, where you were born? Don't you remember having that shield tattooed on your arm in 1906?"

"Madam," said the prisoner, "I don't know what you're talking about."

Hammel laughed.

"Bobby," said the mother, "I'd know your laugh any place."

When the group of relatives started to leave Allen Hammel again held out his hand and his brother took it. Then the prisoner turned to his mother, bowed deeply, and said, "Madam, I'm very glad to have met you."

Mrs. Hammel, who had been warned in advance of her son's behavior, had held up well during the interview, but at this she broke into sobs. She threw her arms about the prisoner and kissed him. He was annoyed by this, and gently pushing the gray haired woman away, said:

"I'm very sorry, madam, but I do not know you."

Mrs. Hammel, after leaving the bull pen where she had visited her son, ascribed his condition to an accident which he suffered while on the Columbus police force. He was thrown from his motorcycle and suffered a skull injury. After that, she said, he frequently suffered lapses of memory.

In 1918 Hammel left Columbus, appearing in Chicago shortly thereafter. His mother collected a $2,000 life insurance policy seven years later on the presumption that he was dead.

"It would be a shame to send a sick man to the penitentiary," she said in comment on her son's behavior.

Suit for $1,000 against Hammel and Police Commissioner James P. Allman was filed in Municipal court yesterday by the Brinks Express company, through their attorneys, Eugene E. Murphy and Frank A. Ramsey.

Mrs. Owings President of Junior League

Assumes Office at Annual Luncheon Meeting.

BY JUDITH CASS.

IT was with a good deal of emotion in her voice and to the accompaniment of thunderous applause that Miss Margot Atkin, outgoing president of the Junior league of Chicago, turned over the presidency to Mrs. Nathaniel Owings yesterday noon at the annual meeting and luncheon at the Saddle and Cycle club. The ovation for Miss Atkin carried over into one for Mrs. Owings as they exchanged seats.

Others voted into office yesterday are Mrs. Alfred M. Wolfe, first vice president; Miss Jean Armstrong, second vice president; Miss Adelaide Atkin, secretary, and Mrs. Ronald Chinnock, treasurer. The board of directors includes Mrs. James R. Addington, Miss Margot Atkin, Miss Helen Bell, Miss Elaine Blackman, Miss Harriet Borland, Mrs. John L. Cochran, Mrs. Ambrose C. Cramer, Mrs. Gordon Laing, Miss Dorothy Schmidt, Mrs. Carleton Scribner, and Mrs. Ewing T. Webb.

About 150 members gathered for the meeting, which began at 10:30, and a very gay scene it was with brilliant spring sunshine sparkling on the lake outside and a riot of spring colors in prints, hats, and scarves indoors. By the time the buffet luncheon was served there were well over 200 present, one of the largest gatherings the league has had.

Over chicken or sole, peas, fruit, or ice cream, the members chatted about the business that had been discussed in the meeting earlier. Miss Helen Bell, manager of the Children's theater, reported on the success of "Peter Pan," produced last winter, and on the theater on the Enchanted Island last summer.

Change Schedule for Plays at Fair.

The first of the league productions at the Fair this summer, "Aladdin," will open in less than three weeks. To the delight of the girls who will give their time and efforts to the success of the theater this summer Miss Bell announced that the league plays this year will be produced Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of each week, thereby not interfering with long week-ends in the country for the young actresses.

Mrs. Carleton Scribner was heard with interest, too, as she told about the trials and tribulations of the league's fortnightly publication, the Chicago Calendar, of which she is editor in chief.

The league's third project, besides the theater and the Calendar, is not often heard of, but it is a consistently successful one—the Lake Forest book shop. Mrs. Addington is chairman of it this year.

Mrs. Cramer read an interesting report on future plans of the arts and interests committee, of which she is chairman, and Mrs. Norman Pritchard reported on the successful campaign the league has just carried out for publicizing the Fair in various public and private schools in Chicago and suburbs.

Farmington Alumnae Elect Officers.

At the Farmington Alumnae business luncheon yesterday at the Casino the following were elected officers: Miss Ruth Matz, president; Mrs. Clark J. Lawrence, vice president; Mrs. Clarke Washburne, treasurer, and Mrs. Edgar Freeman, secretary.

It was decided to continue the financial support to the Farmington room at Passavant hospital, which was founded some years ago in memory of Miss Sarah Porter, who founded the school at Farmington, Conn., and to give part of the alumnae funds to Farmington lodge in Connecticut and the rest to the Visiting Nurse association.

May Stillwell to Visit City.

Mrs. Stuyvesant Peabody told us yesterday just after she had returned from the Derby—a highly successful week-end it was for her, too, for she had bet on Cavalcade and also had drawn him in the pool she and Mr. Peabody and their house party formed—that Mr. Peabody's niece, May Stillwell, would be in Chicago about the 22d of this month.

Young Miss Stillwell, the eldest daughter of Mrs. Charles Glidden Osborne of Highfields, Marlow, England, and Addison Stillwell of Chicago, is sailing on the 16th with friends and will come directly to Chicago from New York. That she will be entertained extensively during her month's visit with the Peabodys is assured, for her mother is enormously popular here and every one is looking forward to meeting "little May" and to helping to give her a good time in the city she called home until she was about eight years old.

Mrs. Peabody is planning to give a tea and a dance for her soon after she arrives, but she won't make definite plans until after Miss Stillwell is here. The Peabody family expects to spend the summer on the farm at Lemont, Ill., where they go for week-ends whenever possible all during the year.

Mrs. Edward Miller-Mills and Miss Katherine Carr are the only Chicagoans listed among the 21 Americans who will be presented at the British court on May 15 and 16. Mrs. Robert W. Bingham, wife of the American ambassador, will present the Americans, 13 on the 15th and 8 on the 16th. Miss Carr will make her bow to royalty at the first court and Mrs. Miller-Mills at the second.

Book Sale Today at White Elephant.

Mrs. Augustus K. Maxwell, who, with her family, has moved from her Lake Shore drive apartment to their home at Lake Geneva for the summer, is coming to town today to take charge of the annual book sale at the White Elephant Rummage shop, which is

Hair Is Short in Styles for Sports Wear

Summer Coiffures Seen at Beauty Show.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

Half a dozen new coiffures guaranteed to remain presentable even for the most active sports and beach enthusiasts, were shown members of the Chicago and Illinois Hairdressers association last night as the association's official fashions for the summer months.

The selections were made by the hairstyle committee. More than 400 beauty shop operators viewed the new styles approving of the shortness of hair, fewness of curls and simplicity of line designed to be in keeping with the sports fashions predicted for this summer. The meeting was held at the Hotel Sherman.

Marc Gartman, president, in commenting on the selections pointed out that the short and simple hairdress will give the wearer the freedom of participating in the entire program of summer sports.

"The hair is definitely short," Mr. Gartman said. "The shadow wave is used for the upper part of the hair giving a soft, slightly waved appearance. The hair is not shingled. Most certainly there is no tendency to make the bob appear mannish. Though short, the hair turns upward in very few but feminine curls at the nape of the neck, sometimes with a single roll, or falling in a small cluster. The hair is, of course, combed back off the forehead in the streamline effect so popular these days."

A bob for general wear was shown. The hair was cut a medium length, with one row of curls turned up softly and with the upper part of the hair in shadow waves. The stylist pointed out that the one row of curls after two or three days would become softly fluffy giving a fullness to the bob.

For active sports such as tennis, bicycling, skating and bathing, a modified shingle was shown. This had no curls. The shadow wave was used to the neckline with the hair turned up in front to soften the face.

A short bob worn with sports frocks was combed back off the ears, with a row of curls on the heavy side and a definit wave toward the hairline. There was a slight curl behind the ears to give fullness.

For a bridge tea or informal summer wear a model displayed soft clusters of curls along the neck line. Here again the shadow wave was used until it met the curls, and again the hair was turned up revealing the natural hairline at the nape of the neck.

One stylist had designed the "tricorn," for informal wear. The roll started from the ears, curling upward and meeting at the middle of the back in a tricorn cluster of curls.

For summer formal wear a short bob had been curled in parallel rolls high on the head with a suggestion of a wave on either side. These were arranged in a decided swirl.

A bandeau in solid or contrasting colors may be worn to keep the hair in place. This is especially practical for active sports. Some are wrapped in cord to keep them from slipping.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

When a woman sets out to find the powder shade that is THE perfect one for her she might just as well make up her mind to put time and money into the search. Unless she has a fairy godmother to endow her with luck she's going to make mistakes. It seems to us that the cleverest thing to do is to get person-to-person advice. Picking a powder by long distance is the height of folly. You may be pretty certain that you're a brunette but if you go only by the book rules you might miss your own shade by a mile.

In most of the shops you can get expert advice; in some you can even have powders blended for you. This is practically foolproof. The only other method is to experiment for yourself. Shades are your own problem, to solve as best you can. Right now we're all a little less pale than we've been through the winter and the old standby of the cold months may be looking a little obvious.

If you're on a powder hunt we urge you to look at one powder that's just been knocking them dead in New York but is something of a newcomer around here. It's a swell powder, feathery in texture but not inclined to desert you five minutes after you put it on.

It comes in three shades, a good rachel, a natural and an elegant sun tan. You'll find it in several stores around town and [goodie, goodie!] it isn't expensive. Look for the little red boxes next time you're beauty shopping.

And while we're on the subject, take a tip from us on the business of powdering. There's only one way to do it and do it right. Just splash it on with a big fluffy puff, let it settle a bit and then smooth it down with a brush or a puff. Don't rub it in. You don't look very handsome while you're doing it—but you'll look plenty beautiful afterwards. It's a smooth finish—and that's what you want.

ELEANOR NANGLE.

Smart Feather Capes Offered for the Summer

BY RHEA SEEGER.

There's much ado about feathers. But the fuss is worth it, you'll agree after one glance at a freshly picked collection just displayed for your critical approval. The most exciting feathered creations are the smart new capes of marabou for summer wear. Wait until you see them. They are probably just what you have wanted for weeks. Ask to see the smoky gray number that reaches to waist length and has a short little stand-up collar. It will make a gray street costume that will stop trafic. So will the navy blue and the spicy ginger brown capes, that any one could wear.

Molyneux, that wizard who designs such glamorous clothes for discriminating women, is sponsoring capes with ostrich feathers dripping from the edges that are a knockout for your pet evening gowns. Long fluffy plumes are attached to the rippling edges of thin silk capes, and what they [the entire capes] will do for evening splendor is something to gloat over. There is an emerald green affair that simply shrieks to be worn over icy white gleaming satin or dull white heavy crêpe. And a pale lemony green that will swing alluringly over summer sheers and organdies.

They have concocted a new scheme with ostrich feathers, an entire cape of pastel tinted feathers cut in a new manner that resembles drifts of snowflakes. Hence the name, snowflake ostrich capes. Then there are shaded effects—the long, slinky, but most effective feather boas, of pastel pink ostrich combined with pale gray heckle feathers. One breath taking beauty is three yards long.

Others are of scarlet and of evening shades will make you groan because you can't have them all.

And until you have seen what clever feather mixers can do with common rooster feathers, in a vivid red boa of the same, you have missed a lot.

Good Morning!

This light, bright little comedy drama with music strikes its roots into radioland and winds its story tentacles 'round characters of the airways.

Whenever I see Pat O'Brien as the sort of fourflusher he is in this pix, I like to think of the responses made by his little niece, Cora Sue Collins, when interviewed recently:

Q. Who is your favorite actor?

A. My uncle, Pat O'Brien.

Q. What actor do you most enjoy working with?

A. My uncle, Pat O'Brien.

Q. What is your favorite type of man?

A. My uncle, Pat O'Brien.

I like to think of it because Uncle Pat O'Brien can certainly be no heel in private life!

In this picture My Uncle, Pat O'Brien, is a bombastic talent-discoverer-and-putter-over-er. But the sort of talent he hauls in and his methods of exploitation, etc., have got him in vurr' bad with the Consolidated Radio corporation.

He goes to Hollywood, and there discovers, knocking 'em dead in a honky tonk with his rendition of "The Man on the Flying Trapeze," a singing waiter. [Mr. Dick Powell in a Legree-ish mustache.]

Eventually the two land in New York and the brazen Blake sets out to sell his find to his old boss. An audition is arranged. Though Clayton begs to be allowed to sing a good song, Blake insists he screech "The Man on the Flying Trapeze" with trimmings.

Again Blake and Clayton find themselves in the bread line—or so to speak.

Well—a Kiddie's Hour "uncle" writes a classy number called "I'll String Along with You." Blake hears Clayton trying it out for the composer. He recognizes the born crooner. . . .

How, with the assistance of Ginger Rogers, who sings on the Carlotta Soap hour, he plans an audition that lands Clayton a contract, how romance flowers from the acquaintance of Clayton and Peggy [Ginger], how Smart Aleck Blake gums things all up again—and subsequently ungums them—are matters which entertainingly occupy your attention.

Mr. O'Brien gets your goat—as he's meant to do. Ginger Rogers is adorable as the square shooting Peggy. Dick Powell will delight you. He not only puts several w. k. crooners in the shade this trip but has developed a new and most pleasing exuberance of manner. He seems to get a kick out of his rôle, with the result that—so do you. Allen Jenkins is funny—and Grant Mitchell as the station manager and Joseph Cawthorne as the man behind the Carlotta Soap hour amuse.

The Mills Brothers, Three Radio Rogues, and Ted Fio Rito and his band oblige.

"Twenty Million Sweethearts" is laudably clean and brief.

Fairbanks, Miss Lawrence Appear on Stage Together

MANCHESTER, England, May 7.—(AP)—Douglas Fairbanks Jr. and Gertrude Lawrence, the English actress whom many friends expect him to marry, appeared on the stage together for the first time here tonight. They had the stage to themselves for twenty minutes in Phillip Cleaver's "The Winding Journey." The scene gave a special opportunity to Miss Lawrence, but little scope to Fairbanks, who evidently was voluntarily acting as a foil for the actress.

Front Views and Profiles

By June Provines

THAT chic and smiling woman you may have seen carrying a broom and dustpan down Lake Shore drive the other day was, believe it or not, Mrs. John Alden Carpenter. She was carrying them from her graystone mansion at Bellevue place and Lake Shore drive to the temporary office opened by the Illinois Children's Home and Aid society at 946 North Michigan avenue, where the tickets for the Inaugural ball that will open the "Streets of Paris" at the World's Fair May 26 are being handled. The broom and dustpan were two of Mrs. Carpenter's contributions to the new office which is being operated on an every-penny-for charity basis. But to a reportorial eye it looked like news—Mrs. Carpenter carrying a broom and dustpan.

Sight—Trees—Individualists.

BY WAY of report. One of the woodland settings at the Boat and Sports show at Navy pier would seem to indicate that trees don't need roots to grow. Elm and ironwood trees and huge oaks that were cut off at the base and transported rootless and leafless to their places under the huge canopy at the pier now are in full leaf, growing apparently from the spring saps till running in the trees.

THE other day a woman wrote to ask if we know who cuts the hair of Mrs. James Ward Thorne. The writer admired her blonde soignee head very much, she said, quite as much as her handiwork as demonstrated in the miniature rooms, a whole new series of which, even more charming than the last, is approaching final perfection in Mrs. Thorne's Lake Shore drive apartment. We were surprised at the question, although it happens that on previous occasions we had been asked a similar one about Mrs. Walter Paepcke and Mrs. Frederic McLaughlin. All three women have blonde locks; all three are among the acknowledged beauties of Chicago, and all three—prepare yourselves, you devotees of the beauty parlor—cut their hair themselves, preferably with a pair of old manicure scissors.

WE MAY be doing a service revealing this, but of heresy [no pun intended], or it may turn out disastrously for experimenters. But it seems of passing interest that in a world where women now are as enslaved to the barber as men, three outstanding women who had the courage to cut their own hair have had the results so lavishly admired. But, to be strictly honest, it must be added that Mrs. Thorne, who always cuts her own hair [with the dull manicure scissors] when she is away from home, sometimes has a favorite hairdresser do it for her when she is in Chicago.

Unusual Beauty Treatment Combines Face and Foot Care

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

There's a certain New York salon where you get a facial only if you consent to have your feet gone over at the same time, not as a chiropodist attacks your feet. Your tootsies and your instep and your ankles are treated to what might be called a foot-facial. You get massage and exercise, and more message and a soothing lotion, all this while your face is being rejuvenated with cream and muscle oil and such message treatment as promises a new face, or, at least, a revival of the best in the old face.

A smart idea, this, tying up feet and face as blood relatives. Heaven only knows, along with the foot sufferer, how closely allied are the pains in the toes with lines in the faces. Most folk think of their feet as distant from face troubles as is the north pole from the south.

In the salon, of which I speak, presided over by a former nurse and student of orthopedics, the face treatment is incidental. The foot rejuvenation is the thing that is going to make the patron step out feeling there are still years of good going.

ENGAGEMENTS

Maurice F. Holahan of 5555 Everett avenue announces the engagement of his daughter, Margaret, to Frank R. Howard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Howard of 919 North Humphrey avenue, Oak Park. Miss Holahan is a graduate of the University of Chicago. Mr. Howard also is a graduate of Chicago.

Bojanowski Is Conductor for Polish Concert

Two Numbers Heard Here for First Time.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Long continued applause rose in Orchestra hall last night where Jerzy Bojanowski was appearing as guest conductor of the People's Symphony orchestra and presenting a concert in an admirable fashion.

The event was sponsored by the Polish Arts club of Chicago under the sponsorship of Titus Zbyszewski, consul general of Poland, and Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, honorary co-chairman. Mr. Bojanowski, formerly the conductor of a famous symphony orchestra in Warsaw, accordingly arranged his program so that half of it should be of Polish music, two numbers of which thereby receiving their first performances in this country.

He is evidently a conductor fully aware of how to direct a concert to make it interesting. He is alive to the value of the rhythmic accent, the brisk tempo, and the sustained melody, and he is a commanding personality well able to transmit his opinions and desires to the players under his baton.

Only in such sections as the third movement of Tschaikowsky's Sixth Symphony did the performance seem to lag in the matter of smashing climax, and that, one might imagine, was more due to the medium proportions of the orchestra than to any failure on the part of either conductor or orchestral members.

The most pleasant feature of the Polish music was its good melody and its lack of bombast. One of the new numbers was "Zbojnicy," by Maklakiewicz, described as a "Mountaineer Ballet," and making no pretense of being anything but ballet music of different speeds, characters and accentuations.

The other novelty was a Lithuanian rhapsody by Karlowicz, a sunny, serene and highly attractive work. At the end was a selection from Moniuszko's opera, "Straszny Dwor," one of the best melodies of all, and containing all the exciting fervor that has made the mazurka Poland's own dance.

In all three the music spoke for its own sake, putting little dependence upon distorted harmonies, atonality, or any other of the most fashionable modern effects.

A Vicious Circle

By ALICE CAMPBELL

SYNOPSIS.

Dorinda Quarles is found stabbed to death after a dinner party in her Paris apartment. Unscrupulous, Dorinda had served a drug to her fourteen guests. Helen Roderick, who was a friend of Dorinda's mother, Lady Agatha, discovers the crime early next morning, and all the guests, except Dinah Blake, young American artist, lying about in deep sleep. Tommy Rostetter, a journalist, was Dinah's dinner partner. Dinah's engagement to Christopher Loughton, in the American embassy, was, according to rumor, broken on account of Dorinda. Dinah returns two days later, her memory a blank, to the apartment she shares with her cousin, Hallie Pemberton. She had been sleeping in the studio of absent friends. Tommy persuades her to pretend an engagement to him, to prevent a jealousy motive. Basil Jethro, Dorinda's stepfather, celebrated Oxford scholar, was her guardian and trustee. Tommy suspects Jethro and searches for proof. Bannister Mowbray, one of the fatal dinner guests, commits suicide. Tommy confides to Loughton his suspicion of Jethro. Loughton volunteers to go to London for further investigations. He meets Rank Rostetter, Tommy's nephew, who is attending Oxford. Rank has a friend, Bilfilian, who claims, while on a vacation in Paris, he saw Jethro in a Montmartre dive. Tommy believes that Jethro registered as two persons in the Stanislas hotel, where he stopped the night of the murder, one in disguise, as Jethro had not been seen leaving the hotel. A Dr. Klauber from Prague had the room next to Jethro's. Jethro learns of Tommy's inquiries. When Loughton returns from London Tommy has disappeared and Dinah has been arrested for murder. Their engagement has been discovered to be a hoax. A reconstruction of the crime is held to try to force a confession from Dinah.

INSTALMENT L.

THE CRIME RECONSTRUCTED.

Dinah had reached the point where recollection ceased. Presently, with the wardress in close attendance, she was herded upstairs to Dorinda Quarles' bedroom, where she was surrounded by the other women.

"Keep it up," said a voice. "We aren't all of us down on you. Get that? You've had a rotten deal, but you can beat them yet if you don't weaken."

Cicely Gault? She was nonchalantly manipulating her lipstick before the mirror, but it was she who had spoken. Cissy Gault, whom she scarcely knew. What did she mean? That among these people a few believed her innocent, or that disbelieving they still did not condemn her?

Suddenly, with the rustle of women's dresses in her ears and the lights beating down on her, an idea wholly terrible struck her full force. Tommy, too, felt certain she had committed this crime. He had gone away because he had tried to save her and failed. Of course, he had known she was guilty. Of course, of course! Why hadn't she seen through it before? He had been awake and watched her as she took up the knife and drove it into Dorinda's breast. That was why he dared not come forward now. He was afraid he would do her more harm than good.

The last prop splintered. Why fight any longer if this was so? She continued to stand upright and motionless, her eyes fixed with a glassy stare.

"Keep him out, send him away! If he makes trouble, why, take him in charge. . . ."

Who was to be kept out? Dinah, descending the stairs, got a dull impression of some disturbance going on amongst the sergeants, whom the inspector was haranguing in angry tones. But it meant nothing to her. A reporter, probably, bent on getting into the apartment. The salon already was slightly foggy with cigaret smoke. The gramophone was playing "Miss Virginia." A new record, bought for the occasion.

"Mademoiselle, come with me."

Gramont clutched her bare arm and dragged her into the dining room, where it was nearly dark. Time had ceased to exist. She only knew that for endless hours she had been repeating, "I can't say. I don't remember."

She felt herself pushed and pulled about like a mechanical doll. Gramont consulted a little book, frowned, gauged distances, swore under his breath, and moved her again. Now he was satisfied. The window was open, the cool damp breeze blowing in. Was that big armchair intended for her to sit in? Apparently so. She sat down, facing the table.

"There! Is that the position, mademoiselle?"

"I don't know. Is it?"

"Where was your friend, M. Rostetter?"

"I don't know. Wherever he said he was."

The judge gave a furious snort and turned away.

Directly in front of her was the dish of grapes. On it lay the new knife. How close it was! She could stretch out her hand and grasp it. She shuddered, thinking that this was what she must have done, and, averting her eyes, gazed with faint wonderment at the altered salon. About ten feet away she saw something which made her want to laugh hysterically. It was the thickest sergeant who had taken Dorinda's place, lying now full length on the big divan, with one arm dangling downward.

"So, the knife displeases you, does it? Never mind, you must look at it. Keep looking at it till I tell you to stop."

Very well, she didn't mind. She fixed her eyes on the steel till the sight of it seemed to hypnotize her.

The lights were all extinguished now, though flames from the hearth in the other room cast great shadows on the wall opposite. The voice in her ear brought her to herself with a jerk.

"Mademoiselle! Look back. Tell me what you see."

She was on her feet, shrieking. In full view, where only a few moments ago she had seen the uniformed sergeant, lay the body of Dorinda Quarles—yes, in her apricot dress, with damp hair clinging to her forehead, and in her bared breast a crimson gaping wound! She had seen her—seen Dorinda herself. It could mean but one thing. She had gone quite mad.

Screams, words incoherently mingled, and then a crumpled heap of green flounces on the floor. It was over.

"Mesdames, messieurs, this room must be cleared. At once! Go home. Lights, please. Every one out. I want only the wardress and the doctor."

The judge's tone was satisfied, excited. With widespread arms he bundled the curious company out the doors, spied the owner of the apartment.

"Don't distress yourself, monsieur. Try to calm the lady who is with you. We have got what we were after—not a confession in so many words, but that will come later."

He buttonholed Jethro, whispered in his ear, and shook him warmly by the hand. Then he closed the doors.

Helen Roderick was sobbing, her broad face convulsed with emotion.

"O, what was it? What did they do? Did she see something?"

"A wax figure," he replied, quietly. "Yes, it was a horrible trick to play. I had no idea myself. The French use these methods." He detached himself from her hold and consulted his watch. "I am going to take you home," he announced. "Don't be alarmed, she is in safe hands, and besides they will not allow us to go in there."

For the second time that evening Christopher leant over the chef de commissaire's desk.

"You still won't listen to me?" he asked, grimly. "Very well, then, read this telegram which I discovered at Rostetter's flat. You can't read English? I'll translate it for you."

He did so, quickly, adding his own interpretation.

"The man Klauber, whoever he may be, stayed in this city at the Hotel des Saints Peres from Sept. 5 to 14. He then left for England with the stated intention of returning from there to Prague. But on the night of the 30th he was back here again at the Hotel Stanislas. I can prove it. Now, do you continue to doubt Rostetter's interest in him?"

"Supposing this German did return to Paris. What then?"

"Isn't it perfectly plain he was acting with Jethro? Listen! Klauber came here the first time from Montpellier and declared he had stopped all along the coast. Jethro has a villa at Cap Ferrat. The two knew each other, I tell you. Surely out of all this you can collect evidence enough to——"

"Evidence! Come, monsieur, you are offering me your hasty conclusions and calling them evidence. Have you ascertained what Klauber did between certain hours? Because if he failed to go out, then his alibi is in every respect as good as Mr. Jethro's."

Christopher saw that a point had been scored against him. He had not bothered to inquire into Klauber's movements.

"The manager was the only person who could have told me about that," he replied. "And he was not there—but he'll have got back by now, surely. The question can be easily settled. Will you send some one back to the hotel with me to obtain the necessary information? It's not much to ask."

Hal Wallis, general production manager for Warner Brothers' Talking Pictures corporation, passed through Chicago yesterday on his way to New York, where he will be joined by his wife, Louise Fazenda, motion picture actress. The couple will sail Saturday on the S. S. Conte Savoia for Europe.

"Our trip has been planned for both business and pleasure," said Mr. Wallis in the La Salle street station. "Mrs. Wallis, is finishing work in a Fox studio picture at present and will fly to New York on Friday. Unlike a good many Hollywood couples, we are not contemplating either a divorce or a visit from the stork. We are happily married and our son just celebrated his first birthday."

Mr. Wallis began his movie career eleven years ago as publicity director for Warner Brothers. He has supervised the making of more than 60 pictures for that company this year.

Other Hollywood folk who stopped in Chicago yesterday on their way east were Will Hays, movie czar, and Bert Wheeler of the Wheeler and Woolsey comedy team.

GASOLINE ALLEY—TECHNICALITY

Leroy Getting Too Bright for Acting Business

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

Hollywood, Cal., May 7.—[Special.]—Baby Leroy is getting a little too bright for the acting business. In his current picture, "The Old Fashioned Way," with W. C. Fields, there is a bit of nose tweaking to be done. Leroy tweaks Fields' nose and Fields tweaks the baby's. In rehersal it went fine. After the second time, however, Baby Leroy covered his nose with his hands and laughed heartily every time that Fields tried to tweak his. Then Leroy was to pick up a pie and sock Fields with it. Fine for one take; then Leroy started eating the custard filling and, in spite of every one, ate so much of it he lost interest and wouldn't even pick up the pie again.

The best trick the baby played on his eminent comedy teammate was when Leroy took Fields' gold watch and dunked it in the molasses. This picture, which is being directed by Bill Beaudine at Paramount is more hearty and spontaneous in its funny situations than any I have watched in the making for some space of time.

One scene between Fields, as "The Great McGonigle," impresario of a forlorn stock troupe; Miss Jan Duggan, as an elderly, simpering, be-curled singing aspirant, and Nora Cecil, thin-nosed boarding house woman who is "wise" to Fields, afforded such amusement to the director and the crew that they had the trio go through it time after time in order to see what new "business" would be created, or how one of the trio could embarrass the other.

Marlene Dietrich, while still favoring trousers and slacks around the lot, has compromised on a divided skirt.

Patricia Ellis has played eight leads in five months, including "Convention City," "Harold Teen," "Circus Clown," and "Kiss and Make Up," and she's now going into a ninth and still larger role in Warner's "Big Hearted Herbert." She's only 18 years old.

The name of Will Rogers' latest completed film has been changed from "Merry Andrew" to "Handy Andy."

Scolding Never Cures Children of Nail Biting

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

In connection with children biting their finger nails, this letter is of interest:

"I know of one 5 year old child who stopped biting her finger nails by or for a promise my daughter made to her while home on a vacation. My daughter teaches in a teachers' training school and she is extremely fond of children. So she made a lot of fuss over the little girl, promised her a book she would make of animals, and put verses under each.

"The child was so delighted that every few days she would come and show her finger nails and before the vacation was over she was cured, and so proud of her book she never did it any more."

This matter of nail biting and its cure is the only one in which I approve of the use of rewards. I don't mean I should use that means first or that it would be the only way I would work on the habit—but I do believe rewards are permissible in this instance if everything else fails.

Praise and encouragement and friendliness are the first methods of attack on the habit. When scolding and nagging are used it is invariably without success.

Also, in curing this habit as well as others that are not desirable, we check up to see that everything is as right as possible in the child's life and in her relations with her grownups—and especially that she has plenty of activity, both general bodily activity and the right toys and playthings and manual occupation. The child who lives a well-rounded life and is alert and interested is usually too busy to bite her nails.

Don't Let Sour Marriages Give You Wrong Idea

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Why go sour on marriage just because you see disappointing unions, young couples?

Of course, you see sour marriages, marriages which have nothing to recommend them, marriages which are pretty hideous and tragic and everything opposed to your ideas of what marriage should be. But in what vocation do you not find sour individuals, individuals who go out of their way to make life difficult for themselves and every one with whom they come in contact? There are misfits in every walk of life. Why can't marriage be entitled to its share of them? It's the individuals in marriage who make of it the travesty too often seen. It isn't the institution.

It's ornery human nature that is taken along into the new home, and fostered there on its own cussedness, that breeds so many of the marriage spectacles that frighten you young people. You do not have to be like that unless you are ornery of disposition, too. Selfish, mean, uncompromising, cold, hard, and unwilling to help. But why should you be these things, you young folk, with youth and health and a world to conquer?

NEW YORK SOCIETY

New York, May 7.—[Special.]—The gardens of Still Place, the country estate of Paul D. Cravath at Locust Valley, will be opened to the public tomorrow afternoon for the benefit of the Wayside Home for Girls. It is to be one of a series of garden parties for this philanthropy.

WHEN YOU'RE HEALTHY YOU'RE HAPPY!

The blame for "blue" days can be laid often to common constipation. It may bring loss of appetite and energy, sallow and pimply skins, even serious illness. Correct it by eating a delicious cereal.

Research shows Kellogg's All-Bran provides "bulk" and vitamin B to relieve common constipation. Also iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in All-Bran is much like that in leafy vegetables. Isn't this better than taking patent medicines—so often harmful?

Two tablespoonfuls of All-Bran daily, relieve most types of constipation. With each meal, in chronic cases.

Assisting her will be Mrs. Alfred Croftan, Mrs. Knickerbocker Wood, Mrs. J. T. Postell, and Miss Dorothy Dox.

Mrs. David W. Kimball will open her home at 132 De Windt road, Winnetka, today for the last meeting of the season of the Kaskaskia chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution. Mrs. Pearse W. Bradstreet, Mrs. L. Landon Hoyt, Mrs. Edward J. Knight, Mrs. Armand J. Van Thielen, and Mrs. Hobart P. Young will be the assisting hostesses.

That exclusive and conservative group, the Contemporary club, is to hold its annual meeting at 11 o'clock Friday morning at the Fortnightly club. After the business session in which Miss Mary Walsh is to be re-elected president there will be luncheon.

The junior John S. Coonleys are bidding good-by to Chicago Thursday morning when they will set out by motor for San Francisco to sail on the 19th for Honolulu. They are not certain just how long they will be on the iland, but it may be for quite some time as Mr. Coonely has gone into business there.

Mrs. Oliver Wilson has taken Mrs. William Hubbard's house in Lake Forest for the summer. She arrived here recently from Shreveport, La., where she spent the winter with her son, John Wilson, who is in business there, and visited at the home of her son-in-law and daughter, the Charles Dennehys, in Lake Forest until she found a house of her own.

Mrs. Byron S. Harvey Will Leave Hospital.

Mrs. Byron S. Harvey, who has been in the Presbyterian hospital since last Wednesday, will be able to return to her town apartment at 180 East Delaware place in several days.

Mrs. Harry O. King, the former Mildred Holmes, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver W. Holmes, at the Ambassador East. Since her marriage some years ago Mrs. King has been living in Fairfield, Conn., but recently she and her husband and their children moved to Washington, D. C., where Mr. King has been appointed divisional administrator of the National Recovery Act.

Among last year's debuntates there's at least one young woman who is helping put to flight the current impression that a debutante is a frivolous person. From the east comes word that Miss Nancy Harris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alan H. Harris Jr. of Winnetka, has been awarded a $10 prize for the best contribution to "The Keystone," the literary magazine at Sarah Lawrence college where she is a student.

Her story was a contribution entitled, "She Laughs." Miss Harris is majoring in writing and is a prominent student on the campus. On June 9 she will be graduated along with Miss Mary Louise Morris, Miss Patty Calkins, and Miss Allene Withers of Chicago.

Ridge Service Guild Issues Gay Invitations.

It will take more than a little will power to resist the gay and original invitations of the Ridge Service Guild. Concealed under the red and yellow, blue and green flaps of a half dozen balloons is the news of the guild's second annual gala day to be held May 25 at the Beverly Country club.

There's to be golf for the ladies in the morning, then luncheon and a spring style show; bridge later for the women and golf for husbands and escorts. The climax will be a dinner dance and a special floor show. Mrs. John Middleton Jr. [the former Dorothy McKinlay] is the chairman of the day which is to benefit the Ridge Service Guild charities, among which are the Martha Washington Home for Crippled Children and the Morgan Park Home for Dependent Children.

To judge by the requests for table reservations at the "Streets of Paris" ball on May 26, the opening night of the 1934 World's Fair, the board of the Children's Home and Aid society will have some enthusiastic reports to make this afternoon when it meets for tea at 4 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Chauncey McCormick, 2450 Lakeview avenue. The society is sponsoring the ball as a benefit.

Athletic Club Musical Today.

Hilda Edwards, pianist, and Lota Mundy, violinist, will give the spring musical this morning at the Woman's Athletic club.

"The Last Round-up" is being given by the Chicago committee of the Arden Shore association Thursday night in the College inn of the Hotel Sherman for the benefit of Arden Shore's summer and winter camp for underprivileged boys in Lake Bluff. The party will close a series of Thursday night "round-ups" that the committee has sponsored during the winter.

Dr. De Lee Completes Film on Obstetrics for Use of Schools

Dr. Joseph B. De Lee, founder of the Chicago Lying-In hospital and dispensary, which is to hold its annual benefit on May 18 at the Cascades, will be back from Hollywood this week with a new six reel sound motion picture which he has just completed.

The film, taken in the Chicago Lying-In hospital and "sound tracked" at Hollywood, is one of the many contributions of Dr. De Lee and his hospital to the improvement of obstetrical technique.

Dr. De Lee has paid all expenses of the movie, and the film will be shown all over the world, free of charge, before physicians, nurses and medical students. The première will be this month at the University of Pennsylvania. Then the picture will go to the University of Edinburgh.

Dedication of Globe Theater Will Be Today

Ceremony to Be Held at English Village.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

The Shakespeare theater in the Old English Village at A Century of Progress, called the Globe and designed in the Elizabethan style, will be dedicated today with ceremonies beginning at 2:30 p. m. Addresses will be delivered by Lewis Edward Bernays, British consul; Thomas Wood Stevens, director of the theater, and Theodore Viehman, who will be in charge of the folk dances to figure in the theater's programs. Dennis King, star of "Richard of Bordeaux," and Violet Heming, star of "The Shining Hour," will be among the special guests.

Short versions of plays by Shakespeare and other Elizabethan dramatists will be acted in the Globe by a professional company. Each performance will last about an hour. B. Iden Payne, well known as a stage director, will coöperate with Mr. Stevens in rehersing the productions.

A vaudeville revue called "Musical Gambols," with Pat Rooney, veteran comedian, and Janet Reade, blonde singing girl of Broadway shows, is the feature of the stage entertainment at the State-Lake theater this week. It is a brisk and well costumed frolic, with fancy draperies, lively chorus girls, stylish ballroom dancers, and all the customary trimmings. . . . Clyde Hager, a monologist who deals in the patter of the "pitch men" of county fairs, and Larimer and Hudson, trick bicyclists, are also diverting contributors to the bill.

"Her Master's Voice," a comedy by Claire Kummer which had a Broadway run last winter, is scheduled to begin an engagement in the Selwyn theater late this month. It will be staged under the management of Messrs. Wee and Leventhal, who have added "Big Hearted Herbert" and "The Curtain Rises" to the Chicago theatrical season. Blanche Ring and Bernard Granville will have the leading rôles. The New York cast had Roland Young and Laura Hope Crews as co-stars.

"The Drunkard, or the Fallen Saved," a temperance propaganda melodrama of the 1840's, was recently revived as a burlesque in New York. Edgar Mason, who has acted here in "Sisters of the Chorus," "High Hat" and other plays, thinks that a Chicago production would be a bright idea. He announces that he will open a "music hall" under the roof of "one of Chicago's oldest landmarks" with "The Drunkard" on May 18. He promises to serve free beer and pretzels with the play. . . . Ernest Hawes, recently of Hollywood, also promises a staging of "The Drunkard" on May 18, somewhere on the near north side. . . . Harry Bannister, former husband of Ann Harding, is said to be sending a "Drunkard" company to Chicago.

CONQUERING CONTRACT

THE OPENING BID OF THREE NO TRUMPS.

This bid, as I use it, is very rare. Nevertheless, it occupies its own niche in the collection and bridges a small but important gap in a highly efficient manner.

You have probably remarked that I advise the bid of two no trumps on the hands which, in some other systems, would be opened at three no trumps. This apparent underbid, though I do not consider it such, allows a mild slam try to be made without jeopardizing game contracts. If I have succeeded in making the two no trump bid and its responses and rebids clear to you, you will in all likelihood have foreseen the purpose of my three no trump bid.

Basis of the Bid.

I use this bid with short-suited hands containing game in no trumps, and requiring very little from the partner to make a slam. They are tremendously powerful, fully protected hands which in most systems would call for an immediate forcing bid in a suit. In fact, you may call them "short-suited two bids" if you keep in mind that Sims "two bids" are of quite different constitution. The requirements are:

1. Nine sure tricks in no trumps, whatever the lead.

2. Slam virtually certain if the partner holds either two cards each as good as a king in a short-suited hand, or a five card suit headed by the queen. Should the latter holding be in a suit which the opening hand cannot bring into no trump play, the hand must, nevertheless, be safe in four no trumps or in a game bid in that suit.

Ht.—A K x   Cl.—A K Q

Plainly a small slam is a certainty if partner holds the king of diamonds and the ace of spades, even if all suits are numerically equal in both hands, so that the small heart cannot be thrown off.

Responding Hand Must Bid Any Five Card Suit to the Queen.

Should partner hold five hearts to the queen, the next bids will be four hearts, six no trumps, pass. There will be the diamond finesse for a slam; while if he holds also four clubs to the jack or four spades to the ten, and the heart suit breaks, the diamonds can be discarded without risking a finesse.

Ht.—A K   Cl.—A K Q

a heart bid by the partner would be a danger for no trump slam purposes, since the suit might be blocked. I would, therefore, sign off with four no trumps. The partner should bid five hearts with nothing else in his hand, realizing from your "sign off" that the suit is blocked for no trump play. This you should pass. If the partner holds a king outside his heart suit he can safely bid six no trumps over your four no trump and sign off.

This danger of a blocked suit is a real menace with this rare type of hand and must be taken into consideration when making the opening bid when a suit lacks a small card.

Ht.—A K x   Cl.—A K x

or

Sp.—A K Q   Di.—A K Q
Ht.—A K   Cl.—J x x x x

are both only two no trump bids; the former needs a trick in dummy to deliver game; the latter needs from the partner two of the top three club honors for a slam, and is not even safe for game if the opponents open hearts and have two club tricks, unless dummy provides an eventual third stopper in hearts.

Delicious New Recipes Employ Food from Cans

There's No End to Variety One May Achieve.

"Hostessing with Sunday Suppers," a booklet of menus and recipes for light Sunday evening lunches, is on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower, for 3 cents. By mail, 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address mail requests to Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune.

BY MARY MEADE.

What can't one find in cans! Back in the eighteen hundred somethings a foreign visitor lamented that we have everything canned over here, even the canvas-back duck and the American opera. Which makes me wonder what he would say today should he see the gay assortment of labels to be found on every grocer's shelves these days. Canned creamed tuna fish, chop suey, chicken à la king, Welsh rabbit, they're all sitting tight and pretty, awaiting the shopping sprees of madame.

But if all these mesdames, who belong with the rest of us to the estimable order of the can openers, should continue to open cans, but forget to change the manner of their serving, then civil wars will be brewing, so what about a battery of new and different ways to serve these canned foods?

So first we'll assume that the contents of the first can is chop suey. Here's a simple way to dress it up. Boil fine noodles until tender, and heat the chop suey. Place the hot noodles on a platter and pour over them the hot chop suey. The result is called warmein.

2-3 cup graham flour.
1-3 cup flour.
1 cup milk.
2 eggs.

Mix salt with flour. Add milk gradually in order to obtain a smooth batter. Add eggs beaten until light and then add the butter. Beat two minutes vigorously with a rotary egg beater. Turn into hot buttered iron gem pans and bake 35 minutes. The oven should be hot [450 degrees F.] for the first 15 minutes, and moderate [375 degrees F.] the last 20 minutes.

We've talked before about using cream puff cases as tents for creamed this or that. But this new puff case, the cheese puff, is so good with creamed tuna fish, for instance, that I'm passing it on.

CHEESE PUFFS.
¼ cup butter
½ cup boiling water.
½ cup flour.
¼ teaspoon salt.
2 whole eggs.
1 egg white.
Few grains of cayenne.

Put butter and water in a saucepan. Add flour and beat until smooth. Remove from the fire and add the cheese, then the unbeaten whole eggs one at a time, and lastly the unbeaten egg white. Beat vigorously for five minutes. Drop by spoonfuls on a baking sheet. Bake in a moderately hot oven [375 degrees F.] until free from beads of moisture, or 40 to 45 minutes.

PULITZER PRIZES AWARDED; JURIES IGNORED ON TWO

"People's Choice," "John Hay" Win Recognition.

New York, May 7.—[Special.]—Pulitzer prize winners for 1933, outstanding among whom are Caroline Miller for her novel, "Lamb in His Bosom," and Sidney Kingsley for his play, "Men in White," were announced tonight.

Frederick T. Birchall of the New York Times won the award for distinguished service as a newspaper correspondent, the selection being based on his news stories sent from Europe.

The prize for the best book of the year on the history of the United States went to Herbert Agar, an attaché at the American embassy in London, for "The People's Choice." Tyler Dennett of Princeton university won the award in American biography with "John Hay." The poetry prize was presented to Robert Hillyer of Harvard, for his "Collected Verse."

Disregard Jury Opinions.

Along with the formal statement of the prize winners, there were issued two announcements setting forth that the juries which assisted in selecting the prize winning play and historical work had not recommended the winners finally selected.

The drama jury, composed of Clayton Hamilton, Walter Prichard Eaton, and Austin Strong, voted unanimously for Maxwell Anderson's "Mary of Scotland," produced by the Theater Guild.

Two members of the history jury, on which Charles D. Hazen, Burton J. Hendrick, and M. A. DeWolfe Howe served, voted for "Over Here," the fifth volume of Mark Sullivan's "Our Times," and the third felt that no award should be made. The names of the two who favored the Sullivan book were not made public.

In addition to the award for distinguished newspaper correspondence, there were several other prizes in the field of journalism. These included:

For meritorious public service, the Medford [Ore.] Mail-Tribune. This newspaper, published in a town of about 13,000 population, was credited with stemming a rising tide of public insurrection which was the outgrowth of a bitter political fight.

For distinguished editorial writing, E. P. Chase, editor of the Atlantic [Iowa] News Telegraph. In an editorial titled "Where Is Our Money?" he held the American people themselves responsible for the economic crisis because of their excessive spending in the boom days. He urged old-fashioned thrift as the way out.

Cartoonist Points with Pride.

For distinguished work as a reporter, Royce Brier of the San Francisco Chronicle. Mr. Brier worked sixteen continuous hours covering the San José lynchings; blinded by tear gas, menaced by flying bricks and manhandled by the mob, he and four assistants telephoned a running story from a nearby garage.

For work as a cartoonist, Edmund Duffy of the Sun, of Baltimore, for his cartoon, "California Points with Pride—!"

An annual scholarship of $1,500, for the music student who is considered the most talented and deserving of the advantages of European instruction, went to Frank Percival Price, carillonneur at the Rockefeller memorial carillon. A similar scholarship in art was awarded to Cathal O'Toole, Dublin born artist now living in Long Island City.

Mrs. Caroline Miller, author of "Lamb in His Bosom," is a South Carolina housewife with a husband and three children. She lives at Baxley, Ga.

ACT TO SPEED UP APPEALS IN CRIMINAL CASES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 7.—[Special.]—New rules to speed appeals in criminal cases through the federal circuit courts of appeal and the Supreme court were announced by the Supreme court today. The rules were promulgated in accordance with a law approved last March giving the court authority to prescribe procedure "after plea of guilty, verdict of guilty by a jury, or finding of guilt by a trial court where a jury is waived."

The rules will apply to prisoners found or pleading guilty after next Sept. 1. Under the rules sentence must be imposed "without delay" unless motions are pending for withdrawal of a guilty plea, arrest of judgment and a new trial, or the court holds there is reasonable ground for the motion or investigation is necessary.

Must Act Promptly.

Motions must be determined promptly. Those for arrest of judgment or a new trial must be made within three days following a verdict of guilt. An appeal must be taken within five days after entry of judgment of conviction.

In cases where a motion for arrest of judgment or a new trial has been made, however, the five day limitation upon an appeal is to run from the day the order is entered denying the motion for arrest of judgment or a new trial.

A motion for a new trial solely on the ground of newly discovered evidence may be made within sixty days after final judgment, without regard to the expiration of the term at which judgment was rendered, unless an appeal has been taken. In that event the trial court may entertain the motion only on remand of the case by the appellate court for that purpose. Such remand may be made at any time before final judgment.

Ten Days for Withdrawal.

A motion to withdraw a plea of guilty shall be made within ten days after entry of such plea and before sentence is imposed.

"Petitions for allowance of appeal and citations, in cases governed by these rules, are abolished," the court stated.

The court announced that the appellate court "may at any time, upon five days' notice, entertain a motion to dismiss the appeal for directions to the trial court, or to vacate or modify any order made by the trial court or by any judge in relation to the prosecution of the appeal, including any order for the granting of bail."

Burglar's Bullet Enters Right Temple.

New York, May 7.—[Special.]—A shooting case was brought into Israel Zion hospital today and Dr. Frederick Weintraub, a young intern on the staf, hurried to the operating room, where the victim, a middle aged woman, was on the table.

It was the doctor's mother, Mrs. Ethel Weintraub. A burglar had shot her when she surprised him early today in her home. The bullet entered her right temple. Her condition is critical.

Mrs. Weintraub was awakened by noises in her home, the first floor apartment of a two family house at the 2d street address.

Instead of awakening her husband, Leon, a retired clothing manufacturer who is hard of hearing, she arose to investigate herself.

As the woman touched one foot to the floor a man appeared in the doorway of her bedroom and fired five shots at her, one of them taking effect.

Then the intruder fled through the bedroom of Miss Sophie Weintraub, the Weintroubs' daughter, and escaped by an open window.

Police believe that it was a case of robbery, the thief having taken advantage of the easily accessible open windows of the Weintraubs' first floor apartment.

Miss Lovett shot herself shortly after 3 a. m. at the Lovett home. Her father told officers she had returned late from a party and that he had reprimanded her.

AL SIMMONS IN HOSPITAL WITH HEAD INJURY

CUBS WIN, 2 TO 0; LEE HOLDS PHILLIES TO FOUR HITS

BILLY HERMAN KNOCKS PAIR OF THREE BAGGERS

Holley Is Puzzle Until Sixth.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

William Lee, home town Plaquemine, La., officially transformed himself from a minor to a major leaguer yesterday. Making his first start on the big time circuit, the six foot plus right hander threw a brilliant four hit exhibition into the faces of the dazed Phillies, and the Cubs triumphed in the second of the series, 2 to 0. Naturally enough, Mr. Charles Grimm, the north side manager, now is breathing easier about the recent tottering of his pitching staf.

BILL LEE.

Because of the presence of Ed Holley, who once was one of them, the Cubs also experienced considerable suffering. For five innings they could produce only two hits against the lad brought into the league originally by Joe McCarthy. After those five innings of feebleness they managed to put together a few extra base hits and thus picked up the only runs of the afternoon. In this particular the headliners were Billy Herman, Tiger Klein, Gabby Hartnett, and Dolph Camilli.

Six Get on Base.

Because Lee surrendered a pair of passes the Phillies were able to promote six batters into base runners. Twice they had two on bases at the same time, once with one out and once with none out. Progress, however, was extremely difficult for these fellows. Only two of them traveled as far as third and neither went there until two were out. Incidentally, Lee had brilliant, steady support, but even this couldn't dim the luster of his own performance.

Lee, in his impressive debut, specialized on curved balls, a matter made evident by the fashion in which the bulk of the Phil batters were retired. They were hitting on top of the hook most of the time and driving it into the ground to make work for the infielders. The outfielders handled only five fly balls. Lee will be back for another fling i a few days and continue a regular starter as long as he proves worthy. He's a fellow who thrives on work so prefers an assignment every fourth day.

Herman Triples in First.

The Cubs weren't long in sending a man well on his way around the bases, but it didn't do them much good. After the Phils had dropped in order in their first inning Billy Herman tripled to right center with one out in the home half. Klein followed with a pop to Bartell and Chiozza tossed out Cuyler.

Two hits were crowded into the Phils' second, but this display failed to give Lee any concern. After Hendrick had been thrown out, Schulmerich singled to center and Wilson singled to right. This ceased to be a threat when Ruble tapped to Lee and Klein took Jeffries' fly. The Phils didn't come up with another hit until the sixth, but they would have had one in the fourth if Billy Herman hadn't made a successful one handed reach for Wilson's bounder.

Gabby Runs at Wrong Time.

A blunder by the Phils, who are funny that way, gave the Cubs a limited opening in the third, but the Cubs blundered right back, so nothing happened. Hartnett led off with a grounder to Chiozza, who threw wild. Lee sacrificed. English flied to left and Hartnett neglected to make inquiry as to how many were out. He started running as soon as the ball was hit, so it was a simple matter to double him off second.

The hit in the Phils' sixth was by Bartell. He led off with a grounder that Jurges couldn't reach. Chiozza laid down the usual sacrifice bunt, but

You Must Pivot to Get Those Drives That Pave Way for Low Scores—Horton Smith

(This is the second of a series of golf articles written by ten leading professionals which will appear daily in The Tribune. Horton Smith, who will not be 26 until the 22d of this month, is professional at the Oak Park Country club and already a proved veteran in national and international competition. In his first big year, the 1929-'30 season, he won thirteen open tournaments, including one at Savannah in which he defeated Bobby Jones. The greatest victory in the young Missourian's career was scored six weeks ago, when he won the Masters' tournament from Jones and the country's leading pros at Augusta, Ga.)

BY HORTON SMITH.

While it is true that the payoff in golf is down at the cup and most of the strokes are taken on the short game, the value of a reasonably long straight drive must not be underestimated from the practical standpoint, disregarding the thrill of the proper click at impact and the pleasure of seeing the little white ball soar far out into the atmosphere.

During the last winter season, I was fortunate enough to win the Masters' tournament at Augusta. I attribute my success in this event to a sudden improvement in driving. I drove rather long and with reasonable accuracy, being penalized only four strokes as the result of poor tee shots. Preceding the Augusta competition, I experienced some difficulty with drives, due to hitting downward too much and harder than necessary, thus tensing the swing and destroying its freedom.

I discovered a driver in Paul Runyan's possession which I thought would help to remedy this fault. It had a very deep face which provided enough hitting surface to permit teeing the ball higher, so that I could swing it off cleanly without feeling that I should hit down at it. The shaft of this club had a bit of spring to it. This eliminated my tendency to hit too hard, as I got a very definite feeling of the club head, encouraging me to swing rather than hit. I felt the whip of the shaft would bring the clubhead into the ball with sufficient snap without much effort on my part.

A Borrowed Driver Straightened Him Out.

I used this club all during the tournament and was well pleased as it caused me to swing with greater deliberation and smoothness. When driving well, I have a feeling of a full, unhurried body turn on the backward swing, a fairly full wrist break and a suggestion of a pause at the top of the stroke, with accelleration of the club head's speed during the forward stroke. The full body turn and its even unwinding during the early part of the down swing places one in a fine position, slightly from inside a line drawn through the ball on the intended line of direction.

Hitting the ball slightly from the inside will prevent any tendency to cut across the ball, which would produce a defective sidespin. The lower part of the body moving forward first in the down stroke aids in keeping the club, arms, and hands reasonably near the body and in the proper plane to make it easier to hit through the ball on the desired line of flight.

The drive is the starter for the play on each hole, and the motto "A task well begun is half done" pretty well states the case.

Hagen Was an Exception.

The player who gets off a fine drive to a hole is inspired and is keen to finish the hole in good style, while the player who gets off a bad ball from the tee is immediately placed on the defensive, as he feels he must make up for it with a good recovery. Often such a situation brings on greater trouble by causing the golfer to tighten up. A weakness in one department also is apt to impose itself on the remainder of the game by causing anxiety and forcing of other shots. For example, if you become "afraid" of short putts you are liable to become tense, due to trying too hard to send your chips and approaches stone dead to eliminate the missable putts troubling you.

Usually such a situation will cause you to leave the ball farther from the hole than normally. In much the same way, a bad drive can produce a relatively harmful effect on the remainder of your game. Hence, the psychology of a good tee shot is very helpful to those which follow.

On the other hand, and contrary to the general rule, there are golfers of a certain temperament who become more determined and make brilliant recoveries following poor drives. In other days Walter Hagen was

WATCH MR. LOUIS IF YOU WANT TO SEE A CHAMPION

Detroit Negro Is Golden Gloves' Best.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Probably no amateur boxer during the seven years of Gold Gloves tournaments created such a favorable impression solely on the basis of ability as did Joe Louis this last winter. Without exception, Louis, the light heavyweight champion, was regarded as the outstanding boxer in the tournament. His cool mastery of attack, clever defense, and the power of his punches marked him as the best candidate for professional honors, when and if he wishes to take up boxing as a livelihood.

Other boxers have had as great a following and several have aroused Golden Gloves crowds to tremendous demonstrations of enthusiasms. Leo Rodak, who in successive years won the flyweight, bantamweight, and featherweight titles, was immensely popular as a Golden Glover. His steady improvement and subsequent success as a professional has made him a standout.

Louis Leads 'em All.

Despite such records as these, and the fact that Chicago saw Joe Louis this winter for the first time, Louis was the subject of more comment at the Stadium than any other boxer.

"Louis has more possibilities of developing into a great professional fighter than any Golden Glove boxer I have seen," Nate Lewis, Stadium match maker, said after watching the Detroit Negro. "He has the fundamentals and all he needs is experience. He's exceptionally quick, both in leading and counter punching. He has terrific power in his punches and like Dempsey, doesn't have to throw his fists more than a few inches to score with effect.

Joe Wastes No Punches.

"He not only is a clever boxer," Lewis continued, "but he can fight in close as well. Joe doesn't waste many punches, the common failure of an amateur, and this accuracy easily makes him a winner."

Louis' record supports this highly flattering estimate. Although this is only his second year of competition, he won the Detroit Golden Gloves title and then the Chicago championship In April he won the National A. A. U light heavyweight title at St. Louis.

As a novice in 1933 he captured a Detroit championship and then entered the National A. A. U. tournament at New York in the open class. He was beaten by Max Marek, who won the light heavyweight title. Louis knocked Marek down in the first round, but lost the decision on points.

Joe will be 20 years of age next Sunday. He's 6 feet, one inch tall, perfectly proportioned and has no difficulty making the 175-pound limit.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 7.—Al Simmons, White Sox left fielder, tonight was taken to Garfield Memorial hospital suffering from what physicians fear may be a concussion. Simmons was injured yesterday when he was hit in the back of the head by a ball thrown by Joe Cronin, Washington short stop.

Simmons was unable to regain his feet for five minutes after the accident, but he finally resumed his position in the outfield and finished the game. He was ill most of the night and was still nauseated at noon today. He was not permitted to leave the hotel where the Sox are quartered.

After the players returned from today's game Simmons' condition was reported as alarming and at the suggestion of Dr. J. T. Larkin, a brain specialist, he was removed to the hospital. He will not be permitted to sleep more than three hours at a time throughout the night, hospital attachés reported.

It was reported yesterday that Simmons had been hit on the forehead but it was found today that he had turned his head just before the ball reached him and was struck squarely on the back of the head.

Hit Twice in Daze.

Late tonight, physicians were awaiting development of X-ray photographs before making a definite diagnosis. His nurse said that Simmons seemed to be suffering less from nausea and Ad Schacht, Sox trainer, was notified that his condition was the same as when taken to the hospital.

Cronin, in discussing Simmons' injury, said that Al was in a daze during the remainder of the game after the accident, which occurred in the second inning.

"Al made two hits while unconscious after he was struck by the ball," Cronin said. "When he reached second on his double in the seventh, I asked him how he felt and he said he had just that instant come out of it."

SOX SHAKEUP NEAR

Washington, D. C., May 7.—Reorganization of the Chicago White Sox today seemed more imminent than ever as Owner J. Louis Comiskey, with loud snorts, further contemplated the playing department of his baseball property.

Mr. Comiskey has seethed a lot since he first voiced his determination in THE TRIBUNE on April 25 to shake up the outfit unless it showed marked improvement. Except on three afternoons since his statement to Sox fans through THE TRIBUNE, the Sox have been increasingly worse. The climax, perhaps, was reached this afternoon when the team put on one of the saddest exhibitions in recent years.

Debates Naming Dykes.

Even before the débacle this afternoon, Mr. Comiskey outlined his plans for shaking up the team. He said he was temporarily reluctant to appoint Jimmy Dykes manager to succeed Lew Fonseca for fear added responsibilities would interfere with the playing of one of the few good players now on the roster.

While contemplating a successor to Fonseca the Sox owner has refused to unload the blame on Fonseca.

"If the Sox find themselves with a new manager before they get back to Chicago, or at any time in the future it will not be to humor any loafing or sulking athletes," Mr. Comiskey said.

Wants to Buy Real Players.

"One of the first steps in my attempted reorganization will be a frank appeal to other club owners in the league to give me an opportunity to buy some of the good players who are wearing out uniforms sliding up and down benches.

"I am fed up on high priced minor league phenoms who never make good and aren't worth a tenth of the amount on their price tags. I still am willing to spend money for players who have had some major league experience."

Talking It Over

BY ARCH WARD.

PURDUE'S first football coach, A. Berg, was a deaf mute. . . . The per capita betting at Aurora for the first week was approximately $16, whereas in the boom days of 1928 each person who visited a Chicago track bet an average of $62 daily. . . . Polish Boxers Eat Pickles to Get Sealegs

BY DONALD DAY.

ABROAD THE S. S. BERENGARIA, May 7.—Belladonna, stomach platers and other remedies guaranteed to grow sea legs immediately after application and taking failed to save the Polish Golden Gloves team from its first case of seasickness when the Berengaria encountered a gale outside Cherbourg which forced it to reduce speed on the first day of the voyage.

Today, fearing to trust themselves to the dining room in a moderate sea, they congregated in the cabin of Sipinski, who is being treated by the ship's doctor for a bad case of stiff neck. Here with the aid of a Polish-English dictionary they formulated from the menu a dinner consisting of sour beets, soup, salt herring, sausages, sauerkraut and sour pickles.

This meal brought them on deck and this afternoon they took their first workout in the Berengaria's gymnasium, the equipment of which is better than the best gym Poland can boast.

Senators Hammer Four Sox Pitchers to Triumph, 17-7

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 7.—The Washington Senators mercilessly ran over the White Sox today, but before the end they got a bit soft hearted. The champs led 17 to 1 at the start of the seventh inning, then in the ninth patiently watched the Chicagoans while they scored six runs off Prof. Monte Weaver for a 17 to 7 final tabulation.

The biggest factor in the innocent fun afforded the tail enders in the final inning was a triple by Evar Swanson, who played left field in the absence of Al Simmons.

First Two Innings Bad.

The Sox were shoved out of the panorama at the outset by what perhaps was some of the most inept pitching ever witnessed in a major league park. The first two innings saw six bases on balls, a wild pitch, and a hit batsman, not to mention a triple, two singles and a pitcher's error.

The Senators made four runs in the fifth and four in the sixth, but these were through slugging, only one walk being mixed up in the rioting.

In the eighth inning it was announced that there was an important roll call in the house of representatives and all congressmen were requested to hike to the capitol. Following his announcement virtually all the customers left the park.

Heving Starts Poorly.

Heving was allowed to make quite a show of himself before he was yanked in the first inning. Joe walked Kuhel, who went to second while Dykes was throwing out Myer. Then he hit Manush with a pitched ball. He loosed a wild pitch, Kuhel scoring from second and Manush reaching third from first. Then Cronin and Schulte walked, filling the bases. At this point it was decided Heving was not effective and he was replaced by Wyatt. Stone fouled to Pasek, but Boken singled to right, scoring Manush and Cronin and putting Schulte on third. Hayes threw out Berg.

The net of a triple and a single in the Sox's second inning was one run. Appling led off with a triple against the left field wall and held third on Dykes' infield single. Hayes hit into a double play, Appling scoring. Wyatt was thrown out by Boken.

Senators March On.

Washington's half of the second inning opened with a burst of inefficiency rarely witnessed in any team. Weaver drove the ball to deep left center, but just as Uhalt was about to pull it down, Haas, showing speed he never has displayed on the base lines, ran clear over from right field and bumped into Berny. The ball bounced away for a triple. Kuhel fanned, but Myer and Manush walked, filling the bases. Cronin caromed a single off Wyatt's shins, Weaver and Myer scoring and Manush taking third. Lyons then relieved Wyatt and walked Schulte on four

YANKEES CRUSH BROWNS UNDER 14 TO 1 BARRAGE

Allen Holds St. Louis to Seven Hits.

New York, May 7.—(AP)—The New York Yankees went on a hitting spree today and with Lou Gehrig and Bill Dickey hitting home runs overwhelmed the St. Louis Browns, 14 to 1. Going the route for the first time this season, Allen kept the Browns' seven hits well scattered, struck out eleven, and was not scored on until the ninth.

Gehrig hit a homer, his fourth of the season, in the second inning to end George Blaeholder's time in the box. Dickey came through with his fourth home run of the year in the eighth, when the Yankees again scored six runs.

CARDINALS, 10; BRAVES, 5.

St. Louis, Mo., May 7.—(AP)—Tex Carleton of the St. Louis Cardinals allowed the Boston Braves only one hit in seven innings, then weakened, but still scored a 10 to 5 victory over the visitors here today. Five Card runs were scored in the third inning.

Rothrock and Collins hit home runs, the former's coming in the fifth, when three Cardinal runs were scored.

Allen fanned and Hendrick rolled out to Jurges.

Lee can thank Billy Herman for the fact that the Phils didn't at least bring on a tie in the seventh. Schulmerich opened with a grounder to deep short and Jurges captured the ball, but didn't have time to make an accurate throw to first, so it went as a hit. Wilson walked. Ruble tried to bunt but failed, so abandoned the idea. He took a swing and sent a wicked grounder between Herman and the bag, but the latter skidded over, scooped up the ball, tossed it to Jurges, and the latter relayed to Camille for a double play. Jeffries' fly to Stainback ended this happening.

Jurges was thrown out in the seventh inning before the Cubs made a move toward their second run. Camille started it with a single to right. Hartnett hit in the same direction for two bases and Camille sprinted around to the plate, arriving there just ahead of the throw in. Meanwhile, Gabby tried to do a little sprint of his own, but it didn't work. He was nailed trying to sneak to third on the play.

such a type. He used to drive the ball all over the pasture and make sensational recoveries for birdies and pars time and again, much to the disappointment of his opponents. During recent years, Hagen's driving has been much more accurate, and his general play smoother, though not as spectacular. He used to have a rather pronounced body sway which he has eliminated by a definite body turn and more centered swinging. It is possible to get good distance with a sway in the stroke, but it is difficult to obtain accuracy and consistency with such a method.

Although it is unquestionably an advantage to make a long, well placed tee shot, since it greatly simplifies the shot to the green, one should not surrender in any sense because of an imperfect drive, as there are many ways other than the orthodox methods of getting pars.

Bobby Jones Golf's Best Wood Player.

I would like very much to be a reasonably long and accurate driver, but extreme length is neither desirable nor necessary. Many good golfers have injured their play by becoming long distance conscious. This happens in club as well as championship play. Such players, who have earned reputations as terrifically long hitters, almost break their backs on every tee shot seeking extra yardage. This eventually leads to forcing, tightening up, and loss of rhythm in the swing.

In my opinion, Bobby Jones is the finest wood club player the game ever has known. Relatively speaking, his drives eclipse his iron shots, since he usually produces perfect position for shots to the green with long, straight tee shots. I watched Jones play 27 holes during the Augusta tourney and marveled at the great length and consistent placement he attained. I thought that a good "eight man" from any club would hit the green with an iron following most of his drives.

Jones, as most everyone knows, employs a very full body turn and wrist cock, which places him in position to get maximum power and fullness of the swing's arc. As a result of the gradual unwinding of the body on the downswing, Bob steps up the club head speed beautifully and climaxes the stroke by attaining greatest club head speed at the impact. There is no wasted effort or false motion.

Here Are Some General Driving Hints.

My general hints on driving would be as follows:

Use a full swing and the full length of the club. Tee the ball fairly high, use a deep faced driver with a slight loft, and strike the ball off clean. Try to avoid hitting extremely upward or downward. Get a full pivot by turning the hips and shoulders on the back swing and allow the wrists to break fully without releasing the grip. Pause a second at the top of the stroke and let go at the ball with freedom. Visualize gradual acceleration of club head speed on the downswing, seeking greatest speed at the impact of the club head and ball. Club head speed at this point is the source of distance. Control of the swinging club head produces accuracy. In driving, many golfers spread their feet so far apart that a restriction is placed on leg and hip action. One must have a stance wide enough to be secure, but not so wide as to prevent freedom of movement below the waist.

A full and even body motion tends to keep the stroke smooth throughout. Begin the swing with the feeling of body movement rather than of hands and arms alone. A coördinated action of body, arms, and hands should compose the ideal back stroke. Bob Jones says that the motion of the golf stroke originates at the base of the spine. The outstanding feature of his own play during his spectacular career was the thoroughness and uniformity of the body turn in his stroke.

The third article of the series, written by Paul Runyan, will appear tomorrow.

IOWA PLACES ITS HOPE IN PANTHER AND CRETZMEYER

Sophomores Loom as Track Champions.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The list of track and field men in the conference will need new names after the present group of seniors are graduated and Coach George Bresnahan of the University of Iowa, has a couple of sophomores whom he believes will fill in nicely, not only winning points in the meet next week at Evanston but improve until they are champions.

These sophomores are Francis Cretzmeyer of Emmetsburg, Ia., and Mark Panther of Burlington, Ia.

Cretzmeyer is regarded as one of the best potential all around athletes to compete for Iowa in recent years. He participates in four events indoors and five in outdoor meets. He runs the 120 yard high hurdles in :15.4; the 220 yard low hurdles in :24.5, high jumps 6 feet, broad jumps better than 23 feet and throws the javelin between 180 and 190 feet.

Broad Jumps Best.

In addition to his individual events, Cretzmeyer is lead off man on Iowa's 480 yard shuttle hurdle relay team. Iowa was second in this race at the Kansas relays, Kansas State winning in record time. At the Drake relays, Iowa apparently had the event won, but its fourth man fell at the eighth hurdle and De Pauw won the race.

Bresnahan believes Cretzmeyer has greatest possibilities in the broad jump. In an indoor meet here he leaped over the broad jump pit, a distance of 25 feet. His feet struck the edge of the pit throwing him backwards, however, so that his hand touched the ground a little more than 23 feet from the board.

May Quit Next Year.

Cretzmeyer is 5 feet 11 inches tall and weighs approximately 175 pounds. He is a member of Sigma Nu fraternity. He is a pre-medic student at the university. Despite his athletic ambitions he may forsake track during his senior year to devote full time to his studies.

Panther, of whom it is said that he will break the conference javelin record before he is graduated, came to Iowa without a reputation as a prep athlete. With less than a week's practice this spring he threw the javelin 198 feet 6 inches and it is predicted that he will pass the 200 foot mark regularly by another season. Against Duane Purvis, Purdue's conference record holder, Panther probably will not have a chance this year, but the duel between these men in 1935 should be something to watch.

Panther is the first outstanding javelin thrower at Iowa since L. D. Weldon, who placed regularly. Weldon was graduated in 1932.

Although Panther had not played football in high school [he attended a small parochial high school in Burlington which did not have an eleven], he won a minor letter in the sport last fall. Coach Ossie Solem of the Hawkeyes rates Panther as one of the best natural athletes he has coached.

pitches, again filling the bases. Stone forced Schulte, Bonura to Appling, Manush scoring and when Lyons dropped Appling's throw at first on an attempt to complete a double play, Cronin also scored. Boken singled to right, sending Stone to third, and then stole second. Berg was thrown out by Appling.

The Senators were held to one run in the third and one in the fourth, each being made after two were out. In the third the run counted when Myer walked and scored on Manush's double and in the fourth successive doubles by Boken and Berg did the business.

Mistake Is Costly.

In the fifth inning Kuhel singled to left and Myer to center. Manush grounded to Hayes, who looked up and found Bonura wandering around near second base. There was nothing for Jack to do but hold the ball while Manush was credited with a hit. Kuhel scored on the play.

Cronin forced Manush, then Schulte and Stone knocked successive doubles to produce three more runs and send Lyons to the bath house. Tietje came on the scene and got the side out. A single by Weaver, a triple by Manush and a double by Schulte, with a couple of walks mixed in, gave the Senators four runs in the sixth.

Tietje scored the first shutout inning against the Senators in the seventh, and did it again in the eighth. The Sox then made the score more respectable with the six run lark in which Weaver, a kindly man, indulged them in the ninth.

C.D.G.A. to Hold Opening Meet Today

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The Chicago District Golf association will inaugurate its 1934 tournament schedule officially today, when a large field of the vicinity's leading amateurs takes part in the first one day handicap event of the season at the Ridgemoor Country club, 6400 Lawrence avenue.

The handicap events have become increasingly popular within the last three years, to such an extent, in fact, that handicap ratings on nearly 7,200 golfers who are members of district clubs have been compiled and cards for same have been sent out to the various courses. Fred W. Lietzow is chairman of the C. D. G. A. handicap committee. Handicap cards cost one dollar each and may be obtained at the Ridgemoor starting tee today if contestants already do not hold them.

Jack Westland of Sunset Ridge, who will represent Chicago in the Walker cup matches at St. Andrews, Scotland, Friday and Saturday, heads the list, being rated at plus one, the first time in the history of the association that any player has been placed at such a figure. Jack, of course, will not be at Ridgemoor today, but several sharpshooters are expected to be in an anticipated field of 150. Play will be at eighteen holes, forenoon or afternoon.

The scratch players on the C. D. G. A. handicap list include Don Armstrong of Aurora, Illinois state champion; George Dawson of Glen Oak, C. D. G. A. titleholder, and Chick Evans of Edgewater. Six players are listed in the one handicap class, including J. Douglas Casey of Oak Park, Bob Gardner of Shoreacres, Ira L. Couch of Chicago Golf, John Lehman of Olympia Fields, Hunter Hicks of Bob o'Link, and Dick Martin of Briergate. In the two handicap division are Art Sweet of Ridgemoor, Dexter Cummings of Onwentsia, Bill Lain of Beverly, Russell Martin of Flossmoor, and E. O. Schildberg Jr. of North Shore.

A number of contestants in the local sectional trials for the national open championship, which will be held next Monday over the No. 1 and No. 4 courses at Olympia Fields, yesterday took advantage of the opportunity to practice over the two battlegrounds. The two courses will remain open for those who wish to test them through Friday. Among those who went around were Sandy Armour of Medinah, brother of Tommy, who is making his debut in Chicago golf this year; Charley Penna and Pete Rapp, also of Medinah; Gus Fetz; Harry Hampton, and Don Hamilton of Beverly; John Lehman of the home club; Sam Bernardi, John Drucker, and Joe Paletti.

Olympia Fields is preparing its four courses for one of the largest seasons in its history. Nine hundred rounds of golf were played over the 1, 2, and 4 courses on April 28 (the No. 3 course is not open at yet), and 1,100 played over last Saturday and Sunday. The genial Jerry Glynn is again in charge of the pro department, with Chuck Tanis as assistant, while C. L. Schweitzer returns as manager, and Ben Berry comes in as supervisor of golf. Fred Krueger, superintendent of grounds, reports the courses in good condition, although, like his greenskeeping brethren throughout the country, he is praying for more rain, plenty of it, and soon.

The bar in the locker room has been enlarged considerably and has been redecorated, while the cigar stand has been shifted to a more central location, and will serve as golf headquarters this season. The club championship, which will be decided over the week-end of Labor day, will become a 72 hole medal play event this year. A mixed doubles championship also is planned.

The eighth annual championship meet of the Woman's Trans-Mississippi Golf association will be held from June 4 through June 9 at the Blue Hills Golf and Country club of Kansas City, Mo. In an effort to develop a large entry, the association has waived all handicaps, with invitations open to any member of a golf club. A fast field is expected with such stars as Virginia Van Wie, national champion; Lucille Robinson of Des Moines, western champion; Mrs. Opal S. Hill, Pat Byer Newbold, Aniela Goryczca, Marion Miley, and June Beebe. Mrs. F. H. Briggs of Kansas City is chairman of publicity.

C. Y. O. Boys 9 to 15 Open Bouts Tonight

Boxers whose ages range between 9 and 15 years will meet tonight at the C. Y. Sixty parishes are represented in the meet, with St. Leonard's, Berwyn, leading with 39 entrants. Immaculate Conception, Elmhurst, has the next largest number of entries, 21, while St. Bernardine's, St. Michael's of South Chicago, St. Columbanus, and St. Rose of Lima are next in line. Boy Casters Compete for Tribune Cups

Young bait casters, all under 16 years of age, started throwing five-eighths ounce lures yesterday in THE TRIBUNE's casting contest held at the boat and sports show on Navy pier. As soon as school was dismissed for the day, the young casters arrived at the show carrying their own rods, reels, and lines. They then were placed on the "firing line" at the pool by Harry Gephart, who is in charge of entries and scores during the contest.

Yesterday was the first of a series of preliminaries for boys which will be held each afternoon until Saturday, when the young casters making the best scores will meet at the pool to compete for the silver cups to be awarded by THE TRIBUNE.

Any boy is eligible to enter this fisherman's casting contest, which calls for each contestant to make ten casts at floating targets in the casting pool.

Yesterday was marked by the beginning of the boys' casting contest and the visit of the Michigan blossom queens at the boat and sports show. Today horse shoe pitching, rifle shooting contests and a special tournament caster's event will feature the show. More than a score of Chicago's outstanding tournament bait casters will stage an exhibition tonight at the casting pool.

AURORA JOCKIES FIGHT PAY CUT; THEY'RE WINNING

Rate to Stay at $25-$10, Officials Rule.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Courageous little men who weigh about 100 pounds stuck out their chests, pounded their fists on the racing secretary's desk and told the officials at the Aurora track yesterday that they were "somebody."

They were the jockies who have been whizzing around the upper and lower bends of the Aurora course for a week. They had heard that their wages were going to be cut. And they decided that if their wages were sliced there would be no jockies go to work on this sixth day of the Aurora spring season.

Owner Finds Cut Rate Rule.

Before the rules of the Illinois racing commission were made public the officials of the Aurora track had announced that jockies riding there would be paid the usual wage of $25 for a winning mount and $10 for finishing at the eighth pole if his mount wasn't in the mood to run any faster.

Deep down in the new racing commission rules was a paragraph which read:

An owner whose horse lingered too long around the eighth pole last Saturday discovered the Illinois commission jocky fee rule and insisted that the ride his horse got was worth but $5.

Still $25 and $10.

This brought on the controversy which ended when the case was referred to the racing commission. In the meantime one of those slow rides still will be worth $10 and one in which there is a little zip and a trip past the winning post will cost the owner $25.

It appears very much like this scale will continue, for Christopher J. Fitzgerald, representing the Illinois racing commission, and presiding steward John Ireland assured the riders that they would plead their case when the question comes up for final action.

The little argument must have lifted the dander of these tiny men, for they went out and provided the most thrilling finishes of the season in the all claiming race program which was presenting before a big week day crowd.

The Break Wins.

The little men and their steeds provided a struggle in the Geneva claiming purse at a mile and 70 yards which would have done credit to a stake race. Early leaders faltered and stout hearted platers came from behind to snatch most of the money and the glory.

The Break, from the barn of Shipp and McMaster which has been on the go in the south all winter, squeezed his way through next to the rail and by a final desperate lunge, in which Jocky Hank Manifold urged him along, got the decision by half a length from Blameless, which was bred down on Col. Edward R. Bradley's Idle Hour farm in Kentucky. Sambo Brown ran like a Mata Hari did in the early stages of the Kentucky Derby and he finished like Mata Hari did, but managed to keep going long enough to save third money.

Manifold Gets Going.

Jocky Manifold, who had been unable to win a race last week in more than 20 attempts, blossomed out into the hero of the afternoon. Aside from his great finish on The Break he snatched a narrow decision on Birthday Gift, another outsider, in the third race, and won by about an inch on the favorite Run On in the six furlong sixth race.

The quinella combination of Fair Billows and Cesare paid $6.56.

DUKELSKY AND ROTHIER WIN IN 8 ROUND FIGHTS

Solly Dukelsky and Henry Rothier, Chicago boxers, won their matches last night. Dukelsky obtained revenge for a previous defeat by Hayden [Young] Stuhley, Kewanee, Ill., middleweight, by winning a decision in their eight round bout at Marigold Gardens. Rothier was awarded a second decision over Meyer Grace, Indianapolis, Ind., welterweight, in eight rounds at Midway arena.

Geno Salvatore, La Salle, Ill., lightweight, kept his professional record clean of defeats by whipping Lou Vine in a five round semi-final at Marigold. Vine was floored for a nine count in the second round. Other results:

Sammy Richman beat Bob Crowley [4].
Mickey Beal beat Jackie Collins [4].
Bob La Monte beat Angelo Garlow [4].

Jimmy Christy and Henry Fuscaldo won their matches at Midway. Christy stopped Willie Dudlac in the fourth round and Fuscaldo defeated Servano Fabia in four rounds. Other results:

Guido Conti beat Johnny Liston [5].
Les Schultz and Chuck Roberts drew [4].

ARMOUR BREAKS PAR, WINS $500 ON LASKER COURSE

A record that has stood the assault of golfers for the last four years was broken yesterday afternoon by Tommy Armour of the Medinah Country club when he scored a 69 on A. D. Lasker's private golf course, the Millrose. Four years ago Mr. Lasker offered a prize of $500 to any one who could break 70 on the course. Playing in a foursome which included Edward Lasker, Frank Walsh of Bryn Mawr and Elmer Kurcka of Medinah, Armour first shot a 68, two under par, but was ineligible for the prize as they were playing on a short course. The course was lenghtened, increasing the par to 70 for the afternoon round. Although Armour had three fives he came home in one under par and won the $500.

LEFLORE, under brisk pressure attaining a contending position, was taken in hand after a quarter, responded gamely to punishment and was up to win going away. MORHEART raced to a clear lead early, continued well to the final eighth, where she gave way to the winner, but was easily best of TOLTEC. Latter, a strong factor throughout, closed gamely.

Winner trained by A. K. Miller. Went to post at 2:44. At post 2½ minutes. Start bad from gate. Won easily; second and third driving.

DAUNTLESS MISS, away in motion, sprinted into a long lead, maintained her advantage to the end and won cantering. CHIEF GERONIMO, weakly ridden throughout, failed to menace the winner, but was easily best of FARMER BOB. Latter, dwelt at the start, closed an immense gap and would have been a stronger contender, but for his slow beginning.

Went to post at 3:08½. At post 4½ minutes. Start good from gate. Won driving; second and third same. Daily double, second and third races, paid $83.10.

BIRTHDAY GIFT, rushed to the front soon after the start, continued well under occasional pressure, repulsed the challenge of AURICA, then drew clear in the closing stages. Latter, a strong factor throughout, got to the winner an eighth out, but could not keep pace. IRFANEH, on the inside most of the way, closed gamely after being taken out in the stretch and finished strong.

THE BREAK, taken in hand for the early racing, saved ground while moving up, closed gamely under strong riding and outfinished BLAMELESS. Latter rushed to the front at the start, soon disposed of KINGPIN, dropped back after a quarter, then came to the outside in the stretch, gained gradu-ally but coud not overhaul the winner. SAMBO BROWN weakened after racing prominently for three quarters.

SIXTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse $500. Net value to winner, $375; second, $75; third, $25; fourth, $15.

RUN ON, steadied for half a mile, responded gamely to strong pressure, gained gradually, wore down the leaders and was up to win in the final strides. ANNAN, never far back, disposed of COMMISSIONER KENNEDY inside the final eighth, then held on with good courage while giving way to the winner. JIM ORMONT, probably much the best, was taken back repeatedly, then taken extremely wide in the stretch, closed strong in the drive and probably would have won at further distance.

GOODMAN, LITTLE STAR IN PRACTICE FOR CUP MATCHES

Beat Ouimet and Egan in Scotch Foursome.

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, May 7.—(AP)—Blond Johnny Goodman, United States open champion, and broad shouldered Lawson Little of California today gave promise of being Uncle Sam's strongest Scotch foursome combination for the forthcoming Walker cup golf matches with Britain.

Goodman and Little, taking turns at whacking the ball, scored a fine 74 in the teeth of a biting northwest wind to defeat Francis Ouimet, veteran team captain, and George T. Dunlap Jr., American amateur champion, 2 and 1. The losers carded a 78.

Ouimet and Dunlap kept the match alive until the seventeenth hole where Dunlap shoved his approach across the fairway onto the road and Ouimet dubbed the recovery shot. Before the pair finished they used up 7 strokes. Meanwhile, Goodman regained his putting touch and calmly holed a 7 footer for a birdie 4. In the morning practice round Goodman 3 putted nine greens, occasioning groans of disappointment from the gallery that tramped behind the American ace.

Other Teams Are Tied.

In another foursome match Gus Moreland and Jack Westland battled to a dead heat with the veterans H. Chandler Egan and Max Marston, each team negotiating the outward nine in 40 and touring the last nine in 37.

The ninth member of the western invading squad, Johnny Fischer of Cincinnati, was omitted from the foursome trials. Capt. Ouimet announced this afternoon that today's lineup would again take the fairways tomorrow, with Little and Goodman against Moreland and Westland, and Ouimet and Dunlap playing Egan and Marston.

The dropping of Fischer from even the first round of fourzome practice developed somewhat of a mystery in view of the fact the Cincinnati boy had got the hang of St. Andrews more quickly than any other member of the squad.

Shoot Low Individual Scores.

The tentative pairings also occasioned some surprise as it was generally believed that the veterans Ouimet, Egan, and Marston would be teamed with the fledglings in order to give them the necessary balance.

Playing individually this morning some of the Americans made creditable showings in spite of the blustery conditions. Goodman, Dunlap, and Little banged around in 75, while Marston needed 76, Westland and Egan each 78, and Moreland 80. Ouimet and Fischer took the morning off.

Few Outsiders Fish Portage Trout Waters

BY BOB BECKER.

While traveling through the country above Portage, Wis., looking at trout streams that were new to us, trying out a new hollow tube steel rod, tossing some new trout fly patterns (including nymphs) at the brown and rainbow trout, and noting possible fishing places, we recorded the following possible tips for Illinois anglers:

First, trout streams above and around Portage naturally are fished pretty hard, although it is conceded that very few "outside" fishermen come to that territory. Local anglers are numerous and they give the streams a pretty good combing. Nevertheless, excellent catches are made each year.

Not "Wide Open" Waters.

Second, the streams which we fished or visited are of the type that do not come under the classification of "wide open" waters in the sense that all of the country along their banks is untenanted swamp or woodlands. Therefore, the common practice was for either Capt. John Gay or Otto Beyer, two Portage sportsmen in our party, to go to the farmhouse near where we wanted to fish and ask permission to walk through the land and travel up and down the stream.

We had no refusals, although one farmer advised us that he was agreeable to our going through the meadow at this time, but later when the grass was up he wasn't very keen about fishermen tramping all over the place.

The Oxford, the first stream we visited, is noted for large brown trout. This stream is not far from the village of Oxford. Compared to the more famous streams of the lower and upper peninsula of Michigan and to the Wolf or Peshtigo of Wisconsin, it is rather small. The Oxford is 10 or 15 feet wide in places, with plenty of deep holes for trout, and may be fly fished in many spots.

Fish Can See You.

As a rule these streams which flow through cultivated farmlands, at least over part of their length, invariably have a stretch of meadows. These open stretches of water are ideal for fly fishing around sundown. On a bright day it is difficult to fish these stretches, because trout can see you as soon as you stick your head above the landscape. Along the Oxford the most activity we saw on the part of brown trout was caused by a dry fly at sundown.

Two possible fishing tips which we expect to investigate further this summer concern the black bass fly fishermen and the northern pike enthusiasts. From our observations in the Portage country it appears as if there should be excellent sport casting for small mouth bass in the Wisconsin river.

Then there is Lake Mason, above Portage and at the edge of the village of Briggsville, which apparently is a good bet for bass fly fishermen, bait casters who want pickerel, and boys who like to catch big bluegills. There are a number of bays and many stumps in Lake Mason which are "naturals" for black bass fly fishermen.

M'LARNIN PLANS TO RETIRE IN '37—THEN MARRIAGE

Jimmy Promises to Make Weight for Ross Bout.

New York, May 7.—(AP)—Jimmy McLarnin, still looking the choir boy, though he's 29 years old now and contemplating matrimony, tempered more bad news for his Jewish opponents today with the first good news they've had in a long time.

Information that will ring pleasantly in many cauliflowered ears is that Jimmy plans to retire, though not for three years. The discouraging news is that the welterweight champion will have no trouble making 145 pounds for his 15 round title defense May 28 against Barney Ross, Chicago, lightweight champion and the latest of the Jewish boys to defy the Irish lightning.

For half a dozen years now McLarnin, who looks like a cherub and hits like a Dempsey, has been turning his right hand loose with stunning force on the chins of Jewish heroes. The list runs through names such as Kid Kaplan, Joey Sangor, Sid Terris, Ray Miller, Al Singer, Ruby Goldstein, and, finally, includes the illustrious but aged Benny Leonard.

He expects Ross, whom he has never seen, to give him a great deal of trouble, nevertheless.

"I have pictures of Barney's fights with Tony Canzoneri and Billy Petrolle," said McLarnin. "I know he's fast, smart, and a fine boxer. The only thing they don't tell me is how hard he hits. I'll find that out myself."

Sails from SAN FRANCISCO JUNE 27
Sails from LOS ANGELES JUNE 28

A ship in the harbor ... bound for the South Seas. There's a volume of promise in ten words.

It's to be a glory cruise of romance and adventure, to ports rich in such store. And she's manned by gay corsairs of pleasure whose laughter rings down the trade winds as they make dull care, routine, and commonplace walk the plank. Once before, January 12, the mighty S.S. City of Los Angeles, made this brilliant voyage and her log reads like a stirring sea-yarn spun by a poet's fancy.

Read the names of the ports. Each one is a chapter in a thrilling narrative. Little visited, these ports, and for this very reason all the more fascinating. Years of intimacy with the South Seas wrote them into the ship's papers. And long experience in Cruise Conducting organized this extraordinary expedition within the limits of modest vacation purse.

It's time now to make reservations.

In 1900 he was again named to this post, which he resigned three years later while chief justice to return to private practice.

Milton W. Zander, 47 years old, 6139 Ellis avenue, president of the United Air Cleaner company, 9709 Cottage Grove avenue, automobile accessory manufacturers, died suddenly of a heart attack yesterday while driving his automobile in the outer drive at 21st street.

He managed to shut off the ignition of his car as he collapsed. The machine then swerved into a pole. Gerald Slattery, 6157 South Hermitage avenue, a fire department inspector, who was driving behind Zander, took him to the Mercy hospital, where he was pronounced dead.

Zander had been married only a week to Mrs. Bernice Zander, his second wife. She has been seriously ill in the Woodlawn hospital for the last four days. Because of her condition it was impossible to tell her of her husband's death.

CITY'S RADIOLAND WILL SALUTE U. S. ON EVE OF FAIR

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

On the evening before the opening of the World's Fair Chicago stations and networks will unite in a gala two hour "Keep Chicago Ahead" broadcast. One hour of this salute to the nation will be carried by NBC stations, one hour will go to CBS outlets, and W-G-N will carry an hour of the program. Mayor Kelly will issue an invitation to visit Chicago and the Fair this summer. An effort is being made to have President Roosevelt speak from Washington during the broadcast. Chicago's outstanding radio entertainers will contribute to the show.

Admiral Byrd to Take Part.

Contrary to earlier hopes, Admiral Byrd's voice will not be heard when he shares with President Roosevelt the distinction of officially opening the Fair at 9 p. m., Saturday, May 26. Isolated as he is in his hut 123 miles from his main camp, he has available no voice sending apparatus. The impulse which will be flashed to the Fair will be originated by dot and dash sounds from a telegraph key in his shack. It will be carried to Byrd's ship City of New York, lying at anchor off the Fair grounds, and thence to the Lagoon theater where it will set off a pyrotechnic display.

Leading motion picture celebrities ought to make the new "Love Story" program, starting on WENR-NBC at 8:30 tomorrow evening a welcome addition to warm weather airfare. Clive Brook plays the lead in the first show, "Three Cornered Moon," by Michael Arlen. Succeeding plays will feature Leslie Howard, Roland Young, Paul Lukas, Cary Grant, Mae West's leading man; Edmund Lowe and Adolphe Menjou.

Baer-Carnera Battle on Air.

The Baer-Carnera fight Thursday, June 14, will go on the air over NBC with a tire maker footing the bill. . . . Rube Appleberry's sponsor, bearing in mind that lots of baseball fans can't get to a loud speaker in the afternoon, has arranged to entertain them with the antics of the Posey county pitcher for 26 weeks to come at 7:15 p. m. Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays on W-G-N.

Josef Cherniavsky, it's reported, has turned down the chance to direct the musical program which will go on the air from "The Cascades," the super night club being built at the Auditorium hotel. He will remain at the Chicago theater.

THOMAS O'BRIEN, FIREMAN, DIES OF EXERTION AT FIRE

Lieut. Thomas O'Brien of hook and ladder company No. 24 collapsed yesterday while fighting a fire at 12247 South Halsted street and died a few minutes later. The exertion had proved too much for his heart.

The fire started in the rear of a bakery belonging to Anton Waslavski and within a few minutes had spread to a half dozen nearby sheds and frame garages. When Lieut. O'Brien collapsed, Firemen John Carney and John Lozeau tried for a half hour to revive him by artificial respiration. Lieut. O'Brien was 58 years old and lived at 6745 Emerald avenue. He was a member of the fire department more than 30 years.

Surviving are the widow, Bridget Reilly O'Brien; three sons, John, Thomas, and William, and a daughter, Dolores. Funeral services will be held at 10:15 a. m. Thursday in St. Bernard's church. Burial will be in Holy Sepulchre cemetery.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 7.—U. S. treasury bond issues were bid up to new high prices for the year today amid general discussion of a huge refunding operation taking in not only the $1,200,000,000 called Fourth Liberty 4¼s, but also all the short term obligations maturing in June and July. Although there has been no official word from Washington on the subject, such an operation is now accepted as a possibility.

Although treasury 3s were selling today at a premium of approximately half a point, due to a quarter point advance, the reports have it that the treasury will set a rate of 3⅛ per cent on the next refunding issue.

Operation Would Require Time.

Such an operation would necessarily take a considerable period of time and its success would depend on the new issue commanding an alluring premium during the entire subscription period. The damaging effects of a failure, it is reasoned, would induce the treasury to lean toward giving the public a bargain.

Home Owners loan 4s were an exception to the rule today. They were influenced by the publication this morning of dispatches from Washington to the effect that the conversion privilege would expire on June 30. The report was without confirmation. The understanding is that the 4s are convertible into fully guaranteed 3s during six months, unless previously called for redemption on July 1.

Other Bonds Are Weak.

The tone of the treasury market was not common to any other type of bond today. On the contrary most high grade and cheaper bonds sold lower in moderate dealings. Argentines were higher on publication of a debt compromise proposal. German 5½s were a shade higher and the 7s slightly lower on small trading.

Losses of 1 to 2 points were incurred by a long list of second and speculative grade bonds. Rails and utilities were hit hardest.

Calumet and Hecla.

Investors' Guide: Please give me financial information about Calumet and Hecla and where located. Thank you.—M. F.

Answer: Calumet and Hecla Consolidated Copper company is the leading copper producer in the Lake Superior region. It is rated as a high cost producer. In 1933, however, expenses were cut sharply. Average production cost per pound of copper was 6¾ cents, and of oxide 5¼ cents, before depreciation and depletion. In 1932 average cost before depreciation and depletion was 10.64 cents per pound.

The company during 1933 received for its copper about the same price as in 1932, but loss for the two years was about the same. This is due to the accounting practice of computing the cost price of copper sold from the actual cost of production of the copper sold. Most of the sales during 1933 came out of inventory produced in 1932.

No statement was given as to the reason for the greatly reduced cost during 1933. In the absence of any official information, especially in view of curtailed production, it appears fair to presume that the company was working its richest bodies of ore where production was cheapest.

	Total receipts.	Net loss.	Loss per share.
1933	$3,958,000	$4,146,000	$2.07
1932	1,498,000	3,542,000	1.77
1931	6,078,000	2,573,000	1.28
1930	8,890,000	7,000	.003

At the close of 1933 current assets totaled $9,232,000 and current liabilities were $1,638,000. Capitalization consists of 2,005,502 shares of $25 par capital stock on which nothing has been paid since June, 1930.

The company should benefit by any increased demands or rise in price for copper.

Consolidated Oil Dividends.

Investors' Guide: I have had some common stock in Consolidated Oil corporation since April 26, 1932, and I received my first dividend check on April 7. Can you tell me if that was the only dividend they paid in the time I have held the stock?—G. L. A.

Answer: The dividend of 28 cents per common share of Consolidated Oil corporation paid on April 7, 1934, was the first disbursement on the common stock since the present company was formed on March 31, 1932.

GARY ELECTRIC OUTLINES BOND EXTENSION PLAN

Offers 10 Year Maturity, Share in Equity.

Plans for a ten year extension of $8,000,000 first lien collateral 5 per cent gold bonds which mature July 1 were announced yesterday by John N. Shannahan, chairman of the Gary Electric and Gas company.

The program provides for a continuation of 5 per cent interest payments, that all extending bondholders receive a share in the equity of the company equal to their proportionate share of 25 per cent of the outstanding common stock, that July 1 interest coupons be paid on receipt of deposited bonds, and that the company set up a sinking fund into which it agrees to place the first $100,000 earned each year above interest charges and 25 per cent of all other earnings.

Unable to Refund Bonds.

Mr. Shannahan said the company, which owns the Gary Heat, Light and Water company, is unable to refund its bonds through usual investment sources. Revenues in 1931 were more than sufficient to pay interest on the issue but fell short of this mark in the two succeeding years, he asserted. He said present earnings show an upward trend, figures for the year ended March 1, last, indicating profits in excess of interest needs.

The extension plan calls for election of a bondholders' representative to the board of directors. As the company is not paying any fees or commissions in connection with the plan it was not necessary to register details under the federal securities act.

First National Bank Depositary.

The First National Bank of Chicago has been named principal depositary, with the Bankers Trust Company of New York and the Pennsylvania company for Insurance on Lives and Granting Annuities at Philadelphia as subdepositaries.

Gary Electric is the sole owner of Gary Heat, Light and Water, which owns and operates electric, gas and water properties in Gary, Ind. The latter concern was controled by the United States Steel corporation until May, 1931, when it was acquired by Midland Utilities company and transferred two months later to Gary Electric.

CHICAGO STOCKS MOVE LOWER ON STEADY SELLING

Chicago stocks turned moderately active yesterday with the majority of issues moving lower. Only a handful of net gains were in evidence at the close and most of these were reactional.

Commonwealth Edison encountered heavy pressure, slumping 4¾ to 49¼ on a turnover of 650 shares. More than 13,000 shares of Middle West changed hands as the issue fluctuated between 12½ and 25 cents a share, finally closing at ⅛, off an eighth for the day.

Montgomery Ward A fell seven points to 101, Loudon Packing sagged 2, Quaker Oats eased 1¾, and Waukesha Motors receded 3. Changes elsewhere were small and generally held to less than a point. Volume amounted to 71,000 shares.

DIRECTORS WORK ON AMENDMENT TO ARMOUR PLAN

Study by directors of the recapitalization plan for Armour & Co. is still going forward, it was reported yesterday, with various minor details still to be worked out. Directors will hold their regular monthly meeting May 18, but officials said there is no assurance an announcement will be made then.

An amendment to the original plan is being considered, well informed circles declare, which will give preferred stockholders more than originally contemplated. It is thought this may take the form of a higher dividend rate, leaving the present 7 per cent basis undisturbed instead of reducing it to 5 per cent annually.

COTTON RISES SHARPLY, CLOSING NEAR DAY'S TOP

Trade buying, coupled with absorption of offerings by speculative interests, advanced cotton sharply yesterday. There were moderate recessions at times, but the finish was around the best of the day.

Futures in Chicago were up 11 to 18 points, and in other markets 21 to 27 points, New York taking the lead. Spot cotton advanced 25 points at New York and Houston, the former price being 11.45 cents and the latter 11.40 cents. New Orleans and Galveston advanced 20 points to 11.40 cents and 11.35 cents respectively.

LARD UP DESPITE LATE LOSS ON HEDGING SALES

Commission houses were fair buyers of lard futures yesterday. Offerings were light, and prices advanced early. Later, however, hedging pressure, plus weakness in stocks, caused a moderate reaction from the top. The close was at net gains of 12½ to 15 cents on lard futures and 5 to 7½ cents on bellies.

Cash trade in lard was fair, with an advance of 12½ to 15 cents. Regular was $5.82½, loose $5.40 and leaf $5.37½. Liverpool lard was unchanged for futures. Cash bellies were in moderate demand at $7.75. Pork loins were steady at 11 to 12½ cents. Prices:

STOCKS PLUNGE TO NEW LOWS IN SELLING STORM

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 7.—Stock prices were in full retreat today, leading shares crumbling from 1 to more than 3 points to new lows for the year in an extension of the persistent decline of the last two weeks.

The air was full of rumors about the cause of all this. Lacking any other explanation, Wall street continued to blame congress and its ideas as to what constitutes desirable federal regulation. In the face of the decline of stock prices, the general business position, as measured by dependable indices, has not been impaired. In some of the most important departments of industry, there has been substantial improvement lately and nowhere has there been any marked retrogression.

Commodity Market Strong.

Aside from the precipitate break itself, the aspect of the share market which excited most comment in Wall street was its indifference to the pronounced strength in agricultural staples and other developments such as strength in United States government bonds, which ordinarily would have met enthusiastic response on the stock exchange.

Obviously, the share market was so deeply engrossed in its own internal problems that it could derive no encouragement from outside influences. Brokers said that many of their customers who are well able to meet the most drastic margin requirements and whose commitments, for that matter, would not be disturbed in any event, were withdrawing from the market in the fear that its essential liquidity would be endangered by the passage of the proposed regulatory measure.

Aside from the theory that fear of the Fletcher-Reyburn regulatory measure, now in the senate after the pronounced action of the house, was frightening investors and speculators, there was another theory advanced; that the bear market is put on for the purpose of alarming congress to the point of greatly modifying the pending legislation.

Volume Exceeds 2 Million Shares.

At any rate there was heavy selling, with a market close only a little above the lowest point for the day. For the first time since the latter part of February stocks were turned over in volume exceeding two million shares. Activity increased as the downward shoot of the price line steepened. The tape was forced five minutes behind floor dealings at one time.

Selling became so general in the afternoon that all group distinctions were obliterated, the selling tide engulfing one industrial or business group after another.

Aside from a two day firmness toward the end of last week, liquidation in the stock market has been steady for a little over a fortnight. It is estimated that more than 12 per cent of the market value of active stocks has been dropped in the liquidation, which apparently has come largely from holders of margin accounts. While the majority of professional traders have become bearish by now there are indications that short selling has not been a major factor.

Feeble Rally Late in Day.

A quiet opening was followed by steadiness through most of the first hour, with scattered issues showing gains of as much as two points. Pivotal shares, however, were not much changed.

Traders fretted over the market's failure to take a cue from rising commodity prices and as the second hour was turned the selling side was being explored. As pivotal shares broke through previous resistance points, general liquidation came out and continued until well into the fourth hour, when some short covering served to stem the tide.

Included in the list of stocks which settled to new lows for the year were: Allied Chemical, American Car and Foundry, American Steel Foundries, Auburn, Baldwin, Baltimore and Ohio, Canada Dry, J. I. Case, Corn Products, Consolidated Gas, Crown Cork, Lackawanna, Du Pont, General Motors, Goodyear, Hudson, Illinois Central, Ingersoll Rand, Harvester, Johns-Manville, Mack Truck, Nash Motors, National Biscuit, New York Central, Simmons, Texas Gulf, Union Carbide, Industrial Alcohol, U. S. Steel, Vanadium, and Westinghouse.

Utilities Meet Liquidation.

At the outset of the break liquidation appeared heaviest in the utilities, which have been under pressure for some time as a result of rate inquiries and regulation legislation in New York state. At its low for the year Consolidated Gas was within a fraction of its bear market bottom.

Railroad issues also bore some of the heaviest firing and backed off 1 to 3 points without much resistance. The hardest hit were the grain carrying lines and the southern roads, the former group reflecting nervousness over the drouth that has hit the grain belt. Stocks of farm machinery and mail order companies were in especial disfavor for the same reason

U. S. Control, Drouth Mix Up Markets

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Between the discouragement of the legislative outlook in Washington and the encouragement of the drouth the markets were headed in two directions at once yesterday. Ordinarily quotations on the stock exchange and grain prices at the Board of Trade follow the same path. Yesterday while grains soared stocks suffered the worst slump in weeks on a heavier than average turnover.

Despite dropping stock prices the ever growing choir of bull market heralds continued to predict higher quotations. Roger Babson issued one of his periodic messages of cheer.

"The time to buy securities, commodities and land is at a time of great inactivity like the present," he said. "Hence we urge you investors to get aboard before the signal to go is fired. The signal will be fired a few days before congress adjourns. Fundamentally we believe firmly that we are in a major bull market.

"First, a substantial part of the business recovery is still to come. Second, inflationary tendencies and possibilities will keep prodding stocks higher."

There were two rumors abroad in La Salle street yesterday regarding the bad break in stocks. One was that the mythical "they" of Wall street were trying to scare congress into granting a liberal stock exchange regulation bill. The other was that the bill as passed by the house had suddenly discouraged the public, which had expected a less stringent measure.

The second explanation was generally regarded as the logical one.

The drouth has stirred up a lot of interest in grains. But expert crop observers, although admitting the seriousness of the situation, warn that the outlook may be changed drastically by the weather in June.

"The situation is truly serious in those portions of the west where the wheat crop depends largely upon the moisture stored in the subsoil the previous year," says Nat Murray, the Clement, Curtis & Co. crop expert. "That applies to western Kansas and large sections of the northwest.

"In the middle west a lot depends upon the June weather. A hot dry June is more serious than a hot dry May."

The grain trade is almost as much interested in the situation abroad. Broomhall, leading British grain authority, has been stressing the drouth in Europe. Danubian countries, which produce Europe's surplus wheat, are suffering from lack of moisture. Even Russia is reported to be having the same trouble. Canadian wheat fields are as dry as our own.

"Dame Nature is dealing conditions inimical to growing crops," says Bernard W. Snow. "Drouth follows several years of subnormal precipitation and unseasonal heat and the promise is for an unusual visitation of hoppers in the northwest and of chinch bugs in the central areas. Nature and not Washington is the cue to future grain prices."

With a world carry-over of wheat only equal to 90 days' world consumption and the drouth persisting in so many important producing areas the world wheat conference, now in session in London, may be spared the ignominy of defeat that invariably follows international attempts to regulate production.

The weather reports will probably give the cue to the grain market during the next few weeks. Experience has shown that bad weather is usually over discounted by traders. Showers, even though purely local and unimportant, would probably bring out a deluge of selling orders which would give the market a temporary setback.

STEEL INSTITUTE REPORTS OUTPUT IS LIFTED TO 55.7%

New York, May 7.—(AP)—The American Iron and Steel institute today estimated current steel operations at 56.9 per cent of capacity, a new high since it began making public weekly figures last October. The rate a week ago was 55.7 per cent.

An increase in the number of directors of the institute from 30 to 32 was authorized at the annual meeting today. The new members have not been appointed. All directors whose terms expire in 1934 were reelected for three years.

Narrowing Spread Points to Buying of Spot Silver

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 7.—Resumption of spot buying of silver today again narrowed the spread between May and months three to six months away, declines of 11 to 19 points occurring in the already small spreads current at the end of last week. At today's close the spreads are only 16 points between May and August and 53 points between May and November, far below normal. The market took this as an indication that additional spot metal is being purchased for nearby delivery.

STOCK CONTROL CHANGE TO BAN MARGIN TRADING

Amendment Shows Strength in Senate.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 7.—[Special.]—An amendment proposing the abolition of margin trading in all national stock exchanges was introduced in the senate today as the administration securities exchange bill started on its way through the upper house.

Senator Duncan U. Fletcher [Dem. Fla.], senate banking committee chairman, had scarcely finished warning the financial lobbyists who have opposed the bill that they stood in danger of legislation still more drastic when Senator Robert J. Bulkley [Dem., O.] turned the warning into a live threat by introducing the following amendment:

"It shall be unlawful for any member of a national securities exchange or any broker or dealer who transacts a business in securities through the medium of any such member, directly or indirectly to extend or maintain credit or arrange for the extension or maintenance of credit to or for any customer for the purpose of carrying securities on margin."

Has Backing of Senate.

Though defeated in the banking committee 13 to 3, the Bulkley amendment comes to the senate with an unusual backing. Its author is considered a middle of the roader. Its other two committee supporters were Senator Carter Glass [Dem., Va.], an ultra conservative, and Senator Edward P Costigan [Dem., Colo.], one of the most radical of the administration supporters.

With its record of a successful passage by the house of representatives last week, the stock exchange bill promises to have similarly little difficulty on getting through the senate.

Only two major controversies impend concerning differences between the house version of the bill and that being pushed in the senate. The former would require administration of the stock exchanges by the federal trade commission and federal reserve board; it would leave the question of margin requirements to the determination of the federal reserve board, but with the provision that it is the sense of congress that a 45 per cent margin be exacted. The senate bill sets up an independent commission to administer the act, and would leave the matter of margin up to the commission's five members.

Glass Forms Separate Board.

As leader of the group favoring a separate commission, Senator Glass declared during the day's debate, that it was his idea to "keep the federal reserve board as far away from stock gambling as possible.

"The federal reserve board has demonstrated in the past that it was not very expert in dealing with that matter, has it not?" inquired Senator William E. Borah [Rad., Rep., Idaho].

"Exactly," replied Senator Glass.

In a lengthy explanatory statement, opening the debate, Chairman Fletcher said that "this is the bill demanded by the country everywhere.

"I want to warn those people who have flooded the country with propaganda against this bill," he said, "misrepresenting the alleged loss to business, the alleged harmful effect of this legislation on business, the number of people who are going to lose their jobs, that they will not be able to stem the tide of public opinion demanding this legislation.

Fletcher Warns Opponents.

"It has got to come. They are powerful enough to defy congress. They are strong but not strong enough to obstruct the government.

"If this opposition is persisted in and the propaganda continued, the next move will come when there will be determined and successful effort to wipe away margins entirely from stock exchanges and that will mean the loss of 40 per cent of their business."

The aim of the bill was to correct known abuses and reëstablish public confidence in the country's financial markets. Senator Fletcher declared.

One minor amendment was adopted, shortening the time in the statute of limitations on damage suits based on fraud or misleading statements.

Senate Group Acts to Force Pay Publicity

Washington, D. C., May 7.—(AP)—Business executives of 40 corporations may be called to Washington to tell why they would not reveal their salaries to the trade commission as requested by the senate. This possibility developed today as the senate banking committee reported favorably a resolution appropriating $50,000 for the trade commission to use in acting against these companies.

About 900 other corporations answered the salary questionnaire several weeks ago. The answers showed that about 300 major executives each received $100,000 in salaries and bonuses in 1929, while others received compensation ranging up to more than a million and a half.

Why They Didn't Reply.

Of the 40 corporations at which today's resolution was directed, 4 filed incomplete returns, 13 claimed they did not operate in interstate commerce and so were exempt; 4 denied the power of the commission to accept this information, and 19 simply failed to report. The commission did not disclose what steps it would take if the resolution were passed by the senate.

Among the companies which may be affected are General Electric, which gave partial data only on the ground that publication was unwarranted because it might arouse jealousy among officials, and the Burroughs Adding Machine company which said disclosure of specific salaries was "a violation of the privacy of each person affected."

The Allied Chemical and Dye corporation contended it was exempt because it was a holding company not engaged in interstate commerce. Koppers Gas and Coke company declined for the same reasons, the basis of which, the commission said, is "neither clear nor in any way convincing."

Big Companies Flatly Refuse.

General Aviation corporation, American Can company, General Motors corporation and the Studebaker corporation made point blank refusal. General Aviation said it could find no legal justification, as did General Motors. The commission wrote both companies citing several legal precedents, but the companies did not reply, commission officials said.

American Can said the information sought was not relevant to any matter before congress or the commission, and also did not reply to the commission's letter citing precedents. Studebaker corporation asked for further data on the resolution, but did not reply after it was sent.

Timken-Detroit Axle company refused on the ground that the commission "is not entitled to this information unless every single concern in the country is required to report."

General Refractories company sent in a schedule, but asked its return for revision and then did not send a revised report.

Others Deny Jurisdiction.

United Drug company filed an incomplete return. Other companies claiming they were not in interstate commerce were American I. G. Chemical corporation, Delaware and Hudson company, Hudson Coal company, M. A. Hanna company, Newmont Mining corporation, Ludwig Baumann & Company, Exchange Buffet corporation, United Dry Docks, Inc., Pantepec Oil company of Venezuela, Venezuelan Petroleum company and Penn Mex Fuel company.

Others which refused or neglected to reply were Chrysler corporation, Bendix Aviation corporation, Columbian Carbon company, Congress Cigar company, Porto Rican American Tobacco company, Watt & Bond, Inc., Consolidated Retail Stores, Inc., Dodge Bros., Inc., General Mills, Inc., Howe Sound company, National Biscuit company, National Department Stores, Sloss Sheffield Steel company, Stein Cosmetics company, Union Oil company of California, Yellow Truck Manufacturing company, and Cleveland Tractor company.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 7.—There was a net gain of 48,160 in telephones in operation in the Bell system during April, comparing with loss of about 100,000 in the same month last year. This follows a gain of 108,000 telephones in the first quarter of 1934, comparing with a loss of 340,000 telephones in the 1933 period.

April was the eighth consecutive month in which the Bell system has gained in number of telephones, and was the best April since 1930, all intervening Aprils having shown losses. It was also the largest gain for any month since May, 1930.

Direct Federal Loan Program Is Advanced

Washington, D. C., May 7.—The administration's program to open federal credit reservoirs for loans to small industries made material strides toward legislative approval at both ends of the capitol today.

As the result of a new expression on the subject from President Roosevelt, however, the original plan to pump government funds into lagging small business through the federal reserve banks will probably be broadened to include loans through the Reconstruction Finance corporation as well.

The President voiced his approval of the latter plan in a letter sent today by Jesse Jones, RFC chairman, to Representative Prall [Dem., N. Y.], chairman of a house banking and currency subcommittee which has been studying the matter.

Wants Small Industries Aided.

"I am authorized by the President to say that he favors the RFC being given authority to lend to industry," wrote Mr. Jones, "and that he especially wants these smaller and medium sized industries given a full chance to survive on equal terms with the larger industries."

The President had already endorsed the proposal to provide intermediate credit for small business men through the federal reserve banks. Embodied in a bill by Senator Glass [Dem., Va.] this plan was before the senate today, but had to give way temporarily for consideration of the Fletcher-Rayburn stock exchange control legislation.

Meanwhile the senate banking and currency committee reported out a bill authorizing the RFC to advance loans of no more than a million dollars to private industries for a period of not more than five years.

House Group Meets Today.

The banking and currency committee of the house, it was learned, intends to meet tomorrow for the purpose of taking action on the industry loan program, and indications were that the house committee will combine the federal reserve and the RFC loan proposals into one piece of legislation.

Under the bill reported out in the senate, the Reconstruction Finance corporation would be empowered to use $250,000,000 of its funds in industrial loans of not more than one million dollars. The advances would be conditioned on "reasonable assurance of continued or increased employment of labor."

Jones Explains Attitude.

Explaining the administration's attitude toward RFC loans for private industry, Chairman Jones declared in his letter to Mr. Prall:

"In advocating that the RFC be authorized to make such loans it is not with a view to duplicating any similar authority given to the federal reserve banks, but to supplement that authority and keep open as many avenues for such credit as possible.

"There is undoubtedly a need of credit for small and medium sized industries and while some of the loans will carry more than the usual credit risk, unless the demand is met, our relief problems will continue to multiply.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 7.—Directors of the General Motors corporation today declared a regular quarterly dividend of 25 cents a share on the common stock. The dividend is payable June 12 to stockholders of record on May 17.

Last December the corporation voted an extra dividend of 25 cents a share and in view of the marked increase in business so far this year, there had been some expectation of another bonus payment now. Earnings for the first quarter of this year were equal to 63 cents a share on the common stock as compared with 11 cents a share in the like period of 1933.

Net sales of the corporation, excluding inter-company or divisional transactions, were $205,124,080 for the first quarter of 1934 compared with $120,000,163 in the corresponding period of 1933.

Quantity Output Delayed.

A. F. Sloan Jr., president of the corporation, in discussing the increased business for the first quarter, said that the company had been unable to take full advantage of the possibilities.

"The quarter's operations were distinguished by sub-normal shipments during January and February," Mr. Sloan said, "resulting from delays in getting into quantity production. Sales for March showed an important increase and production was more in line with demand.

"Notwithstanding this, there existed during the entire quarter an acute shortage of practically all lines of General Motors cars at distributing points, which prevented the corporation from obtaining its full sales possibilities and capitalizing the competitive strength of its products."

Chevrolet Deliveries Up.

Chevrolet deliveries by dealers in the first 20 days of April totaled 62,388 units, according to W. E. Holler, general sales manager. Sales for the year through this period totaled 235,332 units, compared with 154,526 in the like period of 1933.

Full day and night shifts were recently reported in operation at the plants of the Olds Motor works at Lansing, Mich. For the week ended April 23 production reached an all time high. The Olds plant announced that the April production would be more than three times as large as it was in the same month of 1933, while May and June schedules were slated to be even higher.

Retail sales of Buick totaled $17,510,103 in the first three months of 1934, placing Buick in sixth position in the entire automobile industry in dollar sales volume, W. S. Hufstader, vice president and general manager, stated. Dealers delivered 12,051 Buicks in the first quarter against 9,672 a year ago.

UTILITY FIGURES TAX PER MONTH ON CUSTOMERS

Morse Dell Plain, president of the Northern Indiana Public Service company, said yesterday that 47½ cents per customer per month goes for property taxes.

Checks for $816,724 have been sent to county treasurers in payment of the May instalment by Bernard P. Shearon, treasurer of the company and several affiliates. In addition, $339,077 was paid in taxes on the Lake county property of the Chicago District Electric Generating corporation.

Property taxes paid in the May instalments included the Northern Indiana Public Service company, $586,294; Chicago District Electric Generating corporation, $339,077; Indiana Service corporation, $100,059; Gary Heat, Light and Water company, $90,792; and the Indiana Hydro-Electric company, $21,039.

WORLD DROUTH BOOSTS WHEAT THREE CENTS

Other Grains Also Move Higher.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Drouth in several of the world's grain crop belts led to a sharp upturn in prices on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday. Prospects of severe damage started a general buying movement that swept wheat up 3⅜ cents, corn, 2 cents, and oats, 2⅛ cents before the bulge was checked.

Although heavy profit taking made its appearance on the upturn the finish was well toward the top. Wheat showed net gains of 2⅞ to 3 cents, corn ¾ to 1⅛ cents, oats 2 to 2⅜ cents, rye ¼ to 1¼ cents and barley 1½ to 2 cents. May wheat was 84½ to 84⅝ cents at the close, May corn at 47⅝ to 47⅞ cents, and May oats at 34 cents.

General trading was not as heavy as the advance in prices indicated, although commission houses as a whole reported more public interest. Houses with eastern connections were good buyers of wheat and corn at times and found offerings relatively light until near midday.

World Drouth Noted.

A new factor of far reaching effect on the world's wheat markets is the far flung drouth in central Europe and parts of Russia which is said to imperil a tremendous acreage. Broomhall, a leading European authority, cabled that Bulgaria was considering prohibiting exports due to fears of a crop failure, and Rumanian shippers also believed exports would be prohibited from that country.

Dry weather reports with the alarming lack of subsoil moisture dominated the trade here from start to finish, and the sharp break in stocks had comparatively little effect. May wheat which was down to 77⅞ cents at the low last Friday sold up to 85 cents yesterday, the highest level since April 16. Corn futures at the top were up 3⅝ to 4⅝ cents from last week's low with May selling at 48⅛ cents. Oats have advanced 4⅜ to 5⅜ cents within a week, the May touching 34 cents, the highest since March 15.

Cash Wheat Purchases.

Reports were current that about 300,000 bushels of cash wheat had been bought in the southwest to come to Chicago, presumably for milling purposes. The price mentioned was 1 cent over Chicago May.

Outside markets showed relatively more strength than Chicago with Kansas City wheat futures gaining 2⅞ to 3⅜ cents, Minneapolis 2½ to 3¼ cents and Duluth 3¾ to 4 cents. Winnipeg had a holiday. Liverpool was ⅝ to 1⅛ cents higher.

The upturn in corn was largely in sympathy with other grains. Shipping sales aggregated 205,000 bushels.

Increasing complaints regarding the outlook for the new oats crop are coming from a wide area as the crop was seeded only a few weeks ago and needs moisture to give normal growth. Shortage in pasturage and fodder in general was shown in reports from the northwest, all of which helped along the upturn in oats. Cash houses were buyers of future during the day.

AMERICAN AUTOS HAVE BIG FIELD IN SWISS TRADE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, May 7.—The American automobile industry has provided the answer to how America can increase trade with Switzerland, a small country whose imports always exceeded her exports and whose extremely difficult economic position in the middle of nationalist Europe has driven her to a formidable system of trade restrictions.

Although it was stipulated that only fifty per cent of the number of American cars imported in 1932 would be allowed to enter during 1933, certain car manufacturers have been granted special concessions by agreeing to reassemble their cars in Switzerland, thereby giving employment to Swiss labor. Chrysler expects to reassemble 1,200 cars this year in Soleure, one of the most important industrial towns in Switzerland. Any agreement to use Swiss batteries, tires or electrical devices on American cars—which incidentally raises their price, as Swiss accessories are more expensive than American — results in preferential treatment.

U. S. Tarif Hurts Watch Industry.

Switzerland, worried by the terrific drop in her export trade following the 1929 crash and faced with the crippling of her all-important watch industry as a result of the Smoot-Hawley tarif schedules, nevertheless announced at the world economic conference her willingness to adhere to a tarif truce if other countries took no measures to aggravate the monetary, financial and economic situations.

With the complete breakdown of that conference, Switzerland was forced to adopt drastic measures to save her economic life. Three-fourths of the total annual production in Switzerland is supplied by agriculture and dairying. Most of the raw materials used in industries must be imported. He export trade is vital, therefore, and restrictions are a desperate gesture to force realization of that fact. This gesture cost the United States something over $4,000,000 last year. Despite the favorable exchange American imports have decreased 21½ per cent.

Duties Offset Dollar Depreciation.

Any advantage to America which might have followed the devaluation of the dollar has been canceled by an equivalent rise in duties. Protective tarifs have proven an insufficient barrier against the importation of American goods, which in 1933 exceeded Swiss exports to America by 32,751,151 gold francs, or about $10,000,000. The most important American imports, automobiles, raw cotton, leaf tobacco, benzine, and apparatus for radio, telephones, and telegraph, can enter Switzerland now only in restricted quantity. The adoption of the quota system has reduced total imports 14 per cent, but exports have also decreased 6 per cent.

Unless America agrees to accept in exchange for every radio and automobile at least an equal amount of Swiss products, any expansion of American imports into Switzerland seems problematical. Importers whose business was established here before the restriction system came into effect perhaps can manage to hang on. Without concessions from America for the entrance of Swiss goods there will be no relaxation of the present system, which was primarily a reprisal measure.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., May 7.—Leading liquor stocks appearing on Canadian stock exchanges today fell to new lows for the year to date and to levels less than half what they were late last year, when they soared on repeal of prohibition in the United States.

The explanation given was that sales of Canadian liquor to United States interests have fallen off badly in the last month or two. Bootleggers are said to have increased their sales sharply in the lading liquor buying centers of the United States, to the disadvantage of sellers in the usual channels. Canadian interests advanced their prices considerably when the wet era returned, which also is given as a factor reducing Canadian sales.

RATE WAR LOOMS AS COMMISSION O. K.'S LOW FARES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 7.—Over the protests of the National Recovery administration and all southern railroads, the interstate commerce commission agreed today to permit the Southern Railway company to continue until Jan. 1 its present "experimental" day coach fares of 1½ cents a mile.

A "beautiful rate war" between railroads and passenger buses throughout the southeast as a result of the commission's action was predicted by Sol. A. Rosenblatt, NRA divisional administrator. He said that the bus code designed to end cutthroat competition in railroad and bus passenger rates in southeastern territory would have to be substantially modified.

Southern Refuses Agreement.

The proposed bus and rail rate agreement was scheduled to become effective June 1, immediately upon the expiration of present experimental tarifs approved by the commerce commission to enable the railroads to regain passenger trafic lost to buses.

It provided for a uniform day coach rate of 2 cents a mile for railroads and, for the first time, fixed bus fares in definite relation to rail charges. All roads, except the Southern and its affiliates, agreed to the proposed arrangement. The Southern contended additional time was required to determine the results of its rate experiment.

Such an order as given today, besides forcing most, if not all, of the southern carriers to continue the 1½ cent coach fare, would probably affect fares of railroads in some other sections, Mr. Rosenblatt argued in hearings before the commission.

Roads Given Free Rein.

In its order granting an extension of the emergency rates, the commission left it optional with southern carriers to establish the proposed 2 cent rate or to continue on the present basis. It was considered doubtful, however, that a rise to the 2 cent rate would be attempted.

Under the proposed rate agreement between the railroads and buses, which now faces drastic modification, the railroads would have abolished so-called excursion rates by establishing a rate of 1.8 cents a mile for round trip tickets. A 2 cent rate was to apply on one way tickets.

I. L. Keeshin, president of the National Highway Freight association, said tonight that the attempt to regulate competing forms of transportation through NRA codes while the railroads continue under government regulation would precipitate rate wars and thwart recovery.

Continental Assurance Qualifies Stock in Illinois

New Corporation Charters Show Gain Over Year Ago

The number of new corporation charters issued last month gained over that for April, 1933, Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes announced yesterday. A total of 517 new companies was chartered to do business in Illinois last month against 511 in April, 1933. Foreign corporations authorized to do business in this state numbered 42 against 42 a year ago.

CHARGES TRUCK OWNERS SEEK TO BREAK UP UNION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 7.—Charges that the Truck Owners' association in Chicago is striving to break up unionism among its workers were lodged with the national labor board today.

David Kaplan, appearing for D. M. Burrows, business agent of Auto Mechanics' lodge No. 701, told the labor board that the Fullerton Motor Service company of Chicago was intimidating its workers in order to keep them out of unions and that in this move the Fullerton company was acting on behalf of the entire Truck Owners' association.

Moses Levitan, counsel for the Fullerton company, replied that the company had made no attempts at intimidation, was not acting for the Truck Owners' association, and had not discriminated against union workers. The union, Levitan said, was trying to force a closed shop on the Chicago trucking industry.

Case Taken Under Advisement.

The labor board took the case under advisement and announced no decision. Kaplan, on behalf of the workers, suggested that the question be sent back to Chicago for further direct negotiations between the company and the workers.

In charging that the Fullerton company was discriminating against union workers, Kaplan declared that it had discharged five of them. Levitan scoffed at the statement. He charged that these five men were "non-existent" because the union had failed to supply their names to the Chicago regional board. Kaplan retorted that the names could be found from records in Chicago. Kaplan also charged that the company had not reinstated two union mechanics, although it had agreed to do so in a pact signed on Jan. 24. Levitan replied that the company had tried unsuccessfully to reach these two men recently. Previously, Levitan said, the company had had no work for them.

Charges Failure to Adjust Wages.

On the point of wages for mechanics in the Chicago trucking business, Kaplan charged that the Fullerton company had failed to adjust its wage rates up to those decided upon for the entire Chicago area.

Questioned by members of the labor board on his charge that the mechanics' union was trying to force a closed shop on the trucking industry in Chicago, Levitan produced a copy of the agreement which the union had proposed to the Fullerton company.

Asked by Dr. Francis J. Hass, acting chairman of the board, to point out the closed shop clause, Levitan finally admitted that there was none. He insisted, however, that the union considered the agreement it was proposing a closed shop arrangement. He reiterated his charge that "all the union wants is a closed shop agreement."

BANK DEPOSITS FALL SHARPLY IN MANY CITIES

U. S. Withdraws Cash; Trade Credit Down.

Deposits held by federal reserve member banks in 91 leading cities of the country turned sharply lower last week. A report issued yesterday covering operations for the seven days ended May 2 reveals an indicated drop of 245 million dollars in gross deposits, including a slump of 131 millions in individual accounts.

Losses were registered at all points, New York showing a drop of 144 millions in gross and 51 millions in individual deposits. Chicago had declines of 15 and 26 millions, respectively, and the interior recessions of 86 and 44 millions.

Other Banks' Deposits Gain.

Deposits of other banks with the member institutions rose 12 millions in the cities outside New York and Chicago. An 18 million gain was reported here but a loss of 32 millions in New York resulted in a net decline of 2 millions.

The government continued to withdraw its cash from the banks. The war loan account sagged 122 millions of which New York accounted for 61 millions, Chicago 7 and the interior 54. With the exception of Chicago all banks sold government securities, New York releasing 17 millions and other points 23 millions. Chicago purchased 13 millions.

Holdings of Other Securities.

Holdings of other securities rose 4 millions in the interior but this was partly offset by a drop of 1 million at both New York and Chicago.

Commercial credit contracted 45 millions, dropping 33 in New York, 5 here and 7 elsewhere. However, security loans increased at all points, rising 61 millions as the result of a 55 million gain in New York and 3 million each in Chicago and the interior. Total loans and investments rose 4 millions in New York and 10 millions here but receded 23 millions elsewhere, a net decline of 9 million dollars.

MIDDLE WEST'S STOCKHOLDERS SEEK PROTECTION

Common stockholders of the Middle West Utilities company will oppose any reorganization plan which does not take into consideration the financial investment and the work toward reorganization contributed by that group, according to Orville J. Taylor, counsel for the common stockholders' committee.

In a statement issued yesterday Mr. Taylor, commenting on reports that creditors comprised of Chicago and New York banks and noteholders of the company are formulating a reorganization plan in which the interests of the common and preferred stockholders have been eliminated, said his committee is now making a survey of the company. This study, he said, will be used to defend and represent the interests of his group.

The committee requests all persons holding such shares join in the work of the committee by depositing their stock with the Northern Trust company, the official depository for the committee.

Robert N. Golding, counsel for the noteholders' committee, said, "no one is trying to freeze out the stockholders. We, the banks and noteholders, only want to get the $70,000,000 due us."

ONLY ONE CLOSED BANK IN TWENTY PAYS DEPOSITORS

Quarter Report Shows 16 Ask RFC Loans.

The North Avenue State bank which closed June 18, 1932, paid 10 per cent or $203,608 to its depositors in the period between Jan. 1 and March 31, 1934, according to a report on a group of 20 closed banks in Cook county, issued yesterday by State Auditor Edward J. Barrett. This was the only bank in the group to make a payment in this period. Its total to date is now 25 per cent.

Of this group [the detailed report is printed in an accompanying table], 16 banks have requested loans from the Reconstruction Finance corporation for the purpose of making distributions to creditors.

Four Have Not Asked Loans.

Banks that have not made cash requests include the Madison-Kedzie Trust and Savings bank, where there have been efforts at reorganization; the Millard State bank, the Northwestern Trust and Savings bank, and the Old Dearborn State bank.

The Morton Grove Trust and Savings bank has paid out the highest percentage, 37 per cent, to depositors. The Millard State bank is second with 36 per cent, and the North Town State bank is third with 32 per cent.

In amount of cash returned to depositors the Northwestern Trust and Savings bank leads with a total of $2,831,600, or 30 per cent of the total amount due depositors. Eight of the banks have not paid any dividends.

Highest Attorney's Fees.

The attorneys collecting the highest fee in the period from Jan. 1, 1933, to March 31, 1934, were Altheimer, Mayer, Woods & Smith who received $13,351 from the Maywood State bank. Paul T. Klenk, attorney for the Madison Square State bank, was second with a fee of $12,075.

William L. O'Connell is the receiver for all the banks in the group except the Northwestern Trust and Savings bank whose receiver is David E. Shanahan, and the Old Dearborn State bank, whose receiver is James S. Rodie.

MINIMUM PRICE FOR WHEAT HITS SNAG AT PARLEY

LONDON, May 7.—(AP)—An international plan for minimum wheat export prices, from which its proponents expect a salutary effect on grain markets, aroused the opposition of Argentines and a somewhat unfavorable attitude among Britons at the opening session today of the world wheat conference.

Despite an optimistic note sounded at the outset by the chairman, American Ambassador Robert W. Bingham, the 30 delegates from 21 nations were forced to recess the parley until Wednesday after an initial session lasting only 90 minutes.

It was explained that the full report of a meeting of the conference commission in Rome last month, when the price scheme was approved, reached Buenos Aires last week and that the recess was called to permit the Argentine and other delegates to communicate further with their governments.

The American delegates and other supporters of the proposal, however, insisted that a special subcommittee be named to meet tomorrow and draw up a scale of price differentials between exporting countries—a point on which the Argentines asked additional information—instead of delaying that task until later in the week, as originally planned.

HOGS RECOVER WEEK-END LOSS; SUPPLY CLEARED

Cattle Prices Irregular; Lambs Are Lower.

Hogs recovered some of Saturday's losses in a rather draggy trade yesterday, but they were mostly steady to 5 cents lower than on last Friday, the last day on which enough volume was handled to determine a fair list of quotations. Buyers showed some reluctance in the early part of the day, but later were ready purchasers for anything that indicated a slight saving from Friday, resulting in a good clearance before the session ended. Only pen holders remained at the close.

The extreme top for the day at $3.85 was 15 cents over Saturday's best sale and equal to the high mark of Friday, while the general average at $3.65 indicated 5 cents advance, compared with Saturday's price, and was 5 cents lower than on Friday.

Situation Different a Year Ago.

In marked contrast to current trade conditions, the hog market a year ago at this time was making a sensational rise. The advance started a year ago yesterday. Prices jumped $1.10 to $1.15 in ten days. Daily tops advanced from $4.25 on May 8 to $5.40 on May 18. The daily average jumped 80 cents in five days. Talk of inflation stimulated speculative interest in pork and by-products, and this was largely responsible for the phenominal rise of hog prices at that time.

Buying by the relief corporation continued at the rate of 2,300 daily on yesterday's session, packers buying for this account obtaining their quota of "relief hogs" mostly within a range of $3.70 to $3.80.

Cattle Prices Irregular.

Prime medium and heavy steers maintained a fully steady price basis again yesterday, the supply of these being below requirements of the trade, but the bulk of cattle weakened and closed lower, with late reports indicating a fair sized holdover.

Butcher stock continued draggy at last week's late decline in prices. Calves were steady to weak. Well finished 1,223 to 1,567 pound steers topped the list at $9.50, and over 500 head averaging in loads from 1,162 to 1,567 pounds cashed at $9.25 and above. In the extreme weights were 12 "mammoth" steers averaging 2,212 pounds that sold at $7.00. The bulk of all beef steers in the receipts sold at $5.65 to $8.50, as against $4.60 to $6.00 on the same day last year and $5.40 to $7.00 two years ago.

Offerings of lambs fell short yesterday, but orders also were short and prices went down mostly 25 cents under pressure from the buying side. Aged wooled lambs topped at $10.00 while lambs shorn about 60 days ago were sold at $9.00. Most of the new crop native lambs cashed at $10.50 to $11.25.

TRADE NEWS HELPS EGGS, BUTTER; POTATOES DROP

Butter and egg futures closed ⅛ cent higher on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday. Potatoes dropped two points.

Favorable trade news started October eggs higher, but when stocks turned weak the market reacted. Receipts were under last year and the four markets stored 8,500 cases less than last year. This, with the heat wave, encouraged the early support.

The drouth could be expected to aid butter prices, but the futures did not display much strength, particularly with cash prices dropping back ½ cent. November opened ¼ cent higher but eased near the close. The movement of butter into storage was 44,000 pounds less than last year.

Miscellaneous.

MEN—OUR ORGANIZATION IS MADE up of men who came to the conclusion that the great changes that have been sweeping the world will not restore opportunities that once existed. I was a La Salle St. broker's customers' man. H. W. had made enough money to retire. H. A. W. had been one of the most successful tobacco buyers in the country. Other men were instructors, salesmen, business men—but their world flattened out and this new world opened up. These men are making good money—H. W. made $92.00 comm. in a single day the past week.

This substantial electric unit company, manufacturing and distributing several different units famous throughout the earth, is a big, financially independent corporation, and it does not require any outlay on the part of men accepted for this work. The men I wish especially are those living in Rogers Park, Mayfair, Evanston, Wilmette, Kenilworth, Winnetka, etc., and preferable married men from 25 to 50 years old and able to put in full time work. As men selected must handle considerable company money we demand character references. Cars help increase earnings.

Floaters, old men, part time men not considered. Become a permanent part of this rapidly growing business. If you wish interview call at 2:00 p. m. only, Room 316 Howard-Clark Bldg., Clark at Howard-st., Chicago, Tuesday, May 8. Ask for Mr. Baker.

MEN—I WANT A FEW MEN WHO WANT THIS OPPORTUNITY, AND NO OTHERS! . . . . IT IS "PLENTY HARD" WORK WITH "PLENTY BIG" PAY. COMMISSION CHECKS AS DEPENDABLE AS THE WEEK ROLLS 'ROUND. NORTH AND N. W. SIDE MEN WHO LIVE WITH THEIR FAMILIES AND CAN GIVE US SOME GOOD REFERENCES—NOT BOYS OR OLD MEN, BUT MEN IN LATE TWENTIES, ALL OF THIRTIES AND UP TO LATE FORTIES—INTERESTED IN A BUSINESS THAT IS PAYING MEN ALL THE WAY UP TO HUNDREDS OF DOLLARS A MONTH RIGHT IN THIS OFFICE—WILL CALL FOR INTERVIEW.

YOU DO NOT HAVE TO UNDERSTAND ELECTRICAL UNIT BUSINESS TO SUCCEED BECAUSE WE HAVE SERVICE WORLD-WIDE. WE FINANCE ALL TRANSACTIONS. EVERY YEAR DURING DEPRESSION THIS BUSINESS GREW IN VOLUME AND NOW IT IS RACING AHEAD.

PERSONAL INTERVIEW AT 2:00 P. M. ONLY, ROOM 215 AT 1046 WILSON-AV., TUES., MAY 8. ASK FOR MR. ANDERSON.

PERMANENT POSITIONS in appliance sales work. Neat appearing young men with satisfactory references will be trained. Excellent opportunities for experienced salesmen in several divisions. Commission and bonus. See Mr. Schutze, Room 1035, 125 S. Clark-st., 9 to 11 a. m. only. Commonwealth Edison Company.

AMBITIOUS MEN

Who are seeking a position with future; must have good record as worker and be able to follow instructions. FULLER BRUSH COMPANY can use 3 clean cut men living Northwest. Commission rate is good, and most men earn bonuses. Guaranteed earnings to new men. Apply Tuesday-Wednesday, 1-5 p. m. ROOM 507, 3959 LINCOLN-AV.

ACTOR—YOUNG MAN, 20-28 YRS., TO take part of Buck Rogers in World's Fair Show. Must have excellent physique, about 6 ft. tall; dramatic ability necessary. Call 1306 Auditorium Tower, betw. 10-12 M. or 5:30-7 p. m. Dr. Harlan Tarbell.

MAN—INTERESTED IN MEN'S WEAR. EXperience not necessary; salary to start. See A. Clausen, 9 to 12, 53 W. Jackson.

If you want to compare BIRD-SYKES' Exchanged Car Values on the basis of price, you will have to add at least 30% to our quotations. WHY? Because these cars are in better condition, we honestly believe, than any you can buy at or anywhere near these figures.
